Ford's Newest Car.
But, See Them All.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Dec. 9.

THIS DAY is spent traveling from the Hearst Ranch to Colton, turning inland at Ventura and, via Victorville, to the writer's ranch at Hodge, on the Mohave desert, back through San Bernardino to Colton to take the Southern Pacific train, thence through El Paso, San Antonio, New Orleans, Jacksonville, back to the effete East.

THE DAY'S run, made between 8:30 a. m. and 8:10 p. m. with stops to write this, to have luncheon and to inspect an alfalfa ranch, will be about five hundred and fifty miles. It is necessary to keep moving.

The vehicle, in this instance, is a Ford eight-cylinder car, model 1934, which will be shown to the public today. This car is having a busy "preview."

When it reached San Simeon it had 340 miles on the speedometer. It will have about 900 miles registered when it returns to the Ford assembly plant at Long Beach.

WHO WOULD have believed a few years ago that distance could be thus conquered? And it could have been done, by airplane, in two hours and a half, or less.

Who would have believed THAT a few years ago, when the Wright brothers had to go to France to find some one interested in their flying machine. Their own government decided that "the flying machine, while interesting, could not be made practical, so the government would not be justified in spending money on it."

The government still has some such an idea, although not quite as bad. The French knew better. And France dominates in the air today. Ask angry England about that.

HENRY FORD sent this car "to let you have a look at the 1934 eight-cylinder," and it is worth seeing. What American manufacturing and engineering science have done for automobiles is amazing beyond words.

Albert H. Johnson, of the Ford organization, driving, remarks that it "hugs the road," and while going a little above 70 miles an hour takes both hands from the wheel, and is requested not to do that again.

ALONG THE road comes an old Model T Ford, drawing another, older Model T, to its last resting place, somewhere. Contrast the Model T with this car of 1934, and you see what progress Ford and the motor industry have made.

You might also take off your hat to old Model T, for she is the grandmother of "twenty-five million automobiles running in America."

ON THE front seat of this car (handsome young state motor patrolmen please look the other way), which runs "only" between sixty-five and seventy-five miles an hour, because Mr. Johnson does not want "to push a new car," you read the Los Angeles Examiner through without eye-strain.

And you may take a nap at the same speed, in comfort.

IT IS only a little while since Henry Ford said he expected "to manufacture ten thousand automobiles a year," and Mr. Joy, big automobile man, rebuked him:

"Ford, if you talk so extravagantly, you will destroy the confidence of bankers in our industry."

Since then Henry Ford has made as many as ten thousand automobiles in one day. And he will do it again, for this country, with all its financial and governmental stupidity, has not been "killed dead."

IN THE dashboard is a cubby hole to receive a small radio set made for this particular car. Is not that the limit of the impossible come true?

Rickenbacker, who flew over Germany and brought down German planes for this country, now interests himself in radio sets for automobiles.

When Mr. Johnson takes both hands off, at seventy-two or three miles an hour, the radio, most appropriately, is sending out words and music of "There, Little Girl, Don't Cry."

IT IS a pleasure, now, to tell Mr. Kingsbury, president of Standard Oil of California, about the young man who put gas into this car at Standard Oil Station No. 157, near the Inn at Santa Maria.

This coming American business man, named A. C. Davis, does not saunter out, he runs and asks "What can I do for you," as he comes running and smiling, his small badge showing that he is head man of that gas station.

He supplies gas, puts in water, offers air for tires, washes the windshield with soap and water, dries it with feverish energy and all the while never stops smiling.

He pats the car, remarks, "so that's the new one," observes the change in the radiator cap. He would praise the car if it were 20 years old and tottering.

Says he, when offered money for himself:

"No, thank you, against company rules."

Let us hope that neither NRA nor any other modern improvement will order that young man to walk, not run, and not do anything to a car, unless paid for it. It is what you do, without pay, that makes you worth better pay, later.

HENRY FORD said to the writer many years ago:

"Standard Oil is the best managed business enterprise in the world."

RIVAL UNIONS NEAR CRISIS IN VOTE FIGHT

Company Group Defies National Labor Board; Coxey Enters Fray

WEIRTON, W. Va., Dec. 9.—Ignoring the National Labor Board, the Weirton Steel Company today perfected arrangements for a company union election while Jacob Coxey, of "Coxey's Army" fame, prepared to address a mass meeting of steel workers.

Weirton was tense as the controversy over the manner of electing employes' representatives in the mills neared a showdown.

The Labor Board announced it would ignore the company union arrangements and take complete charge of the election, according to an International News Dispatch from Washington.

Jesse I. Miller and James F. Dewey were to represent the board with full authority in the balloting. The election will be held on the same basis as those of miners' representatives in the captive mines of Pennsylvania, the Labor Board said.

SECRET BALLOT PLAN

Company union representatives are making ready for the election by secret ballot. The Labor Board rejected this plan and seeks an election by petitions of the workers.

Steel company officials were deaf to telephone inquiries from the Labor Board and telegrams went unanswered, a spokesman for the board said. A photostatic copy of the company payrolls was sought.

Officials of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of America called a mass meeting for late this afternoon. Coxey, veteran leader of a march of unemployed to Washington years ago, will speak and representatives of the Amalgamated Union will report on a conference they had with Labor Board officials in Washington.

COXEY'S SECOND SPEECH

Coxey also will speak at a Steubenville mass meeting at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

A company union committee prepared secret ballots for nomination Monday of delegates representing the employes. The delegates will be elected Friday.

LAYDEN SIGNED —NOTRE DAME

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Rev. Charles O'Donnell, president of the University of Notre Dame, today formally announced the appointment of Elmer Layden as football coach to succeed Heartly (Hunk) Anderson and confirmed other sweeping changes in the athletic setup at the university.

Father O'Donnell stopped off here enroute to South Bend from Rochester, Minn., where he had been a patient at the Mayo Clinic.

In addition to verifying the appointment of Layden as head football coach, Father O'Donnell also announced that Joe Boland, tackle on the 1924 team, now at St. Thomas University, St. Paul, and Mal Elward, for several years assistant to Noble Kizer at Purdue, would aid Layden next fall. Elward also a a former Notre Dame player, starring on the 1913 eleven.

DIRECTOR NOT NAMED

Father O'Donnell also declared whatever action taken by Rev. John F. O'Hara, acting president in his absence, was satisfactory

Fighting Chains

JAMES A. LA RUE

JUDGES, WRITER AID FUGITIVE

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Encouraged by a municipal judge and backed by a sympathetic novelist, James A. La Rue held new hope today that he could defeat Florida justice and remain a fugitive from a Dade County chain gang.

Judge Alfred O. Erickson told the 27-year-old prisoner yesterday:

"I wish I were as sure of long life as you are of freedom."

He forbade La Rue's removal from the state for 24 hours. Later in the day Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan in Criminal Court granted a habeas corpus writ holding Lt Rue in the sheriff's custody until a full hearing December 14.

At that hearing Judge Finnegan must decide whether La Rue goes back to the chain gang to finish a five-year term for housebreaking. He had been sentenced last December, an escaped in April.

The young fugitive enlisted the sympathy of Rosita Forbes, British novelist, with a tale of cruel punishment in the "sweat box" on the Florida prison farm at Raiford. He said he was left in the solitary box to blisted for hours under the southern sun. The novelist provided him with an attorney.

Holds Society Man Thief, Gets Divorce

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. Clifton Tonchen, who told the court she was a member of Earl Carroll's Vanities of 1926, was granted a divorce today from Stephen Tonchen, whom she described as the scion of a wealthy family of Scranton, Pa.

Mrs. Tonchen said a year ago they went to Honolulu on their honeymoon and that "while he was a society man during the day he stole automobiles at night." She said he was serving a sentence at Oahu Prison now. She charged Tonchen declared he would "mar her beauty" if she ever got a divorce.

2 GUNMEN SCORN $75 IN HOLDUP

Return Loot to Party In Auto; Believed After Rich Gems

Two highwaymen who apparently were looking for "big shot" victims wearing plenty of diamonds, returned $75 to an automobile party which they had held up in Babcock boulevard near North Park last night, members of the party reported to State Highway patrolmen.

George W. Kelly, of 1418 Evandale road, North Side, had stopped his car to adjust the carburetor when two men alighted from a car coming in the opposite direction.

One of the two, whom Kelly described as "hard looking, with big guns," pushed a revolver into Kelly's stomach, compelled him to get back into his car and ordered him and four others to give up their valuables.

In the party were Kelly's wife, Grace; his brother, Charles A. Kelly; the latter's daughter, Agnes, 14, and his sister, Mrs. Blanche Watson, of 36 Almeda street, Glenwood.

After examining their purses and taking out the bills, one of the robbers said:

"Who's got the diamond?"

Mrs. Kelly had slipped hers from her fingers and placed them in a side pocket of the car. Mrs. Watson showed them a 10-cent imitation gem.

They consulted, then one of them said:

"Give them back their money."

They ordered Kelly and his party to drive on while they stood in front of their own car concealing the license plates. They had retained only 50 cents and two car checks belonging to Charles Kelly.

George Kelly today said he believed the two were looking for persons known to wear valuable jewelry.

2 KILLED IN OHIO TRAIN WRECK

CHILLICOTHE, O., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Two men were killed and four others injured, two probably fatally, late last night when the Sportsman, crack flyer of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, was derailed one mile northeast of here.

Railroad officials also said they believe two or possibly three train riders are buried beneath the wreckage.

The dead were: Harry Greshman, 49, engineer, of Covington, Ky., and an unidentified Negro train rider.

The injured are: Henry Gassett, Negro, Huntington, W. Va., and Earl Chase, 54, mail clerk, Worthington, O., both in a serious condition; Thomas Courtade, Columbus, mail clerk, and Everett Lane, 38, fireman, of Russell, Ky.

All passengers on the train were taken to Columbus when they were rerouted over other lines to their destination.

PAY PROBERS OF VOTING MACHINES

'Honorary' Committee Gets $2,857 From County

The County Commissioners were disclosed today as having authorized payment of bills amounting to $2,857.45 in connection with the probe of faulty voting machines by the Harris investigating committee.

The committee, headed by State Senator Frank J. Harris, had been regarded as an honorary group serving in the capacity of interested citizens.

HARRIS NOT INCLUDED

Senator Harris' name did not appear in the resolution authorizing payment which was approved by the Commissioners December 4, according to the minutes. He apparently was not tendered anything or refused to accept it.

The two other members of the committee, Edward O. Tabor and William B. McFall, were authorized to be paid $1,000 each "for services as a member of the committee ordered to investigate vote machines."

OTHER BILLS

Other bills ordered paid were: A. G. Cockran, A. B. Holcomb and C. B. Klover, described as engineers, $75 each for three days' work, and $632.45 to Harry Bastow, court stenographer, for services in transcribing testimony taken at hearings of the committee.

The Harris committee submitted a lengthy report October 20, the chief feature of which was criticism of the County Elections Bureau, which the committee blamed for negligence in failing to detect defects of the machines.

Renton Man Slain in Feud

A squad of heavily-armed county detectives surrounded the home of a Renton miner reported to have barricaded himself there early today after the alleged slaying of a fellow townsman a short time before.

Instead of a battle, the detectives said they found the man they wanted, Tony Tembero, 50, calmly awaiting their arrival.

The victim of the murder was William Mellinger, 42, carpenter. The shooting occurred in a lonely highway in front of the Renton school house.

Tembero admitted the shooting, according to County Detective Peter A. Connors.

Examination of the body of the dead man later disclosed a revolver, with two shells missing, detectives said.

Fire Truck Ladder Kills Woman, Hurts 3

BUTLER, Pa., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Miss Lucetta Garwig, 36, is dead and three others are in a critical condition today, victims of a freak accident in which a ladder on a speeding fire department truck got loose and raked pedestrians.

Those injured are Mrs. Ruby Sutton and Miss Pearl Garwig, who were walking with Miss Garwig, and Carl Miller, a fireman.

Victim Seizes Gun, Foils Holdup Pair

Seizing a gun held by one of two Negroes who attempted to hold up William Gardner, of 2339 Hazelton street, and Charles Brown, of 402 Chautauqua street, Gardner successfully resisted the thugs, according to a police report. He was struck on the head by one of the two men.

HIT-RUN AUTO VICTIM DIES

Mrs. Viola Cook, 57, injured with her daughter by a hit-and-run driver in a stolen automobile as she was walking home from prayer meeting on Freeport road, Sharpsburg, last night, died early today in the Pittsburgh Hospital.

The daughter, Miss Cecelia Cook, 22, who lived with her mother at 121 Twenty-third street, Sharpsburg, is in the Pittsburgh Hospital suffering a fractured leg, arm and other injuries.

The automobile, stolen from Dr. E. E. Mayer, of the Wendover Apartments, late yesterday, was found badly damaged near the scene of the accident, Freeport road, near Guyasuta Bridge, Sharpsburg.

Police reported finding a partly filled bottle of "moonshine" in the car.

TURNS TO N.Y. STAGE FOR SOLACE

Fairbanks Plays With Royalty, Wife Goes To Work Alone

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 9.—Mary Pickford today turned to the stage for solace as her "perfect romance" with Douglas Fairbanks was plunged into the Los Angeles divorce courts.

The little blonde actress, who has remained "America's sweetheart," indicated firmly that the crash of her 13 years' married life with a husband equally famous on the silver screen will not end her plans for continuing her distinguished career.

Miss Pickford secretly boarded the Santa Fe California Limited train bound for the East shortly after the suit was filed.

"Mental suffering and anguish," she charged in her divorce complaint on file here, was caused her by the actions of Fairbanks, now hobnobbing with royalty in Europe.

WANDERINGS OF DOUG

Protracted absences from Pickfair of Fairbanks led to the final separation of the pair in May of this year, she charged.

Friends, reading between the lines of the divorce complaint, saw the real reason for the divorce in the divergence of the tastes of the two famous film players.

Life for Fairbanks, they said, meant social affairs with royalty, mad airplane dashes about the country, hunting trips into the Orient and all the athletic, fevered pace that only he could maintain. Movies, to him, were only incidental.

Life for Miss Pickford, they pointed out, meant the steady application of her talents to her screen career, which she has never allowed to languish since she turned to the films in 1910; quiet social gatherings at Pickfair with her intimate friends, and a host of charitable and social service activities that have endeared her to the nation.

SECOND DIVORCE SUIT

Thus for the second time in a year the "royal family of Hollywood has gone to the divorce courts. In the spring of the present year, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., son of Fairbanks by a previous marriage, and Joan Crawford separated and a little later Miss

LIQUOR STORE OPTION READY

The first option upon a Pittsburgh location for a liquor store will be signed today, Roy MacGregor, representing the Liquor Control Board here, revealed last night. Nine stores are to be opened in Pittsburgh.

More than 2,000 sites have been offered, MacGregor said, adding:

"Because of the speed with which the stores must be established—they will be open January 2 and are supposed to be ready on December 27—we will be unable to acknowledge the offers which for one reason or another are rejected. If, however, any one wants to know why his offer was turned down and will come into the office, at the Real Estate Board headquarters, I'll be glad to explain."

Law May Force Operation on Girl

Mouth Closing, Her Mother Fights Knife

Victim Pleads for Aid in Rare Ailment

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 9.—In the face of a mother's determined opposition, Judge Edmund Gausewitz, of Juvenile Court, today consulted with medical authorities before deciding whether to order an operation deemed necessary to save a 14-year-old girl's mouth from growing together.

Unless the surgical operation is performed, doctors advised, the ailment from which the girl is suffering, ankylosis of the jaw, will completely and permanently close her mouth.

Appearing before Judge Gausewitz with her ailing daughter, the mother refused to permit the operation.

The girl, now able to open her mouth less than half an inch, pleaded with her mother to allow the operation. She was scarcely able to speak, due to the impairment which, physicians say, is slowy but gradually closing her jaw completely.

Judge Gausewitz delayed his decision for a week to consult with medical authorities. The statutes give him complete authority to order the operation over the parent's refusal, the Judge said, and medical ethics support the court's argument.

Dr. M. N. Federspeil said he was willing to perform the operation without cost. He pointed out that the necessary surgery is not dangerous and, while it will not restore the girl's mouth to normal, it will stop progress of the disease and correct the condition noticeably.

Duke Perishes in Flames Of McCormick Home

WHITCHURCH, Hampshire, England, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Two house guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. McCormick, of the prominent Chicago family, were killed by a fire which destroyed the Herony, the McCormicks' country home early today.

The dead are the Duke de la Tremoille, French cavalry officer, and Capt. J. H. B. Rodney, of London, the husband of the former Frances Strickland Lovell, daughter of R. P. Oldham, of Seattle, Wash.

Mrs. Rodney was injured by a 20-foot jump to escape the flames. At the Royal Hampshire Hospital, Winchester, it was stated she was in a serious condition.

Hemmed in by the flames, the Rodneys were forced to jump from the bedroom window. Capt Rodney smashed it with his fists and assisted his wife to make the first leap. He followed.

The captain's arms were cut by the broken glass and his hands were nearly severed when he was picked up. He died soon after reaching the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, all the other guests except the Duke, and all the servants fled from the fire in their nightclothes.

No ladders were available, and they were forced to jump from their bedroom windows or to slide down the drainpipes.

Police found the Duke's body in the ruins of the house.

BATTLE TO FORCE ACTION ON SOCIAL BILLS IMPENDS

FIGHTS TO HAVE COMMITTEES DISCHARGED

House Split Seen With Socialist Ready to Push Issue

By ROBERT F. GORMAN
International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Dec. 9.—Around the word "immediately" hovers a tale of legislative intrigue and political maneuvering today which is scheduled to burst forth in all the bitterness of a factional fight on the House floor Monday night.

The ultimate aim is to attempt to discharge House committees holding social and labor bills at the special session of the General Assembly. The prime mover is Representative Darlington Hoopes, Berks County Socialist.

Committees, however, cannot be discharged from consideration of bills until they have met and had an opportunity to discuss them. The House Labor Committee, of which Representative Wilson L. Yeakel, Bucks, a "Grundy man," is chairman, holds most of the bills around which the fight revolves.

Hoopes last week took the first step toward forcing the issue by obtaining approval of his resolution demanding that all committees holding bills relating to old age pensions, unemployment insurance, prevention of evictions, minimum wages, maximum hours, child labor and railroad safety meet immediately.

In his campaign, Hoopes has the support of a majority of the Democratic bloc and an indefinite number of Republicans. This latter group is composed of those who jumped over the traces and refused to be bound to any steering program which entails sidetracking important elements of Gov. Gifford Pinchot's Social-Labor program.

During the week-end recess, the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor helped fan the smouldering flames by demanding that the Legislature discuss from the floor all the social and labor bills now before the General Assembly, even if it takes two or three months. This, at least, will guide the labor bloc.

OFFICIALS URGE TAX RELIEF

A resolution calling on the Legislature to reject bills to weaken "home rule" was passed yesterday by the thirteenth annual convention of the Allegheny County Association of Township Supervisors in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

Unanimously, the 150 officials present adopted a resolution requesting the Legislature to bring about a lower school tax rate on real estate. They also urged abatement of delinquent tax penalties, and appropriation of $11,000,000 to townships for construction and maintenance of second-class township roads, on a basis of $105 a mile.

Speakers included Louis Hagmeir, counsel in Harrisburg for boroughs and townships, who presented a three-point program favoring home rule, a reduction in state bureaucracy, and a return to the "main street" mode of living. Small-town government, he asserted, is cleaner than big city government.

U.S. SENDS NOTE TO DEBTORS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The United States has sent a formal diplomatic note to France and the other European debt defaulting nations reminding them they have payments totaling millions of dollars to make to this country on December 15.

This was learned today as it became increasingly apparent the United States would be the loser by around $300,000,000 on the total amount due from the debtor nations next Friday.

The purpose of the formal note sent each of the defaulting nations was to notify them they are expected to make some payment on the debts due this government.

Signed by Acting Secretary of State Phillips, the notes were sent to the diplomatic representatives here of France, Belgium, Poland, Estonia and Hungary.

MAIL WORKERS FIGHT CUTS

James F. Callagher, president of the Joint Association of Postal Employes of Central and Western Pennsylvania, today announced that the Central Labor Union had adopted resolutions asking Washington officials to aid postal employes.

Letters addressed to Congressmen and Senators stressed that the pay of postal employes has been reduced that automatic promotions have been suspended, and that a law now pending would limit tenure of service to 30 years.

They urged the officials to bring about an early repeal of the provision of the Emergency Act which authorizes salary reductions for government employes.

A meeting of the postal workers will be held tonight in the Federal Building.

JOHNSON SEES 6-HOUR DAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Eventually industry in the United States will operate under the six-hour day, predicted Gen. Hugh Johnson, recovery administrator, just before he left for a plane to Washington today. He said:

"Eventually we will have to come to it. Our figures show that if we return to the 1928-1929 standard of prosperity there would still be 4,000,000 unemployed. And there would be no other way to take up the slack without having a 30-hour week."

Asked for his reaction to Alfred E. Smith's reference to "baloney dollars," the administrator replied:

'What does Al Smith know about any kind of dollars?"

Women Urge Social Legislation Action

Pennsylvania legislators will receive letters from members of the Pittsburgh Legislative Council of the State Emergency Legislative Committee opposing adjournment before "all humanitarian legislation has been adequately considered." Decision to write the letters was made at a meeting yesterday.

The council includes 19 women's organizations.

'Cunnel' Puncher-Proof Only 'Baron' After All

The mint julep atmosphere surrounding "Cunnel" H. M. "Puncher-Proof" Fox was rapidly being dissipated today. The Cunnel, suh, it seems, must content himself with his self-created beer baronetcy.

It's all because Gov. Ruby Laffoon, of Kentucky, decided he was duped when he raised Fox to the status of full-fledged Kentucky Colonel. No one seemed to know how it happened.

From the Governor's office came the announcement that Foxie would be asked to surrender his commission as colonel. The Governor's secretary said the commission was granted on the purported recommendation of Robert F. Vaughan, president of the Louisville Board of Trade.

Right on the heels of that, Vaughan, in Frankfort, Ky., said he did not even know Foxie, and certainly didn't recommend him.

Cunnel Puncher-Proof was back in Pittsburgh today, presumably administering to his affairs as part owner of a brewery in Reading. There was little likelihood he would be shorn of his title of "Baron," that being one of his own creation.

He came home with the Kentucky commission after disposing of a court action in Indianapolis in which he was fined $50 for taking a carload of beer into Indiana without paying the state tax.

TAX BILLS PERIL CITY PAYROLL

The Christmas pay of about 5,000 city employes is jeopardized by two bills pending before the Legislature, Dr. James P. Kerr, city controller, said yesterday. The bills, he said, would, if passed, relieve delinquent taxpayers of penalties.

The December payroll is approximately $370,000, and is due in less than seven days, he said, and there is only $185,000 in the city treasury. Receipts between now and the day that the payrolls must be met are uncertain, due to the assembly measures causing many delinquent taxpayers to wait developments on the two measures, he added.

One of the measures relieves taxpayers from penalties of interest if the levies are met within two years. It was sponsored by Senator James J. Coyne.

The other bill exempts the taxpayer from interest or penalties if arrangements are made with the city treasurer for installment payments before February of next year. The bill now is in committee before the assembly.

LIQUOR STORE OPTION READY

liquor licenses issued December 2 and 4 were in the mails to county treasurers from the Department of Revenue today.

The checks were the first cleared by the department since the Liquor Control Board began functioning eight days ago. The money represented the fees charged hotels, clubs and restaurants for licenses to dispense liquor.

A total of 1,881 licenses have been issued by the board, 1,087 to restaurants, 484 to hotels, 308 to clubs and two to importers.

High Prices May Bring 'Whisky Trust' Probe

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(INS.)—Congressional investigation of the alleged "whisky trust" may be demanded as the result of complaints of high prices being charged for liquor in many sections of the country.

Representative John J. O'Connor (Dem.), of New York, a Congressional wet, announced today he was considering presenting a resolution calling for an investigation.

Meantime Joseph H. Choate, Jr., liquor administrator, disclosed the FACA has begun an investigation into liquor prices.

The Federal Alcohol Control Administration, however, he said, would first give the industry a chance to clean up its own business. Information was received here that officials of the National Distillers' Products Corporation were promising $1.50-a-quart whisky exclusive of state taxes in the near future.

STABILIZE CASH IMMEDIATELY, REED URGES

Uncertainty Balks Big Flood of Business, Senator Asserts

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Uncertainty regarding the gold contents of the dollar is blamed by United States Senator David A. Reed for delays in letting "thousands of business contracts" throughout the country. He said in an interview last night:

"If I were President Roosevelt I'd stabilize the dollar immediately. Yes, I'd stabilize it tonight.

URGES END OF DOUBT

"The important thing is not whether the United States is going to have a dollar worth 60 or 100 cents, but that there be some certainty right away of what is the value of a dollar, because about this hinges millions of dollars in commercial contracts and thousands of jobs."

Concerning inflation, Pennsylvania's senior Senator said that "if Congress were meeting today I think we would have wild-eyed inflation, mainly because of the Senators and Congressmen from west of Ohio."

He was asked:

"How about the South?"

Reed replied:

"Well, down in Virginia is Carter Glass, undoubtedly the outstanding proponent of a stable dollar."

Manufacturers Seek Stabilization Assurance

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt had today a recommendation from the National Association of Manufacturers that he stabilize the dollar on a gold basis as soon as he sees fit and that he give definite assurance this stabilization will take place even though the gold content of the dollar be modified.

This recommendation was contained in a resolution adopted by the association last night, which said it "recognizes that the wise adjustment of the monetary standard of the United States to the changed economic conditions" is one of the "vital factors of the President's recovery program."

Another resolution relating to the NRA, which was adopted unanimously, praised President Roosevelt's "decisive leadership" in meeting "the most serious economic crisis in our history."

NAZIS EASING ARYAN CLAUSE

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—The Associated Press was informed reliably today that the Aryan clause—one of the main issues in the Nazi German Christians' present Protestant church strife—will be dropped from the new evangelical church law.

With removal of restrictions of non-Aryan members, the long drawn out quarrel in the church generally is expected to be smoothed considerably.

The clause, as applied to the church, provided among other things that non-aryans could not hold church office.

In accordance with the recent order of Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, the Rev. Joachim Hossenfelder, executive head of the Nazi German Christians, todays announced dissolution of the movement as a "church political body."

TUGWELL BILL HELD PERIL TO TRADE, NRA

Business Chiefs Fight Plan for Advertising Dictatorship

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Enactment of the Tugwell bill, with its provisions for a food, drug and cosmetic advertising dictatorship, would hamstring the national recovery program, publishers, advertisers and manufacturers told the Senate Commerce Committee hearing yesterday.

Increased unemployment and greater dislocation of industry would result, with attendant hardship on farmers and retail merchants, as well as important groups more directly affected by its restrictive features, witnesses testified.

BANKRUPTCY PERIL SEEN

Charging that the measure would place many industries at the mercy of a bureaucracy, C. C. Parlin, spokesman for the National Publishers' Association, said that its enactment would throw into bankruptcy a large part of the publishing business of the country.

Similar criticism was lodged with the committee, which is conducting the hearings, by William L. Daley, representative of the National Editorial Association, a body of 12,000 newspapers mostly serving towns and small cities.

Mrs. William Dix Warburg, chairman of the Anti-Crime Crusade of New York, protested vigorously against "the excesses of power given to one man"—the Secretary of Agriculture—under the Tugwell bill.

PLAN HELD NRA MENACE

Roy C. Schlotterer, representing the New York Board of Trade, told the committee the measure would defeat the purpose of the NRA by robbing industries with $17,500,000,000 invested capital and 1,775,000 employes of a fair chance to operate under NRA and Anton Robb, of the United Anton Robob, of the United Medicine Manufacturers of America, asserted enactment of the bill with its manifold restrictions would ruin his industry. He deplored the giving of such dictatorial powers to the Secretary of Agriculture.

Fear that valuable trade secrets would be disclosed to commerce rivals was expressed by spokesmen for the National Confectioners' Association of the United States and the American Spice Trade Association, which vigorously attacked the projected legislation.

FAVOR TUGWELL SUBSTITUTE

Amendments to the 1906 food and drugs law to replace the Tugwell Bill were urged at a meeting last night in the Keystone Athletic Club, of the "Minute Men," an organization which includes firms and individuals interested in opposition to the measure.

The bill was declared unconstitutional by W. B. Wylie, chairman, on the grounds that manufacturers would have to accept the ruling of the Secretary of Agriculture instead of the courts.

Dr. A. B. Adams declared the Department of Agriculture's objection to the existing laws was that it does not apply to advertising, other than labels, nor to cosmetics.

CLASH ON MINE PAY LOOMS

Open disagreement between United Mine Workers' leaders and two subsidiary captive mine operators of the U. S. Steel Corporation was expected today, following receipt of a reply to the union "suggestions" for wage contracts.

The National Mining Company's reply to "suggestions" made by Philip Murray, international vice president of the U. M. W., was contained in a letter mailed yesterday which Murray expected would be on his desk today.

It was understood that the letter contained counter "suggestions," modifying the union demand for checkoff, elimination of the strike penalty clause and denying any recognition of U. M. W. officials.

These "suggestions," Vice President Murray indicated, would be refused and the negotiations begun two days ago brought to an end. In such an event, Murray said, the union's only course would be an appeal to the National Labor Board in Washington.

Yesterday's conference between Murray and the three District No. 4 officers chosen to represent the union men at Maxwell mine of the H. C. Frick Coke Company was a repetition of the meeting the day before with officials of the National Mining Company's No. 3 mine at Muse. Murray and his associates left with the Maxwell superintendent, M. I. Burriss, a list of similar "suggestions" and a copy of the Appalachian agreement entered into between the union and commercial operators.

After Mr. Ford, having had his shoes shined for the occasion, called on John D. Rockefeller, creator of Standard Oil, he said to this writer:

"When I saw Rockefeller's face I knew what made Standard Oil."

When you see Henry Ford's face and watch him studying an engine, you know what made this car that goes eighty-five miles an hour, if you are foolish enough to let it.

NOW FOR the trip to Mohave desert through the mountains back of Ventura, then, turning west and south, through San Bernardino and the Cajon Pass down to the Southern Pacific express at Colton and another trip from ocean to ocean.

Be sure to see this new 1934 Ford eight-cylinder car and, as Walter Chrysler says, be sure also "to see all three," meaning his and two others. Better than that, see all the cars, the higher and lower priced. You might also look at the airplanes.

THE MAIN thing is, get a new car. Times are getting better. Dr. Barham, George G. Young and Clarence Lindner, three greatest newspaper business geniuses on this coast, all can prove it to you.

Think that it was only a few years ago when Winton, pioneer in automobiling, expressed the hope that he might live to sell a six-cylinder car for two thousand dollars, and you can buy this one with eight cylinders far below one thousand.

BOARD IGNORED AT WEIRTON

ton, where he and William J. Long, leader of the recent Weirton strike, conferred with labor leaders. Miller said the situation would be left in the hands of the Labor Board.

The company union's rules committee, headed by John Larkin, also was home from Washington and reported it had been unable to reach an agreement with the Labor Board on the manner of conducting the election next week. A telegram sent by the committee to Senator Robert F. Wagner, Labor Board chairman, said:

"At a conference of employes' representatives today, it was voted unanimously to reject rules of election submitted by Labor Board and carry on under our own rules of election as submitted to you, and we will appreciate supervision of National Labor Board."

The Amalgamated Association claimed the right to nominate representatives by a petition bearing the signatures of 10 workers.

Larkin said the petition plan made it necessary for the men to declare their preference of representatives, which might subject them to criticism or intimidation.

SECURITIES ACT CHANGES LOOM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Rising sentiment in Congress for consideration of modifications in the securities act and the bank deposit insurance law was reported today by members of the Senate Banking Committee.

The senators find that criticism of the securities act is beginning to have an effect, and that while they personally oppose weakening fundamental provisions of the law they are willing to consider some changes.

Members of the committee indicated also they would give serious consideration to the recommendation by Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the Chase National Bank, for modification or elimination of the permanent deposit insurance plan scheduled to go into operation next July 1.

Alumni Group Will Hear Mayor-Elect

Mayor-elect William N. McNair will address members of the Rodef Shalom Alumni Association at its monthly meeting tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. The meeting will be held in the Temple Alumni Building, formerly the Jackman House Annex of the Temple.

EXTRA SESSION SPEEDS VOTE FRAUD TRIAL

Court Sits Today to Hear Third Ward Witnesses

To speed the trial of five election officers of the Sixth District, Third Ward, and Constable Harry Kart, accused of falsifying returns at the general election in November, 1932, a morning session of court was being held today. Judge F. P. Schoonmaker announced court will adjourn at 12:30 p. m.

The government rested late yesterday afternoon after calling more than 70 witnesses, a large majority being voters in the district. Attorney R. M. McWade in the opening address for the defense said it will be shown that nothing irregular or wrong was done by members of the board in counting the ballots and also that Constable Kart was not at the polling place the night of the election, as was testified by two government witnesses.

BOARD DEFENDANTS

In addition to Kart, the defendants are Anthony Sibilia, judge; Jack Frankel and Henry Silverstein, inspectors; Davey Slutzky and Harry Kalson, clerks, of the board.

Constable Kart, testifying in his own behalf, said he is a resident of the district and voted there at 3 p. m. and accounted for his whereabouts up until 9 a. m. the following day. He said he left the polling place immediately after casting his vote.

He testified he spent the night at the office of Alderman Sol S. Goldstein, 1919 Murray avenue, at Goldstein's request, to receive ballot boxes of the Fourteenth Ward.

Joseph Gady, 1546 Foreside place, and Samuel Meltzer, of Crawford street, Democratic watchers, testified they were ordered from the polling place after the polls closed, and Gady said he saw Kart count the ballots.

DEMOCRATIC VOTES

In opening for the prosecution Wednesday Attorney Earl F. Reed, special government prosecutor, said the government would show that more than 36 persons voted straight Democratic ballots, indicating that number was found in the ballot box. N. D. Zimmerman, a special government investigator, testified he examined the contents of the ballot box in the courtroom and found 53 indicated straight Democratic ballots. Gady had testified he was told by a member of the board that there were 61 straight Democratic ballots.

James Crockett, Negro, of Foreside place, a government witness, said he had assistance in recording his vote for a straight Democratic ticket on a vote machine. Defense Attorney Sebastian C. Pugliese asked him if he did not know that vote machines were not used that election.

PROBE RULED OUT

Defense counsel sought to get into the testimony records of the congressional investigation of the Muldowney-Felix congressional contest, but was overruled.

Attorney Reed, upon his return from Washington, said no plans have been made for listing the trials of State Senator James J. Coyne and other political leaders under indictment for alleged election frauds at the contemplated special session of court in February. First Assistant United States Attorney James I. Marsh made the same statement.

Other election board members will be tried before the case against the political leaders is listed.

Vote Judge Held In Washington, Pa.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Accused of tampering with ballots in the November 7 election, Jesse Leber, judge of election in the third Washington precinct, is held in $1,000 bail for court. He waived a hearing yesterday.

Petitions asking ballot recounts in Mt. Pleasant and Peter's townships were heard by Judge John F. Carmichael.

Mt. Lebanon Board Picks New President

A. C. McMillan, member of the Mt. Lebanon School Board for eight years, has been elected president, it was announced today.

Elmer E. E. Stewart, former president and member of the board for 21 years, resigned because of poor health. To fill the vacancy Mrs. Lena Z. Kenney was appointed.

McNair Shows Another Talent by Crooning

Another of the many sides of Mayor-elect William N. McNair stood revealed today.

He's a crooner—of a sort—and plays a guitar.

The Mayor-elect gave a demonstration of his musical talents at the monthly meeting of the Stanton Heights Community Association in Sunnyside School last night. It was given after Chairman Samuel Robinson had been slightly boastful of the musical talent of the Tenth Ward.

When McNair finished his impromptu program, he said:

"We're pretty hot in the Eleventh Ward ourselves."

In his address he told his listeners they were to blame if taxes were too high and urged them to do something about the proposals now before the Legislature to extend the graded tax.

John M. Huston, councilman-elect who preceded McNair, promised his aid in "cleaning house" at the City-County Building. He said:

"Every time I see a Coyne head I'm going to shoot at it. If McNair will let me, I'm going to go down the payroll lists and slash off every Coyne ally I find—man or woman—off they'll go."

Walter R. Demmler, also a councilman-elect, also spoke.

INVENTORY TO LEARN MELLON ESTATE TOTAL BEGUN

DELAY CERTAIN DUE TO EXTENT OF HOLDINGS

World-Wide Interests May Send Sum Above 200 Millions

The extensive and complicated estate of the late Richard B. Mellon, a Croesus of the modern industrial and banking world, was being inventoried today, attorneys for the Mellon group said.

But weeks will be required before the completed inventory will be made up and the heirs, Mrs. Jennie King Mellon, the widow; Sarah Mellon Scaife, daughter, and Richard King Mellon, son, will know how many millions or hundreds of millions are theirs.

The will, the attorneys said, was "only formally probated yesterday." It left the huge Mellon interests virtually intact.

INTERESTS EXTENSIVE

One of the counsel explained:

You know the interests of Mr. Mellon were varied and extensive. There will be many details necessary before anyone will know just what comprises the estate."

And if reports of past years are true, the estate, which includes interests in oil in the South American republics and elsewhere, railroads and industries in the Orient, banking, trade and commerce in Europe and Russia and in this country and Canada would exceed $200,000,000.

The will left all but $1,350,000 to widow, son and daughter. It decreed that $1,100,000 was to go into a trust fund, known as "the Jenrich trust," which the executors were to spend on the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research—that classic Pantheonic structure at Bellefield and Fifth avenues, construction of which has been slowly progressing for several years. This trust fund was formed December 31, 1930, with his heirs and Harry A. Phillips as trustees.

FUNDS FOR EMPLOYES

Then it provided that $100,000 was to go to the employes in the residence, 6500 Fifth avenue

And $150,000 was to be distributed to the "personal" employes of R. B. Mellon and his brother, A. W. Mellon, with his own employes getting larger shares than the joint employes.

Suggesting only that consideration be given to the length of service of the employes, he left to the executors full power to distribute as they would. To these executors he devoted most of the 12 pages of the will. They are his widow, his son and his daughter, and the Union Trust Company.

The close association with his wife and with his brother, Andrew, was apparent from one provision, in which Mr. Mellon explained that he and his wife and his brother "have certain definite plans which I intend shall be carried out."

CHURCH PROVISION SEEN

This applied to his benefactions and institutional projects.

Included in these, it was understood, is the East Liberty Presbyterian Church. It was explained that Mrs. Mellon and the banker had jointly sponsored the edifice, and that she would see that the work was carried on.

The document stated:

"It is on this account that I made in this will no charitable bequests."

The three heirs will share alike in the huge interests, the will provided.

It makes Richard Mellon, in his early thirties, one of the world's most eligible and wealthy bachelors.

Mrs. Scaife, only daughter, is married and has two children.

PROVIDES FOR OBLIGATIONS

No mention is made of bequests to Andrew Mellon. Associates said that one never made a definite business decision without agreement of the other. The will provided that executors, upon receipt of satisfactory proof, recognize obligations to those who had interest in property or profits, title to which was in R. B. Mellon's name.

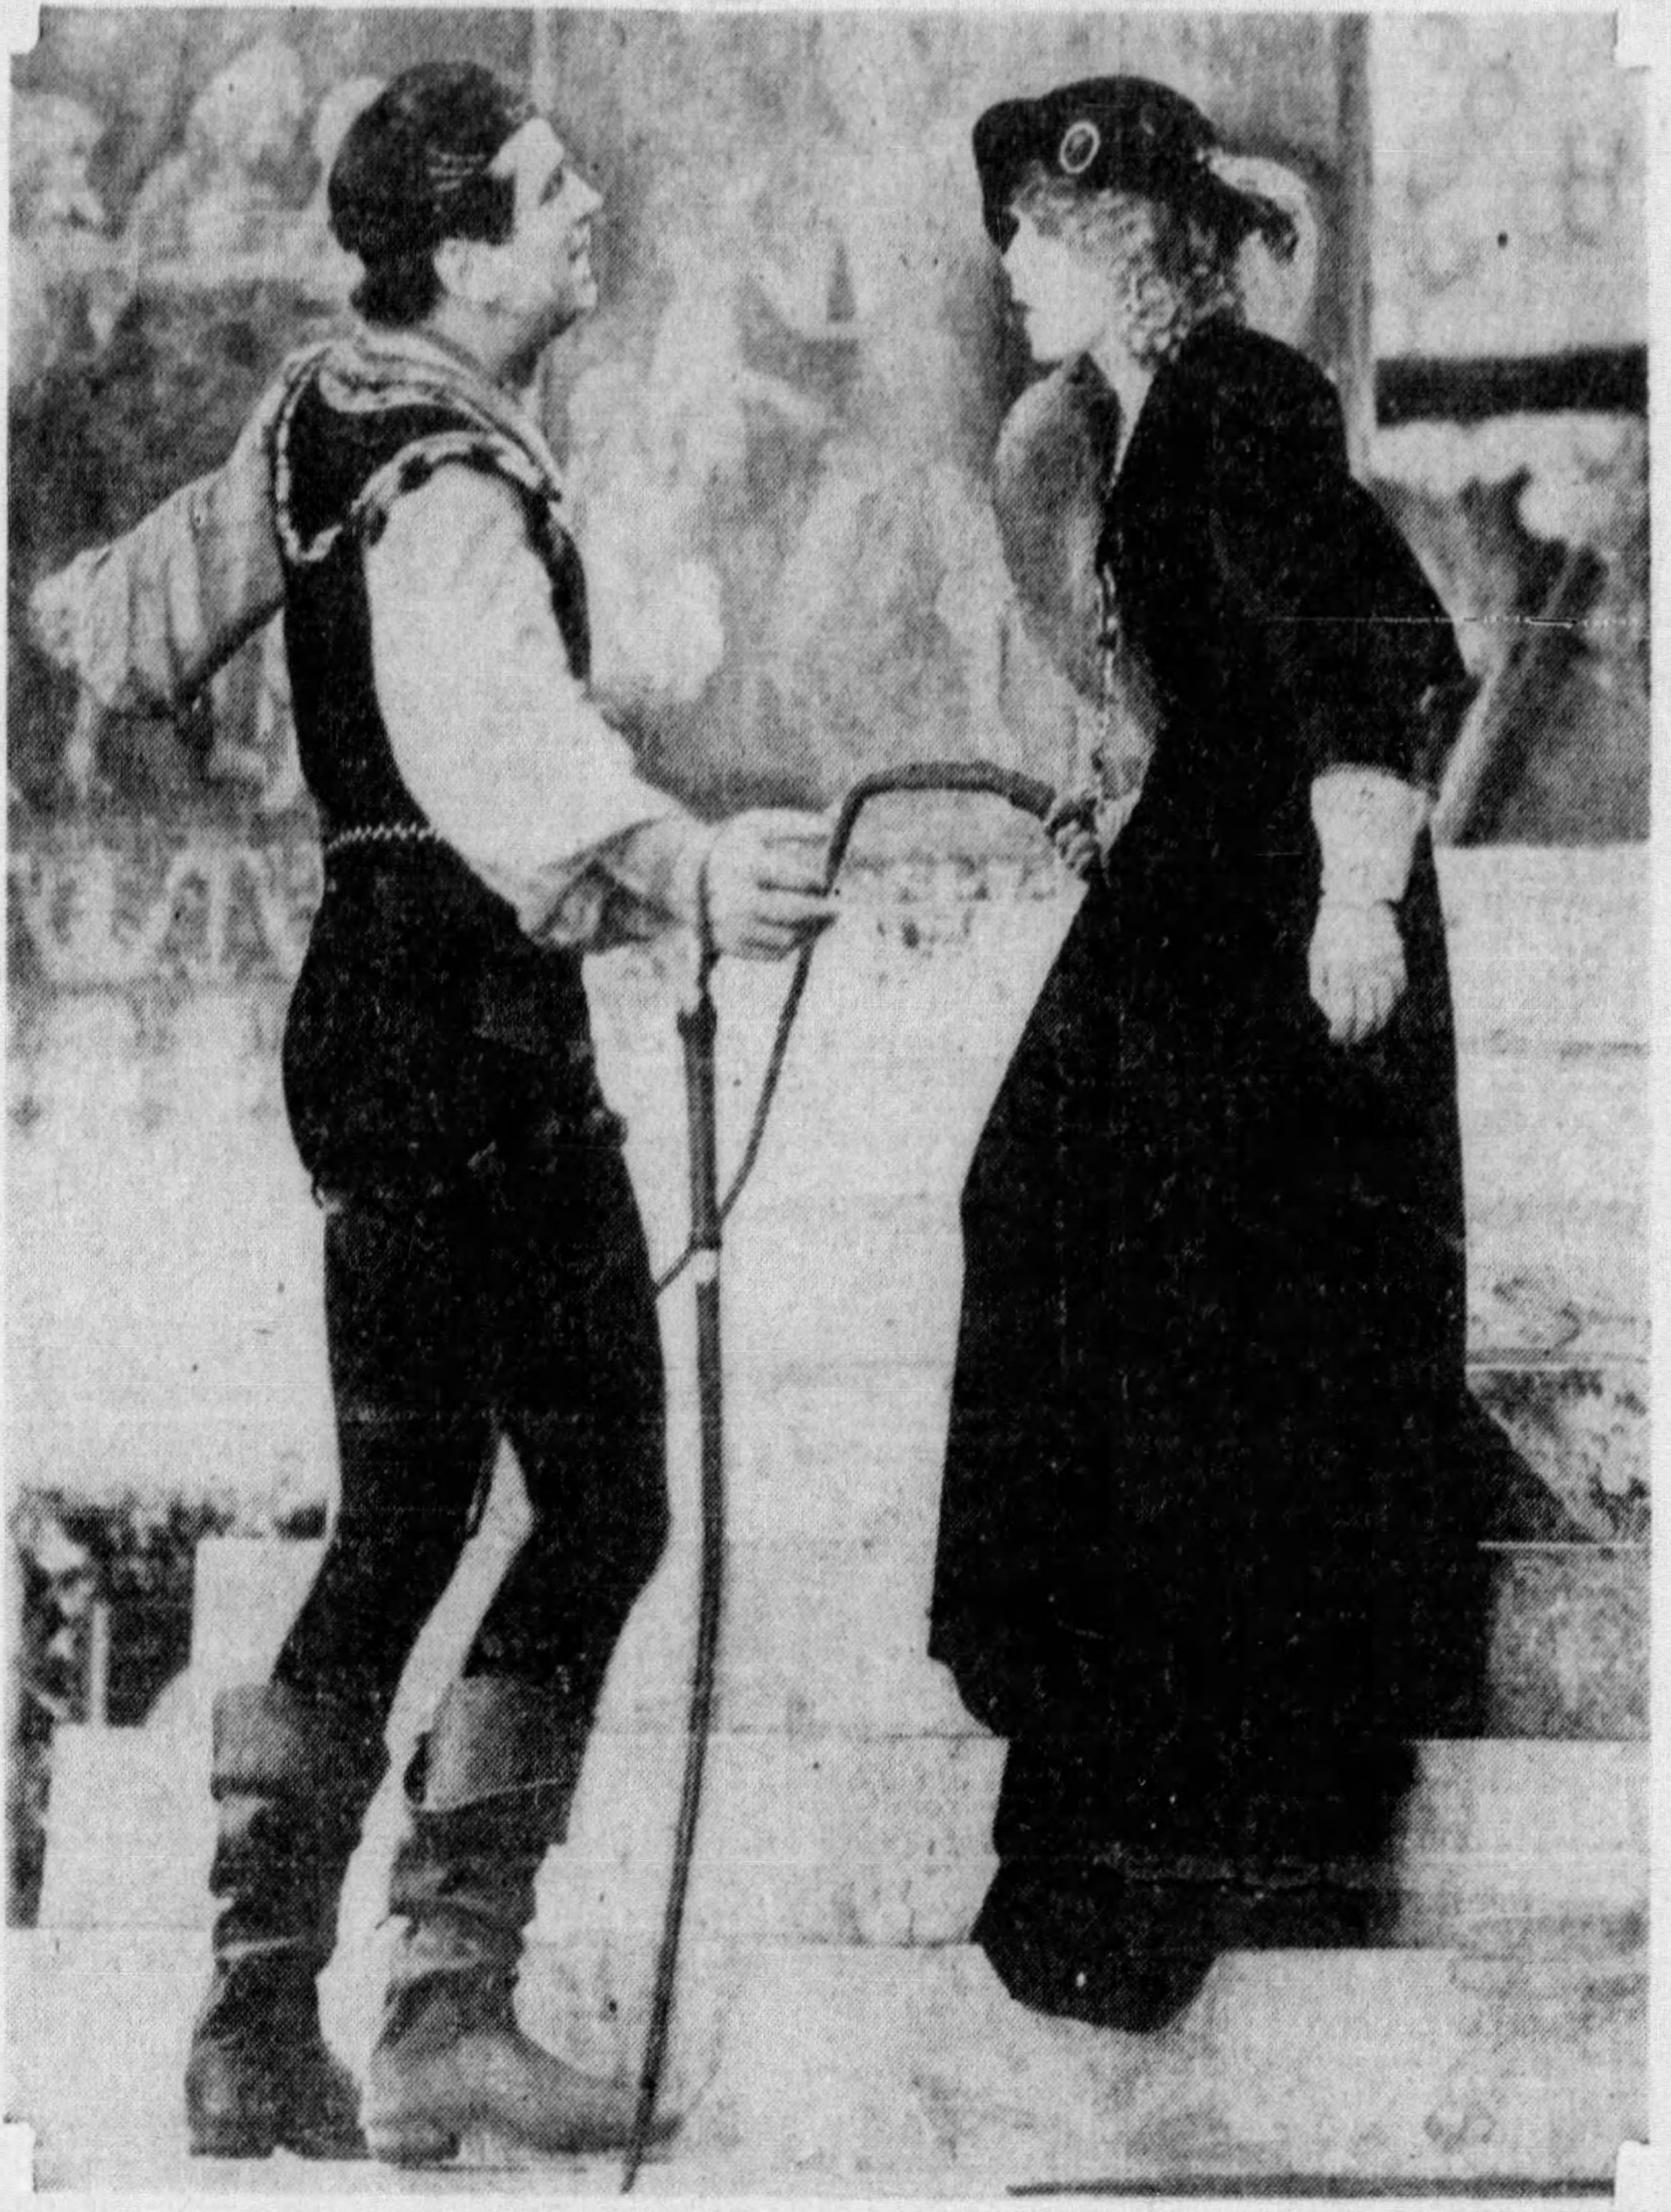
When Andrew Mellon was secretary of the Treasury he was forced to relinquish his title to certain businesses and divorce himself from banking and other interests.

The will was executed August 11, 1932. Thomas L. Orr and Lawrence N. Murray witnessed it.

Charles J. McBride was named appraiser for the state, which gets two per cent under the inheritance tax laws. The federal government may get 45 per cent—that being the amount set for inheritances over $10,000,000.

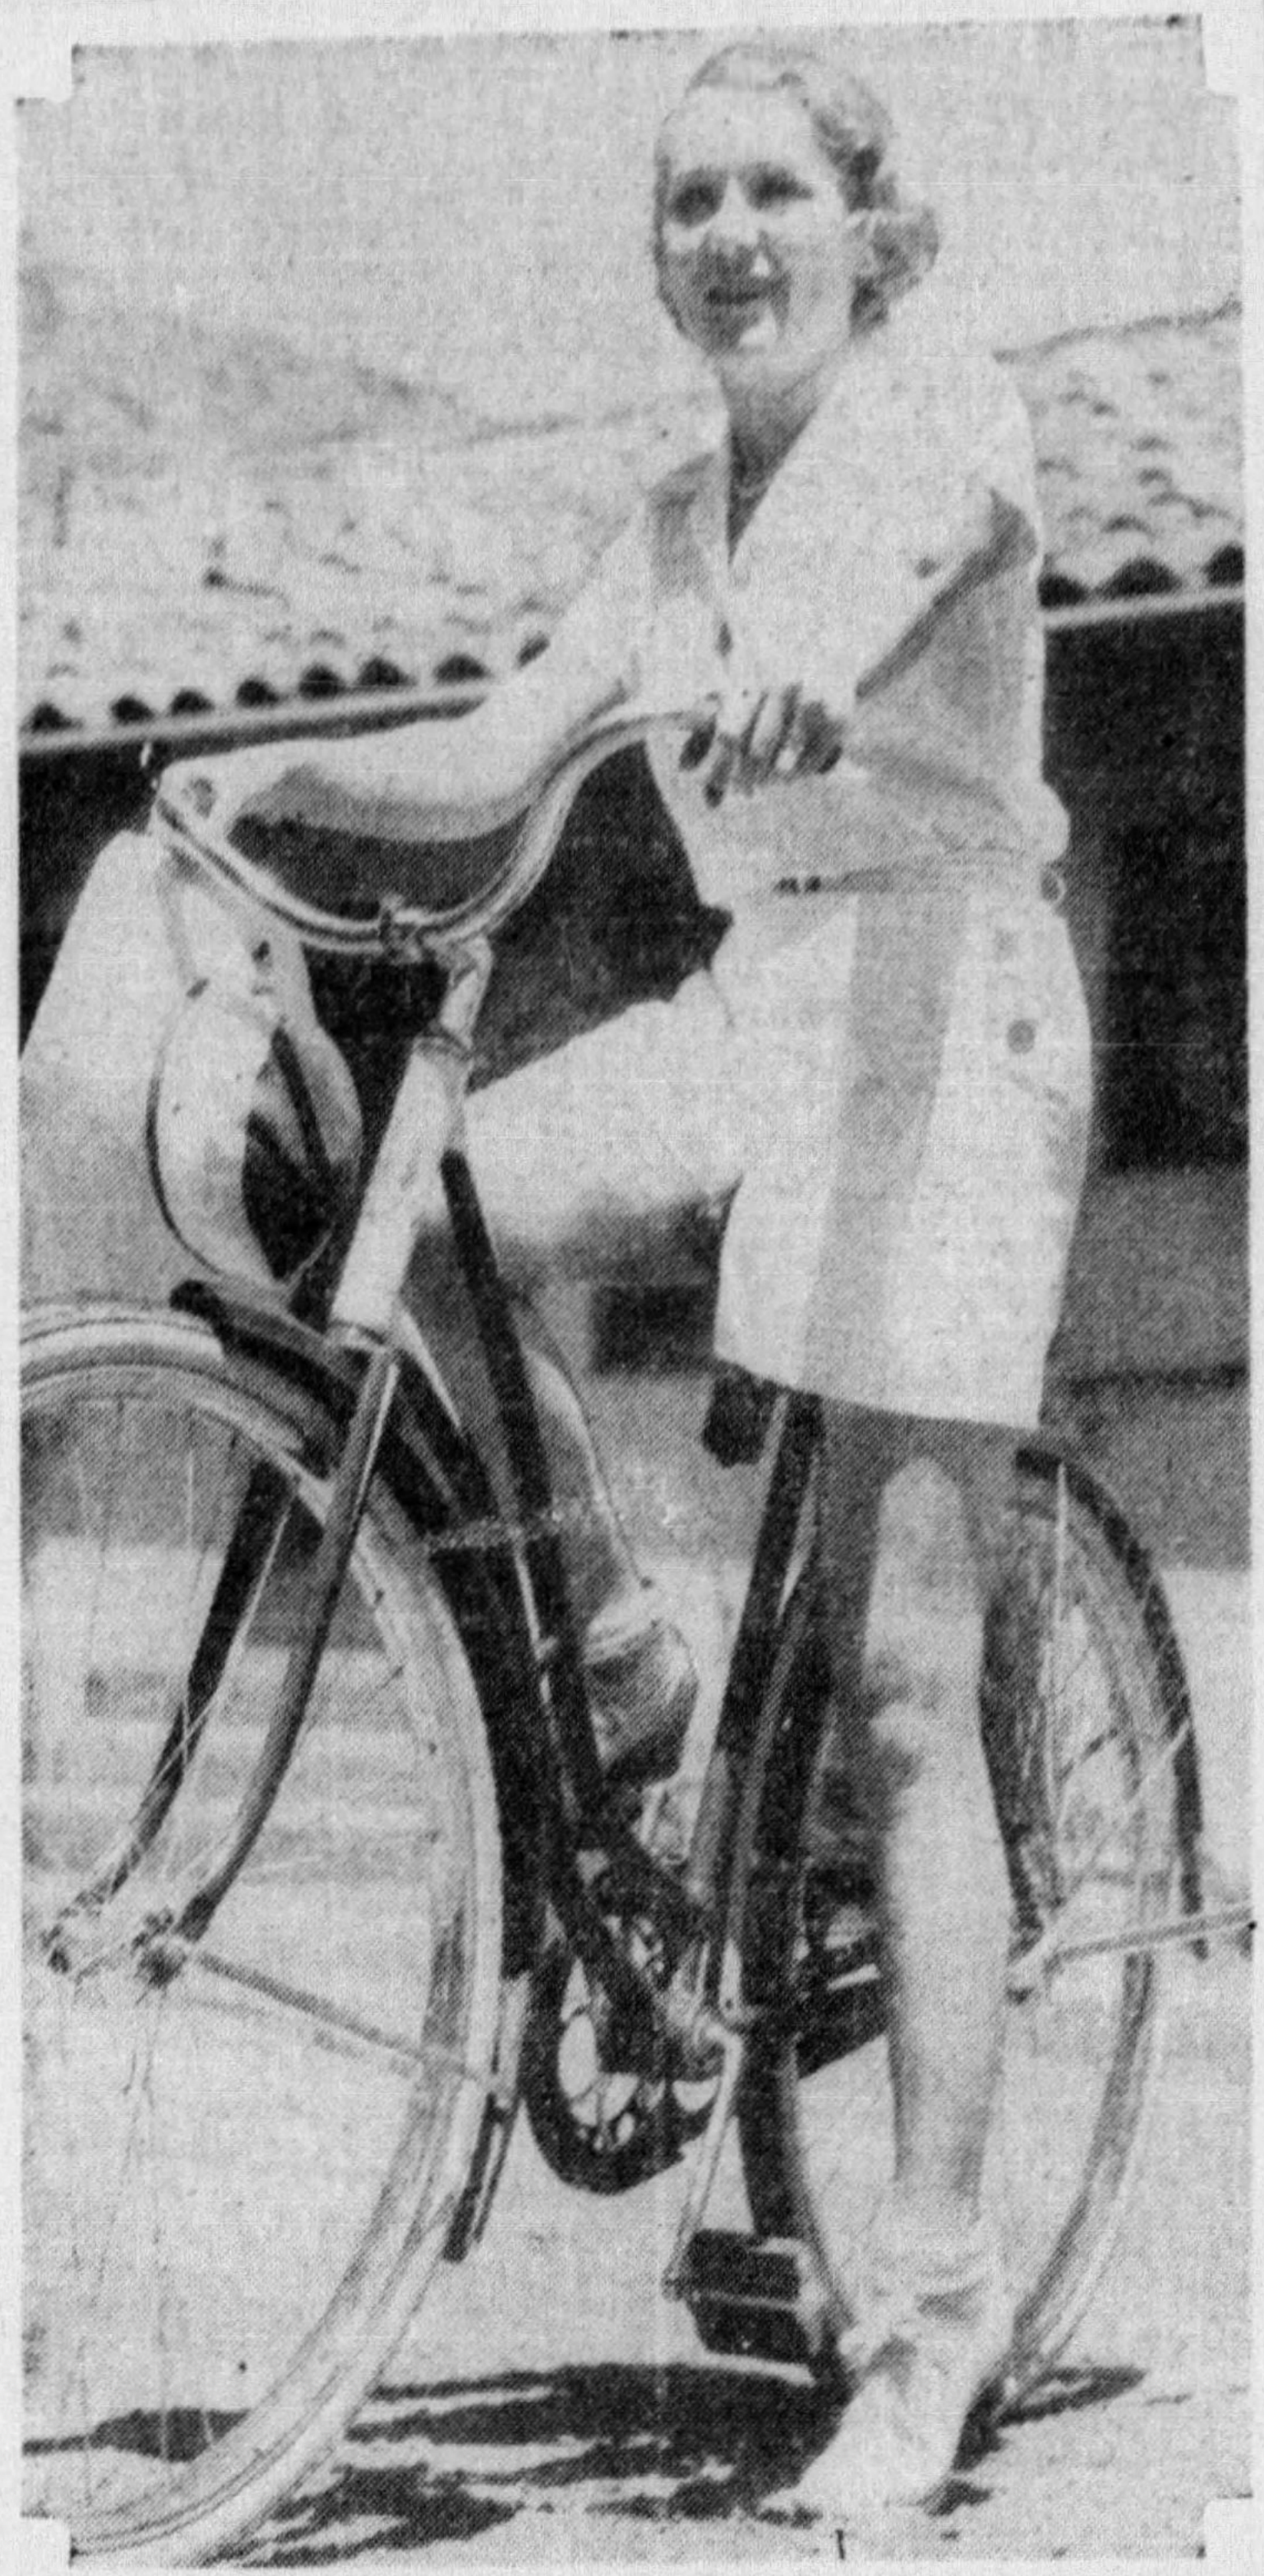
Some of the estate, it was understood, was set up in trusts.

'Mental Suffering and Anguish' -:- Mary's Reel Life and Real



DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS AND MARY PICKFORD IN A SCENE FROM 'THE TAMING OF THE SHREW'

A scene from one of the films in which the happily-married Fairbankses co-starred—a film in which Mary, cast as "the Shrew," underwent great "mental suffering and anguish" before her "taming." Now she charges just that in her real life divorce suit.



MARY PICKFORD ON A RECENT DESERT RESORT VACATION

Miss Pickford on a recent sojourn at Palm Springs—during the months since her permanent separation last May from Douglas Fairbanks, at present hobnobbing abroad with the nobiilty.

Mary Pickford Divorcing Doug

Crawford obtained a divorce in Los Angeles.

The arrival in Hollywood from a European sojourn of Douglas, Jr., only a few hours before Miss Pickford filed suit for divorce against his father, was stamped today as a "strict coincidence" by the handsome young actor. He said:

"I say it was strictly coincidental because I brought no message from father and did not see Miss Pickford before her suit was filed.

"I want to say as little as possible about the whole affair as it is none of my business."

Young Fairbanks arrived by airplane from the East. He has been in England for the past few months, where both he and his father have been making moving pictures.

Since the separation of Miss Pickford and Fairbanks became known in July, there have been constant rumors—rumors that a divorce was impending or that a reconciliation had been effected.

Miss Pickford met these whisperings with silence.

BROADWAY STAGE PLANS

On Thursday of this week, however, came a brief announcement from her office which Hollywood now sees as the prelude to the end. It was to the effect that Miss Pickford would leave Hollywood for New York, where there is a "strong possibility" that she will appear on the Broadway stage. The announcement said:

"Miss Pickford will not reveal the name of the producer of the play until it has been definitely scheduled for production."

Miss Pickford isolated herself after the suit was filed and refused to discuss further her action against Fairbanks which was revealed with the following brief announcement:

"For several years my married life has become increasingly unhappy. Being convinced that under existing circumstances the future offers no solution, it is with the deepest regret that I have filed a suit for divorce."

At the time their separation became known she made her feelings clear, declaring:

"I love my husband. I don't want to say there will be a divorce. Divorce from someone you love as dearly and tenderly as I have loved Douglas for 16 years is almost an unbearable thought."

Doug Silent on Divorce; Returning to U. S. Soon

By HARRY K. REYNOLDS

International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—"Mr. Fairbanks will continue his dignified silence regarding personal matters."

This statement was issued today "in behalf of" Douglas Fairbanks by his London representatives following filing of a suit for divorce by Mary Pickford in Los Angeles.

The statement, understood to have been issued after these representatives had been in telephonic communication with Fairbanks at St. Moritz, Switzerland, this morning, contained no further reference to the divorce itself, but revealed plans of the famous screen actor to return to California in the near future.

There he will build, on his Southern California ranch, a new home, having deeded Pickfair, Beverly Hills mansion in which the couple long ruled as "America's Sweethearts," over to Miss Pickford.

Ill Boy Grieves For Runaway Pet Dog

Elsie Mae Elmo, 7, and her brother, Eddie, 3, of 76 Standish boulevard, Seminole Hills, Mt. Lebanon, were grieving today for their terrier, Mitzi, which disappeared yesterday. They are the children of E. D. Elmo.

Eddie is sick in bed with grip, and repeatedly asks for Mitzi.

Mrs. Elmo said she let the dog out of the house yesterday morning and it failed to return.

Mary's Suit for Divorce Ends 'Best Love Story'

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Concise and formal phrases of a divorce complaint today wrote the unhappy finale to a romance that for years was regarded as Hollywood's most beautiful love story.

Mary Pickford, who, through her numerous roles in motion pictures gained the title of "America's Sweetheart," sought her freedom from Douglass Fairbanks, known to millions of movie fans as a swashbuckling hero of the films.

Miss Pickford and Fairbanks saw their romance begin in the closing months of the World War when they, together with their intimate friend, Charlie Chaplin, film comedian, toured the country in a Liberty Loan drive.

She had been married to Owen Moore and had divorced him. Fairbanks was married at the time to Beth Sully Fairbanks, but they had virtually separated.

Shortly after Fairbanks was freed by divorce from his first wife, he and Miss Pickford were married.

Both declaring they were blissfully happy, Miss Pickford and Fairbanks built Pickfair, palatial home atop a Hollywood hill. Both continued their film work, but only once appeared together. That was in the film version of "The Taming of the Shrew."

Friends said the first signs of trouble appeared in that picture. Miss Pickford's role as Katharine became virtually a secondary one. Fairbanks "stole the show," friends said, and failed to appreciate that his wife had sacrificed her own stardom.

Auto Injures Man, Driver Arrested

Joseph Galanbas, 50, of Presto, was in serious condition in the Mercy Hospital today with injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile in Thoms Run road, Presto, last night.

Rocco Zatena, 20, of Sturgeon, arrested by Constable C. P. Altmeyer, of Heidelberg, was released pending the outcome of Galanbas' injuries.

Police Deny Deputy 'Shot Up' Restaurant

Reports that a Woods Run restaurant had been "shot up" by William N. (Lump) McLaughlin, of 1420 North Franklin street, deputy sheriff and Twenty-first Ward constable, were discredited last night by police. They said McLaughlin's gun was accidentally discharged when he showed it to a friend, Edward Waldron, of 1334 Pennsylvania avenue.

Reunited in Their Little Home

MR. AND MRS. BENJAMIN ZECK . . . . HE WAS CONVICTED, SENTENCED, SUDDENLY FREED

Mrs. Zeck serving breakfast today upon her arrival from Cleveland with her husband—arrested in Pittsburgh, tried in Cleveland, sentenced to 10 to 20 years for a robbery that suddenly turned out to be the fake story of a gasoline station attendant who was short in his accounts. The attendant confessed. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

DEATH SADDENS ZECK RETURN

Cleared of a Cleveland robbery for which he had been sentenced to serve 10 to 20 years in prison, Benny (Giggsy) Zeck, 25, was back home today, saddened by the misfortune which trailed him en route to Pittsburgh last night.

An automobile driven by Sam Brushone, of 1030 Gibbon street, in which Zeck and his wife, Anna, were returning to Pittsburgh, struck and killed Marie Leech, 73, near her home in Imperial, according to Deputy Coroner Robert D. Newman. Informed that the victim stepped in front of the car, Newman released Brushone on a $1,000 bond pending an inquest.

Zeck was released from the county jail at Cleveland yesterday following the reported confession of a murder suspect that he "framed" Zeck to cover up shortages in accounts at a Cleveland gasoline station, where the alleged slayer was an attendant.

Peter Treadway, 39, identified Zeck as one of two men who robbed him of $300, July 22. Zeck was arrested in Pittsburgh.

Treadway, who served time in the Eastern Penitentiary on a murder charge, is now held as a suspect in the murder of Mrs. Ruth Gilmore Steese, Cleveland social worker.

Zeck, First Ward politician, and his wife live at 1502 Forbes street.

BRIDGE FLAWS TO BE SOUGHT

Moving to prevent any recurrence of the Rankin Bridge disaster, County Commissioners have authorized hiring of engineers to inspect and report on 10 old county bridges.

The action followed the revelation by Director of Highways Thomas O. Hasley that the Pittsburgh Railways Company has been warned in 1931 not to run heavy work cars over the Rankin, Glenwood and Homestead bridges.

In a later statement, the railways company asserted Hasley's advice had been followed, and that the accident occurred not on the bridge, but on one of its approaches. Two work cars and a truck fell 40 feet.

Outside engineers are to be hired for the inspection because of insufficient county personnel. Minor bridges designated by Hasley will also be examined.

Passenger in Auto Hit by Train Hurt

Edward Burkett, 22, of Creighton, a passenger in an automobile driven by Floyd Wilson, of Creighton, struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad train at Creighton crossing, near Tarentum, last night, was in the Allegheny Valley Hospital, Tarentum, today suffering from a fractured skull.

Wilson was only slightly injured.

MURDERED BABY FOR STUPIDITY, SAYS FATHER

Man Moved in Fear of Mob Admits Beating Son to Death

Universal Service.

DENVER, Col., Dec. 9.—Confession that he beat his 3-year-old son, Donald, to death "because he seemed so dumb," has been made by Donald K. Smith, 31 Arapahoe County trapper and truck farmer, authorities said today.

Fearing possible mob violence, Sheriff E. F. Monzingo transferred Smith from the Arapahoe County Jail to the Denver jail late yesterday.

At the time of the child's death Smith told authorities the boy had been injured fatally when he got in the way of a door which Smith suddenly flung open while carrying fire wood into the house.

FACES MURDER CHARGE

Deputy District Attorney A. T. Monsin, of Arapahoe County, is preparing to file first degree murder charges against Smith.

When Smith returned from a grocery store, the child danced at his feet, asking for candy. Smith asked him when he had eaten last. Smith said:

"I got mad because he kept saying he had just eaten supper when it was breakfast. I pulled him into the bedroom. He pleaded with me, saying, 'Daddy, don't do that.' I slapped him with my hand, and his head hit the wall.

"I kept asking him, 'Tell me what meal you had this morning.' And he cried and didn't answer. He fell against the wall, and as he started to rise I kicked him. Then I began to realize what had happened."

ACCUSED BY WIFE

Brought face to face with her husband in the Sheriff's office, his wife, their other younger son in her arms, accused Smith of hating Donald "since before he was born." She shouted:

"You know you killed Donny!"

Mrs. Smith, bitter in her denunciations of her husband despite her apparent fear of him, told officers the boy was beaten because he could not pronounce the word "breakfast."

Although showing no remorse for the death of the "hate" child, Smith was concerned over his own probable fate. He said:

"Regardless of what I say or do, I guess it's the death penalty for me."

$60,000 GEMS LOST IN HOTEL MYSTERY

Salesman Finds Cheap Toilet Set in Place Of Sample Case

City and private detectives, investigators for insurance firms and William Penn Hotel officials today were searching for a jewel salesman's sample case, containing almost $60,000 worth of gems, for which a 59-cent toilet set had been substituted in a locker-vault of the hotel.

Loss of the bag was reported to detectives by F. J. Freudenheim, 45, of New York, salesman and member of the J. Freudenheim and Company, jewelry firm.

SECRET INQUIRY ON

The bag containing the gems, mostly diamonds, had been placed in the locker at 2 p. m. Tuesday and when he returned for it seven hours later he found a toilet set with its 59-cent price tag attached.

Detectives and insurance investigators and hotel officials have been co-operating in a secret investigation since. Freudenheim first obtained the locker at 7:30 a. m. Tuesday. The clerk on duty at the time recalled that he was carrying his sample case, which he put into the locker, located on the first floor of the hotel back of the cashier's office. Two and a half hours later, Freudenheim removed the case from the locker. The stories of the salesman and the clerk agree on this point.

SEARCH ALL LOCKERS

When Freudenheim returned to the hotel at about 2 p. m. Tuesday, he placed the case in the locker and when he called for it again at 9 p. m. he discovered the cheap toilet set had been substituted for his sample case.

A possibility that Freudenheim on his second trip to the vault had in mistake opened a locker that was not in use and not locked, was expressed by F. L. Andrews, general manager of the hotel. He said investigators were searching every safe in the vault to check this possibility.

Two keys are required to open each locker, one of which is retained by the guest while the other is kept by the clerk, it was explained. Neither one will open the safe alone and the locker room is guarded by two electrically-controlled doors.

LINDY DELAYS FLIGHT HOME

International News Service.

PARA, Brazil, Dec. 9.—Although their big red seaplane was made ready for departure at any time, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were expected to remain in Para today to inspect the local Pan-American Airways base, one of the most important of the line in South America.

Although both the Lindberghs are anxious to hurry homeward for the holiday season, bringing to a close their six-month aerial tour, Col. Lindbergh also was intent on thoroughly acquainting himself with the airway system's facilities here. He is technical adviser for the line, and this was his first visit to Para.

They were not expected to remain long, however, and when they take off, probably tomorrow, they will head northward over the regular Pan-American route to Miami, Fla., flying along the northeast coast of South America and over Caribbean Islands.

'NO REGRETS,' KILLER HANGED

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—They hanged Joe Corey last night for the slaying of his estranged wife's cousin—described by Corey as "a victim of circumstances."

In a statement released for publication after his execution, the 44-year-old Charleston merchant said he had no anger against Mrs. Katherine Ghiz, for whose death he was condemned to die.

Corey's statement said:

"She just happened to be in the way while I was trying to kill my wife."

The doomed man walked unaided to the gallows and mounted the steps with a smile on his face, just as he said he would.

Just before the noose was adjusted he said:

"I have nothing to say. I forgive everybody and ask forgiveness from all."

YOUTHS HOLD UP CAR BARN

Two armed youths robbed the night dispatcher of the Keating car barn of the Pittsburgh Railways, of $68 in cash and $27.50 in tokens, last night.

The youths, both carrying revolvers, compelled Dispatcher W. G. Lloyd to open his office door and lie on the floor, after he had appeared at the cashier's window.

After seizing the money and tokens they met Motorman Mike Grant in the employes' room and took $3 from him.

The pair fled in an automobile.

Levy, Noted French Economist, Dead

PARIS, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Raphael Georges Levy, noted French economist, died here today. He was 80.

M. Levy was the father of Mme. Paul May, wife of the Belgian ambassador to the United States. He had published numerous works on finances.

MAN SWINDLING AGED WIDOWS

Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide today warned of an imposter who is collecting $5 from aged widows under pretense of obtaining state pensions for them. Half a dozen complaints have been received, McQuaide stated.

The man represented that he had offices in a downtown building but a checkup disclosed no such tenant.

The same man offered for $35 to file papers for "old age pensions." Old age pensions were defeated by the last Legislature and are now being reconsidered.

$156 Verdict Won From Paul Siple

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—A jury has ordered Paul Siple, Boy Scout now on the way to the Antarctic with Admiral Byrd, to pay $156.90 damages to Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Yockey for injuries received in a motor accident November, 1931.

Girl's Nose Made 'Pug' In Beauty Argument

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Ida Shinkle's onetime Roman nose took on a "pug" appearance suddenly, and she immediately swore out a warrant charging her erstwhile roommate, Mildred Fertig, with mayhem and disorderly conduct for allegedly biting off the tip of her nose.

The girls, operators in a beauty parlor, were riding in a taxicab, and the conversation turned to which was the more attractive.

Ida admitted she made a few slighting remarks about Mildred's looks and ending with, "What's more, you have a pug nose."

She quoted Mildred as saying:

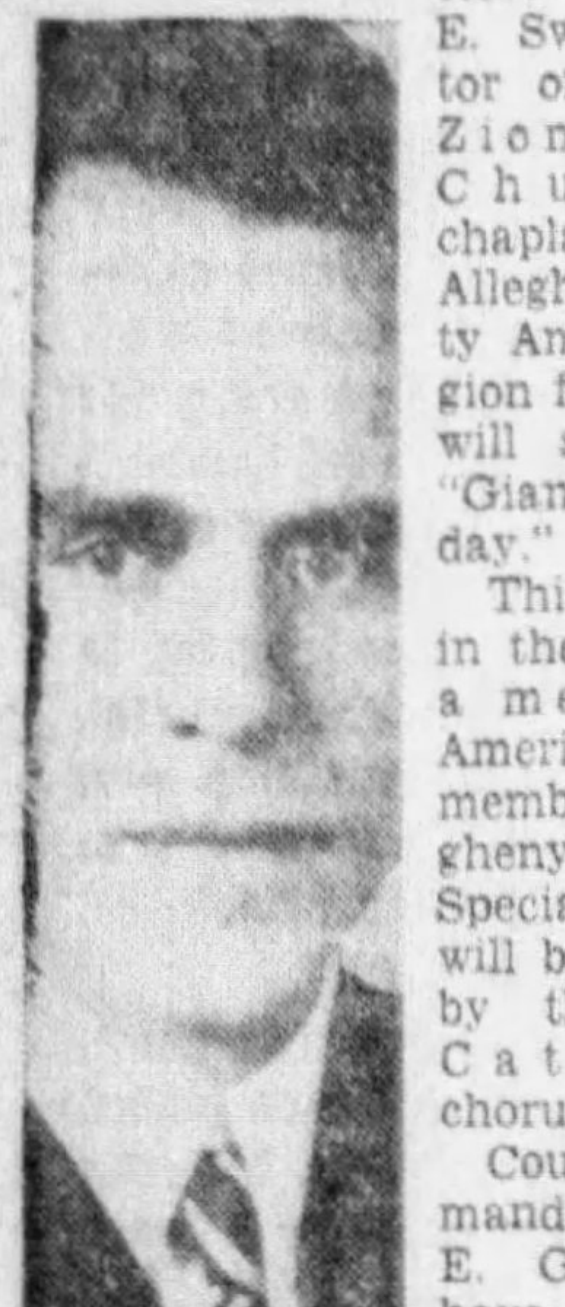
"Well, you'll have one, too."

Whereupon, Ida charged, Mildred leaned over suddenly and bit off the tip of her nose and then threw her out of the taxicab and fled. Police also are seeking James Manor, the taxi driver, supposedly as accessory after the bit.

LEGION TO HOLD SERVICES IN TRINITY TOMORROW

CHAPLAIN WILL PREACH ON 'GIANTS'

The American Legion of Allegheny County will hold its annual service in Trinity Cathedral, Sixth avenue, at 8 p. m. tomorrow. The Rev. Dr. Grover E. Swoyer, pastor of the Mt. Zion Lutheran Church and chaplain of the Allegheny County American Legion for 12 years, will speak on "Giants of Today."



Dr. Swoyer

This service is in the nature of a memorial to American Legion members of Allegheny County. Special music will be furnished by the Trinity Cathedral chorus.

County Commander George E. Grimm will have charge of the service. He will be assisted by First Vice Commander H. Stewart Dunn, of East Liberty Post No. 5; by Second Vice Commander Roy Keitzer, of Homewood Post No. 60, and County Adjutant Howard F. Crushore, of Wilmerding Post No. 230.

M'NAIR CHURCH FORUM GUEST

Mayor-elect William N. McNair will speak on "Nehemiah and the Depression" in an open forum service in the East End Christian Church, South Highland avenue and Alder street, at 7:45 p. m. tomorrow.

For more than a decade open forum services have been a regular Sunday evening feature in the East End Christian Church. Eleven years ago last summer, the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers went on a Sunday evening in London to the Eccleston Square Guild Hall, where the famous Maude Royden preaches.

Impressed by the fact that after her sermon she received and answered questions for half an hour, the Rev. Dr. Ewers returned home and developed his Sunday evening Discussion Club into an "open forum."

Seven years ago, when the new church was dedicated, the evening program was expanded. The Rev. Dr. Ewers goes to Europe nearly every summer. As a result, the forum deals with international topics, social, economic, moral, political and religious subjects.

North Avenue Club To Give Minstrel

The North Avenue Amateurs, a dramatic club sponsored by the Epworth League of the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, will present an old-time minstrel on Friday at 8 p. m. in the church.

The cast includes Miss Ellen Henne, Kenneth Hurd, Miss Sara Smith, John Fiets, Miss Blanche Greer, Floyd Cochran, Miss Marjorie Arthur, Galleo Tracchie, Miss Grace Henne, Carl Swanson, Miss Margaret Brownlie, Arthur Kreuger, Miss Helen Paslawsky, Thomas Brownlie, Miss Priscilla Welday, Nuncy Azzarello, Miss Violet Bishoff, Clarence Fletcher, Robert McIntyre, Jacob Paslawsky, Filson Williams and William Fulton. Robert Jones will have charge of music, assisted by Mrs. Irene Miller.

Pastor and Editor To Debate Tuesday

The Rev. John Slater, pastor of the Advent Lutheran Church, Wilkinsburg, and D. B. Bravin, editor of the Dawn, Jewish-Christian publication, will debate on "Judaism and Christianity Can Meet," at the Legum Memorial, 5809 Hays street, East Liberty, Tuesday night. Dr. George W. Englar will be chairman.

The Story of David -:- CHAPTER VI -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

When David returned from the slaughter of Goliath, Abner, captain of the hosts of Israel, took him before King Saul, with the head of the Philistine in his hand. Then Saul asked "Whose son art thou, young man?"

And it came to pass, when David had spoken to Saul, that the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Saul would not let David return to his father. Then Jonathan and David made a covenant.

Then David behaved so wisely that Saul set him over the men of war, and he was accepted in the sight of all the people and in the sight of Saul's servants. And when David and the armies of Israel returned from the slaughter of the Philistine the women came out of all the cities of Israel with great joy, singing and dancing, to meet King Saul. And they said, "Saul has slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands."

JEWS TO MARK FESTIVAL OF HANUKKAH

Commemorating the rededication of the Temple at Jerusalem by Judas Maccabeus after its defilement by Antiochus Epiphanes, Jews throughout the world will observe the eight-day holiday, Hanukkah, beginning Tuesday night.

According to the historical background of the celebration, Maccabeus reclaimed and rededicated the temple 165 B. C. after Epiphanes had set up a shrine to his heathen god in place of God's altar.

Among the many legends surrounding the festival is one to the effect that only a single cruse of oil was found undefiled, but through miraculous intervention it proved sufficient for eight successive nights, until other oil fit for the service might be prepared.

For this reason, in observance of the feast, Jews light candles in their homes for eight successive nights during Hanukkah.

TO MARK 40TH ANNIVERSARY

Bishop Adna Wright Leonard, of the Pittsburgh area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will deliver a sermon in recognition of the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the Aspinwall Methodist Episcopal Church, Eastern avenue, Aspinwall, at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

A recognition service also will be held at 4 p. m. in honor of living charter members of the church.

The Rev. Dr. T. G. Hicks, a former pastor, now of California, Pa., will preach, and the Rev. W. S. Boyd, present pastor, will preside.

'Movies, Children' Subject at Emory

The Rev. Dr. M. B. Fuller will speak to parents and children on "Movies and Children" at 8 p. m. tomorrow in Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, North Highland avenue. He will discuss the effect of movies on young lives.

Dr. Clausen's Sermon To Appear in 'Pulpit'

'Most Awful Thought' To Be Subject in Bellefield

"My Most Awful Thought," the Rev. Dr. Bernard C. Clausen's sermon tomorrow morning in the First Baptist Church, Bellefield avenue, will be printed in the January number of the Christian Century Pulpit as one of the seven sermons representative of modern Baptist preaching.

A ballot expressing the judgment of several thousand Baptist ministers is responsible for the selection of the printed sermons, which include contributions by the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, the Rev. Dr. Charles Gilkey, the Rev. Dr. Albert W. Beaven and the Rev. Dr. Harold Phillips.

New Covenant Mission To Mark Anniversary

MRS. MAURICE RUBEN

35th Year of Service To Be Observed On Monday

The New Covenant Mission, Pride street, will commemorate its thirty-fifth anniversary on next Monday, at 7:45 p. m. Mrs. Maurice Ruben, widow of the founder of the mission, will preside. Mrs. Charles H. Troutman, Bible teacher of Butler, Pa., will speak.

This mission, one of the oldest of its kind in the United States, was founded in 1893 by the Rev. Maurice Ruben. He was general superintendent of the mission, which was incorporated in 1903, until his death in 1925. The late Rev. Dr. E. M. McFadden, United Presbyterian minister, was general superintendent until his death in January of this year.

The present acting superintendents are the Rev. Dr. W. L. C. Samson, of the Ninth United Presbyterian Church, and the Rev. Dr. Hugh Leith, of the Mt. Lebanon Presbyterian Church.

400 CHILDREN IN PAGEANT

Four hundred underprivileged children, most of them connected with mission and neighborhood centers, will appear in a Christmas pageant in Soldiers' Memorial Hall December 14. Sponsored by the Methodist Episcopal churches of Allegheny County, the pageant will be directed by Robert M. Heininger of the Munhall Neighborhood House.

He will be assisted by Mrs. Richard B. Cuthbert, pianist, Mrs. Francis E. Kearns, Miss Ella M. Fieger, Miss Lura A. Turner and Miss Agnes Spencer.

Harry G. Samson, president of the Methodist Episcopal Church Union will preside. Bishop Adna Wright Leonard will offer prayer and the Rev. Dr. L. D. Spaugy, superintendent of the Pittsburgh District, will pronounce the benediction.

NEWEST SAINT HONORED AT MT. MERCY

Pay Homage Here at Shrine Like One In Lourdes

The newest saint of the Roman Catholic Church was honored yesterday at ceremonies on the Mt. Mercy campus. At a shrine that is patterned after the famous shrine of Lourdes, France, students and nuns gathered to pay homage to St. Bernadette, canonized in Rome yesterday.

Bernadette Souvirous was the peasant girl to whom the Blessed Virgin appeared on numerous occasions in the year 1858. Since her death thousands of pilgrims from all over the world have visited the country place in France where the apparitions occurred.

The shrine at Mt. Mercy is said to greatly resemble the original It will be illuminated at night in the interests of visitors to the college.

800 SHARE FIRST CWA PAYROLL IN PITTSBURGH

OFFICIALS HOPE TO REACH GOAL OF 25,000

Eight hundred city workers got checks today in the first CWA payoff in Pittsburgh. They are only part of the total payroll.

Due to the necessity of clearing names through relief headquarters and the employment office, payment of some of the list will be delayed until next week.

With only six days left to accomplish their aim of employing 25,000 men and women in Allegheny County, local officials are still optimistic. C. M. Reppert, city engineer, said the city would call for bids next Tuesday on $9,000 worth of tools. To be ordered are 3,600 shovels, 1,800 picks and a variety of other equipment.

Tentative plans in Reppert's office will require 8,500 men on jobs by the end of the month. Funds are on hand for 4,000. When tools are obtained the present number on city work, 2,000, will be doubled.

If the city gets money through a federal loan, 8,500 jobs are assured within three weeks, provided tools are available. Should the loan not come through, work will be held up until the city bonds are sold.

Shortage of equipment has not yet bothered the county. Thomas O. Hasley, director of highways, said the present supply will last at least a week. The county purchaser has $6,000 to buy more, he said, and will not be hindered by the need of getting bids.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern has anticipated the tool problem in the county by advising the purchasing department to wire Washington and ascertain the possobilities of borrowing army equipment. Results have not been announced.

JOB PROJECTS APPROVED

HARRISBURG, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Civil works administration projects approved last night boost the total of employes under the program past the 125,000 mark.

Eric H. Biddle, administrator, said the new work would provide employment for 9,647 men.

Allegheny County projects approved are:

Grade and slope banks Ewing Park, Wilkinsburg, 31 men; 2,450 feet sewer end Hazel Lane, Edgeworth, 53 men; clean creeks, fill and grade playgrounds, Etna, 75 men; grade ditch Flagler street and Kirk alley, McKeesport, 11 men.

Census Pittsburgh school children, 61 men; grade surface Michigan avenue, Delaware avenue extension, Glassport, 32 men; construct new fence Ewing property, South Park, 7 men; index and repair books, Carnegie Library, Pittsburgh, 54 men.

Grade and reset curbs and repave sidewalks, West Elizabeth, 40 men; improve Coraopolis Park, 70 men; widen streets and improve drainage, Forest Hills, 45 men; construct new shelter house North Park, 23 men.

JUVENILE HOME PLEA TUESDAY

Demanding immediate action toward construction of a new building to replace the county's antiquated juvenile detention home, a delegation of the Legislative Council of Western Pennsylvania will appear before the County Commissioners Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Arnold M. Replogle, chairman of the council's committee, will be the spokesman for the delegation. They may urge the Commissioners to use CWA funds and bonds authorized by the voters.

Problems confronting the new Juvenile Court were discussed yesterday in an informal conference between the County Commissioners and Gustav L. Schramm, judge-elect of the court.

Rail Mailman Quits To Give Another Work

FRANK N. KING 'THROWING' HIS LAST HANDFUL OF LETTERS

Rode Million and Half Miles in 31 Years

Deciding some million and a half miles of traveling is enough for one man, Frank N. King, 51, of Beaver Falls, voluntarily relinquished his job as a railway mail clerk today so that another may be employed.

King, who saw 31 years of service, bade good-bye to Karl D. Wilson, of Beaver, with whom he has worked on the same "run" 14 years. Then he went home to devote more time to his flowers.

For the last 14 years, King has been traveling on the same Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad run between Detroit and Pittsburgh. The rest of his service was spent on the Fort Wayne division of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

He estimates the distance he has traveled at a million and a half miles. Since he started, there has been little change in the railway mail service because, he said, the system developed 30 years ago still is good.

He has never been in a railroad wreck, but in the winter of 1913 he was marooned for 24 hours in a snow storm near Valparaiso, Ind.

Wilkinsburg Pastors Will Trade Pulpits

The eleventh annual exchange of pulpits for 18 Wilkinsburg churches takes place tomorrow morning. The plan is carried out each year by a committee of three laymen who notify preachers which pulpits they are to fill.

Congregations do not know whom they will hear in their churches until they attend services, in order to stimulate interest in worship itself, rather in the desire to hear any specific man preach.

AUTO MEN TOLD TO OBEY CODE

The automobile code and its effect upon the industry were explained to more than 2,000 Pittsburgh district automobile men last night in Motor Square Garden.

A. C. Bennett, automobile code administrator for the Pittsburgh district, who conducted the meeting, urged strict adherence to the code. He asserted over-estimation of used car values had resulted in an average loss of $50 on each used car during the first 10 months of this year.

The ultimate success of the code, with benefits to consumers and dealers, was predicted by Wayne Hearne, national automobile merchandising counsel. He said the automobile business had not reached a saturation point and would not until the country had 35,000,000 automobiles.

TRUCKERS END STRIKE HERE

Twenty-four hours after it began, a strike of truck drivers and helpers employed by five transfer companies was at an end today.

Trucks were operating normally, bearing signs stating they were manned by union drivers. C. Tevis, business agent for the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffers, Stablemen and Helpers Local No. 249, said the five companies affected had recognized the union. There were no other demands, he said.

Drivers and helpers quit work yesterday morning. Tevis said approximately 300 joined the walkout. He said the companies that signed agreements recognizing the union last night were the William Hannig and Joseph Murphy companies, South Side, the J. Kenny and Michael J. Hannon companies, East End, and Ott Weinert, Thirty-fifth and Smallman streets.

FRENCH REVERE BURGUNDY VINTAGES

By A. ALBERT

Maitre D'Hotel, Hotel William Penn

(This is the fourth of a series that will specify the proper wine to serve on every occasion; deal with question of temperature, etc.; and list the proper type serving glasses. Mr. Albert, recognized as a wine authority, was born in Switzerland and reared in the wine areas of Europe. He comes of a family of hotel owners and wine merchants. Beginning his catering career at 12 aboard famous liners as wine boy, he was graduated through famous Paris cafes, London's Piccadilly Hotel, New York's old Waldorf Hotel and exclusive clubs in this country, before coming here five years ago.)

Wines of Burgundy grow in the finest grape district of the world, known as the "Cote d'Or" (Golden Coast) of France, with its slopes extending from Dijon to Santenay for a distance of approximately 40 miles.

It is said that when a regiment of French soldiers marches through this chain of hills, the commanding officers order their men to present arms in respect to these historic and beautiful vineyards of which the French government is jealously proud.

The "Cote d'Or" is part of the Bourgogne district. It is divided into Haute-Bourgogne and Basse-Bourgogne, meaning upper and lower, respectively. Wines of Bourgognes are called Bourgogne wines but they are better identified by all wine drinkers as Burgundies. They are much fuller in body and of considerably greater alcoholic strength than the claret wines of Bordeaux.

KNOWN FOR FRAGRANCE

Burgundy is the most fragrant of all red wines. It is recommended with the roast, although many will prefer it to other wines with their game and other meat courses. A good glass of sparkling Burgundy seems to leave a most pleasing "farewell" to the palate.

Burgundy will mature in 30 to 40 years. From the medical standpoint, the red Burgundies are recommended as blood-building wines. As for their taste, of course, one must be educated to understand them.

The famous Chablis is a white wine of the Burgundy territory, but many times referred to incorrectly as white Burgundy. Other superior white wines of this nature include the Montrachet, Mersault and Macon Blanc.

Other champion white wines are the Vins d'Anjou. They are not found in the Bourgogne district. However, they are much like the white Chablis which is correctly served with oysters and also with appetizers, fish dishes, sea food and light meatless entrees.

RIGHT TEMPERATURES

The correct temperatures for serving are as follows: Still, red Burgundy, cold months—65 degrees, hot weather 50 degrees; sparkling red Burgundy, cold months—chilled to 35 degrees, hot weather, iced as champagne; Chablis, cold months, chilled 40 degrees, and hot weather chilled 30 degrees.

The Burgundy glass should be of the same type as the claret—a six-ounce, filled only two-thirds. Some wine connoisseurs prefer the hollow stem glass as used for champagne since they can admire the brilliancy of the wine by lifting glass before the light and to the clear color through the stem.

Tomorrow's article will discuss the discovery of champagne.

Postal Clerk Held On Charge of Theft

William J. Gunst, of Williams street, Millvale, a clerk in the Ferry street station of the Pittsburgh postoffice, was held for court yesterday by the United States Commissioner.

He is accused of taking a letter containing a small sum of money. Gunst has been in the postal service 24 years.

SHARING PLAN FOR FUND UP IN CHURCHES

Marking a final concentrated effort to put the Welfare Fund's 1934 budge drive for $2,837,000 over the top, the Emergency Sharing Plan, sponsored by church leaders of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, will be presented at all church services tomorrow.

With the grand total standing $800,000 short of the campaign goal, the plan was instituted in an effort to obtain 50,000 pledges for $10 each, payable to the fund September 1, 1934.

Late reports on the regular campaign solicitation included $80.90 from Union Bank Building employes; $250 from the Phillips Gas Company, of Tarentum, and $667 from employes of the Mine Safety Appliances Company.

A ceremony at St. Mary's Church, Lockhart street, North Side, and a family reunion were scheduled. The couple has two sons, five daughters and 19 grandchildren.

Hitler Downfall Seen By German Fugitive

MRS. SARAH LIMBACH MARTIN PLETTL

HERR PLETTL: "HITLER IS A PSYCHOPATHIC-INSANE MAN"

Economic Collapse Or War Forecast By Labor Man

Adolph Hitler's downfall in less than five years was predicted here today by Martin Plettl, German trade union leader and fugitive from his fatherland.

Decrying violence in the Nazi rule of Germany, he said:

"Hitler is a psychopathic—an insane man. In no case will he stay as long as Mussolini, for there will be either an economic collapse or a war."

Plettl, who is on a visit to the United States after escaping from a German barracks, is president of the International Federation of Garment Workers. He was beaten and arrested on May 2, he said, because he refused to turn over his union to the Nazis. He continued:

"World politics—the diplomats from France, England and other countries—gave Hitler his platform. The democratic government could get no concessions from the allies."

Plettl will speak tonight at the Moose Temple, 628 Penn avenue, on "Labor Under Hitlerism."

CITY HALL MAY BE MANAGED ON CONTRACT

City Council is considering turning over its share of the management of the City-County Building to a group of private individuals to manage on a contract.

The present estimated cost for running the city's half of the building for 1934 is $131,934. Allegheny County pays for the management of about one-half of the building.

Efforts will be made by Council this year to put the building under a single management, and, if possible, let out the work on a contract basis.

Council made a net reduction in the budget of Mayor John S. Herron yesterday of $111,000, making a total cut to date of $172,000. This brings the Mayor's budget down to within $101,000 of last year's adjusted appropriation.

Council will resume budget sessions Monday with hearings for the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, Building Owners and Managers and Chamber of Commerce.

Meanwhile the city cash shortage continues, with only $185,000 in the city treasury to meet a $370,000 Christmas payroll December 15. What happens to the pay of 4,800 city employes depends on tax collections next week.

Council has apparently given up the idea of virtually exhausting its borrowing power to meet the payroll. Such a move would leave the incoming Council with no reserve supply of funds.

"HONEYSUCKLE" Is a Gorgeous Doll
Dear Little Girls:
"Honeysuckle" is 18 inches tall, just the right size the average little girl would like to cuddle up to. The word beautiful doesn't really describe her. She's more than beautiful—she's GORGEOUS.
"Honysuckle" has flexible rubber arms and hands and rubber legs that can be washed just the same as you would wash your baby brother's or sister's. And WHAT A SMILE! And behind that smile are the most lovable, most roguish eyes you ever looked into. They open and close and she rolls them from side to side like a real flirt. By pressing her legs or by moving her body forward or back, she says "Ma-ma" in the sweetest voice you ever heard. She's dressed like a little queen in dainty organdy and lace, with bonnet and shoes to match.
Oh, we forgot to mention her cute dimples, and just as this was written "Honeysuckle" looked up and seemed to say, "Yes, you forgot to tell them about my rubber panties."
"Honeysuckle" is really the DOLL OF ALL DOLLS, and she is going to be so easy to get for Christmas. Shall I save a "Honeysuckle" for you?

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—

Patricia Pitt

All the little debbies will hie themselves to Barbara Verner's debut tea-dance this afternoon in the Twentieth Century Club, and so will their elders.

Mrs. Alexander Wilson Verner is giving the event. And many alumni of the big men's colleges, who are working in offices, will be there, too, since the event is on Saturday afternoon.

Gown Unusual

The debutante will wear a most interesting gown—the gown itself, of which you will catch only a glimpse, is of green crepe. Over it she will wear a novel fitted long coat of gold lame shot with green threads. It will have long sleeves. What's more, this coat-dress buttons down the back with small buttons. Her hat will be green and she'll wear a corsage of gardenias.

Her mother will wear purple bagheera with a hat to match. There are to be no aides, I understand.

* * *

Debutante Dance

This evening will bring the dinner-dance which the Frank J. Kiers will give in their home, Beechwood boulevard, honoring Virginia Evans, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Raymond Evans.

* * *

Concert Dance

Those of the smart set who didn't go to hear the Wiener Saengerknaben before the Children's Hospital benefit dance in the Schenley last night, are envying their wise friends who managed both.

The concert, given by the Art Society in Carnegie Music Hall, was applauded and applauded by the large house. All the usual music lovers were there, and many one seldom sees at concerts, too.

Among the debutantes was Louise Collier in a cranberry red lace gown. And about her blond head she wore a tiara of rhinestones. And debutante Gwendolen Holmes was there in a street costume.

Among Audience

Mrs. W. Edgar Reed I saw with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. McCook Reed. Mrs. Reed's gown of vivid, deep blue crepe had a fagotted cape of the material. Young Mrs. Reed's gown had a bodice of ice-green matelasse with a black skirt ending in a slight train.

With Mrs. William F. Hill, of Kinsman road, was her house guest, Mrs. Thomas C. McCobb, of New York. Mrs. Hill's daughter, Louise, married Mrs. McCobb's son, Harry W. McCobb.

Another debutante went to hear the concert—Florence Willock. She appeared in a vivid orange crepe gown. Others noted in the audience were Mrs. Joseph H. Bialas and Mrs. John R. Nelson and far more than I have space to mention.

Tech Faculty Members To Be Colony Hostesses

Faculty members of Carnegie Institute of Technology who are also members of the New England Colony will be hostesses at the colony's meeting on Monday in Margaret Morrison College. Mrs. Arthur W. Tarbell, chairman for the day, will present the speaker, Frederic C. Clayter who will discuss "The New Leisure and the Metal Craft," illustrating his talk with slides.

Dr. Bartley to Address Lee P. T. A. Meeting

A business meeting of the Lee Parent-Teacher Association will be held in the school Thursday evening. Dr. Catherine Bartley will speak on the effects of alcohol and narcotics on the body. A group of songs will be presented by the school glee club, accompanied by Miss Mable Schulty, and pupils of the fifth grade will give a play entitled "Courage."

Yule Customs in Other Lands to Be Related

Members of the club who come from other countries will tell of Christmas customs in their native lands at Wednesday's meeting of the Bryn Mawr Farms Woman's Club. Carols will be sung by a chorus of club members.

Hostesses are Mrs. A. W. Hill, Mrs. D. D. Smith, Mrs. S. B. Cooper, Mrs. A. J. Schade, Mrs. C. C. MacMillan and Mrs. H. D. Hale.

Private School Girls to Tag For League

Students and alumnae of many of the private schools and other groups are going to go tagging this month for the Tuberculosis League Hospital, which will have a tag day December 23 in addition to the Christmas seal drive because of increasing demands on the hospital.

Alumnae and students of Winchester and Thurston, alumnae of the Ellis School, the Pennsylvania College for Women Alumnae and ever so many other groups will take part.

Their representatives will meet for tea and plans on Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the library of the hospital.

Irene Kirk Becomes Bride of J. J. Klatt

Miss Irene Kirk, of Ingram, and J. J. Klatt, of Pittsburgh, were married by the Rev. Andrew Pauley, chaplin of Mt. Mercy Academy, in the Epiphany Church on Thursday evening.

Miss Daisy Clark, of Cleveland, was maid of honor, and Paul C. McGann was the best man. After an eastern motor trip Mr. and Mrs. Klatt will be at home in Ingram.

Mrs. Wentz Hostess For Crafton Club Group

Mrs. L. F. Wentz will be hostess to the literature department of the Crafton Woman's Club on Monday. "Lessons of a Lifetime," the autobiography of Lord Baden Powell, founder of the Boy Scouts, will be reviewed by Mrs. J. C. McFarland and Mrs. R. R. Stuart. Mrs. Frank Gageby will tell about English customs at Christmas and Mrs. E. N. Zern will talk of new books for Christmas.

Juniors at P. C. W. Give Tea for Freshman Class

Yesterday afternoon the juniors at Pennsylvania College for Women entertained the freshmen at tea in Woodland Hall. Receiving were Dean and Acting President Miss M. Helen Marks, Miss Oma Thompson, assistant to the dean, Miss Jean Engle and Miss Eleanor Harbison.

Monday morning in chapel there will be a program by Alice Minninger Stempel, Pittsburgh cellist. And on Friday there will be a departmental recital, by music students.

Sunday, December 17, the annual Christmas pageant, a dramatization of the Christmas story, will be presented by girls in the speech and music departments. It will be at 6:30 in the afternoon and is open to the public.

Dr. S. K. Ratcliffe will lecture on "The World Conference—What Now?" and on the twentieth, in the Christmas service, Dr. Bernard C. Clausen, of the First Baptist Church, will be the speaker. The holiday period begins on the twenty-first.

The faculty and administration staff will scatter for the holidays, which cover a period of more than two weeks. Miss Oma Thompson and Miss Eleanor Taylor will visit their homes in Houston, Tex. Miss Luella P. Meloy will go to a convention of sociologists in Philadelphia. Miss Laura Green and Dr. Nita Butler will go to Washington, for an archaeological meeting. Miss Margaret Robb will attend a speech convention in New York, and Dr. Anna R. Whiting will go to Boston, where Dr. Phineas K. Whiting, her husband, is doing research work in Cold Springs Harbor.

Debutantes Spend Busy Evening Between Children's Hospital, Benefit Dance, Concert

The debs had a busy evening, as usual, last night between the concert at Carnegie Music Hall and the dance sponsored by the social service committee of the Children's Hospital in the Hotel Schenley. The dance was a benefit for the hospital, you know, and the debs were selling cigarets and lucky numbers for a contest.

Very gay indeed, did this season's buds look, in lovely gowns, some with trains, and unusual shoulder treatments. Annette Chester's gown was of gleaming cream satin, with a train, and slightly draped cowl neckline in front, cut very low in back.

Eloise Dorrance, who was selling cigarets, chose black velvet with flaring epaulets lined with gold tissue, and tiny gold buttons down the back of the skirt. Rust lace fashioned the gown of Sherley Tunnell, and an unusual combination of light amber satin and American beauty velvet, that of attractive Peggy Robinson. The velvet was draped in a revers from the shoulders to the waist in back where it was looped into a flat bow.

Brunette Dorothy Clark's gown was of organdy-red crepe, having a many-tiered skirt, suggestive of early American modes, and Virginia Evans wore emerald green velvet with shirred bands of the velvet over the shoulders

A sophisticatedly simple gown of white crepe, very high in front as to neck, and low in back, with a crystal beaded belt, was the choice of deb Evelyn Freeman, and blue satin of Margery Hillman.

Other younger set members were there as well as the debutantes. I caught a glimpse of Katharine Frazer, surrounded by dance seekers, and she was wearing mandarin red crepe with kolinsky banding the brief cape; and of Dorothy Blaxter in a white crepe gown embroidered in horizontal stripes of gold, made with a flung-back cowl. Mrs. James Chambers McKay, not long ago a deb herself, was there in pumpkin colored taffeta having a wide ruffle of the material over the skirt, and a large lobster-claw bow on either shoulder.

A gay gown of large black and white shepherd plaid crepe with a scarlet velvet jacket was worn by Rita Borntraeger.

Members of the social service committee were very busy selling tickets. I saw Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner in orange crepe; Jane Sloan in emerald green satin; Mrs. Henry Clay Adams in black; Mrs. Ewing Laporte in black velvet.

Mrs. Henry Mason Reed's brunette beauty was enhanced by a gown of brilliant green velvet and in her hair she wore a wreath of flat rhinestone leaves.

I caught a glimpse of Francis Fitzgerald and of Lucile Todd, of Mrs. Henry Vaughn Blaxter, Mrs. Charles L. Flaccus, in gold cloth; Mrs. F. I. Merrick, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, Mrs. F. W. Gwinner III, in brown crepe flaunting a row of flowers across the front neckline, and I noticed the Harry W. Raffertys arriving, and Mrs. Arthur Litle in terra cotta crepe.

Costumed Singers Give Southern Club Program

Christmas carols from other lands sung in costume made a charming program for the Southern Club yesterday afternoon in the Hotel Schenley. The singers were Sara Jamison Logan, in old English costume; Hannah Hough Forney, who did traditional Italian carols in peasant costume; Leone Marquis Woelfel, attired in figured silk of the crinoline days, and Ruth Forney Gross in a colorful Russian dress.

Miss Janet Spaugh, who accompanied the singers, also furnished incidental Christmas music of her own arranging.

Mrs. Arthur B. Lynn and Mrs. C. B. Ellis presided at the tea table which was attractively centered with a tree and red candles.

State, County Officers Entertained in Crafton

Seven state and county officers were among the 200 guests entertained yesterday by the Crafton Woman's Club. A delightful program was presented, including a talk on the origin of Christmas carols by the Rev. Harry Allen Price and appropriate music by the choral and the string ensemble of the club.

Chalfant House Yule Meeting Wednesday

The Chalfant House Women's Club of Etna is planning an interesting Christmas meeting for Wednesday at the house.

Mrs. Sara Leiseder is in charge of the musical program and will present an instrumental trio, consisting of Mrs. Norman Angeney, 'cello; Mrs. Delano Crawford, violin, and Mrs. Byron Schlag, piano, with Mrs. Herbert Lytle, contralto, as solist.

Gifts will be exchanged by the members, and toys for use in the Chalfant House welfare work will be received.

The evening department will be addressed on Monday evening by Dr. Ralph A. Waldron, of Slippery Rock State Teachers' College, who will speak on "Nature Study."

Edna E. Thrane's Betrothal Is Made Known

Today at a luncheon at 1 o'clock in the Italian room of the William Penn Hotel, being given by Miss Oilve Lawry, of Emsworth, announcement is being made of the engagement of a former Nebraska girl and a Pittsburgh man.

The guest of honor is Miss Edna L. Thrane, of Pittsburgh, daughter of Mrs. L. C. Thrane, of Omaha, Neb., and her betrothal to Edward Mullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Mullen, of Baum boulevard, is being made known. A bridge party will be held after the luncheon.

Units of Voters' League Plan Christmas Parties

Christmas parties seem to be the rule with the Voters' League units next week, and in several instances the members will bring donations of food and clothing for the needy. It is so with the Bellevue League, which is to meet Monday afternoon in the local Y. M. C. A. for a program of music.

Miss Mary P. Lang will address the Twenty-seventh Ward League at the same hour in the home of Mrs. Craig Smith, Shadeland avenue, her subject being "An Outline of Government for the United States."

The Twenty-sixth Ward's Christmas party is set for Tuesday afternoon in the American Legion Home, Perrysville avenue, where the members will bring their donations for Christmas baskets. Chairmen of neighboring leagues will be guests and Miss Thyrsa W. Amos, dean of women at Pitt, will discuss a current play.

The Dormont-Mt. Lebanon League meets Wednesday in the New Century Club for its Christmas party, a play review by Mrs. Charles Bowlus and music by the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club Choral. Also on Wednesday the Yule party of the Thirty-second Ward will take place in Bakey's Hall, Saw Mill Run boulevard. Mrs. F. C. Sinn is to speak on "History Making Events" and there will be other program features.

With music and a talk by Mrs. Mary B. MacDougall on "Immigration" as its program, the Avalon unit will have its holiday Christmas party in Mrs. R. J. Dunbar's home, California avenue.

Attorney Edward O. Tabor and Mrs. Tabor will be guests of the Wilkinsburg League on Thursday in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel, and will give the program, Mr. Tabor speaking and Mrs. Tabor singing.

Dr. Work Marries Widow in Denver

DENVER, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Dr. Hubert Work, former Secretary of the Interior, and Mrs. Ethel Reed Gano, socially prominent Denver widow, were married here yesterday.

Woman's City Club Choral Presenting Christmas Sunday Musicale

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Soloists with the Woman's City Club Choral for its Christmas musicale December 17, are Mrs. Winifred B. Perry, contralto; Mrs. Lewis E. Young, soprano; Miss Mary Redmond, violin, and Miss Ella Scanlon, 'cello, with Miss Evelyn Parker, accompanist.

The musicale, which will begin at 5 o'clock, will take place in the urban room of the William Penn Hotel and at the close of the recital the guests will go down to the club room for tea.

Numbers appropriate to the season have been chosen by Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, director of the choral, and Mrs. Lewis E. Young, chairman of music. There's to be assembly caroling, too, led by Mrs Allderdice and Mrs. Young.

Mrs. Edmund W. Mudge and her committee will receive and Mrs. James M. Dalby will supervise the aides.

Mrs. Marple Heads 'Y' Christmas Committee

Mrs. Marple.

Mrs. Howard A. Marple heads the committee arranging for the annual white Christmas celebration at Central Young Women's Christian Association, to be held Thursday evening, and to which the public is invited.

White Christmas has become traditional at Central "Y" and draws together persons of many ages and many countries for the annual custom of "hanging the greens," trimming the trees, filling Christmas stockings, and enjoying a program.

The stockings, by the way, are given to the children of International Institute when they are entertained by Central Branch.

While all these activities are in progress, a choir sings familiar carols. The white gifts are presented after the program celebration in the auditorium, the guests forming a processional and placing their gifts at the base of the big tree.

At 9 o'clock there will be square dancing in the gymnasium, completing the full evening. N. A. Helsley will call figures.

Barbara Stanwyck Goes Back to Films

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Sufficiently recovered to resume work, Barbara Stanwyck, screen actress, returns to Hollywood today from her Malibu Beach home. Miss Stanwyck collapsed in Boston recently while on a personal appearance tour. She plans a long rest after completion of her present picture.

Council Will Be New Emergency Group Unit

The Western Pennsylvania Legislative Council is to be a unit in the Pennsylvania Emergency Legislative Committee which is now being organized along lines similar to those of the council which was formed 18 months ago. Headquarters for the new organization will be in Harrisburg.

At the close of yesterday's meeting of the council a letter was sent to the State Legislature asking the members to remain in session until all pending humanitarian legislation had been properly considered.

Mrs. Mary Thompson Denman, former legislator, and now representative of the National Child Labor Council, discussed current legislation with special reference to a new bill providing a uniform system for budgeting and accounting throughout the state.

The meeting was held in the Board of Education Building.

Sarah Lippincott Has Church Nuptials

Henry C. Lippincott, of the South Hills, announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Sarah Jane Clarke Lippincott, to Franklin Pierce Thomas III, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Thomas, of Cleveland.

The ceremony took place Thursday in the Methodist Episcopal Church, Dormont, at a quiet wedding solemnized by the Rev. Joseph P. Piper.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas III left on an extended trip to Florida.

Engineers Auxiliary Luncheon on Tuesday

The December meeting and luncheon of the Western Pennsylvania section of the Auxiliary to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers will be held Tuesday at the College Club.

Hostesses are Mrs. W. A. Weldin, Mrs. W. D. Brown, Mrs. Stephen L. Goodale, Mrs. P. C. Thomas, Mrs. Floyd Swanberg and Mrs. John T. Ryan.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 9.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

United States cabinet members can change, but when Notre Dame changes coaches you are getting into real news.

Will Rogers

Anderson just run into bad breaks. I bet he will go somewhere else and turn out a great team, and Elmer Layden will come there and do great, for he wont be followlowing Rockne. There just didn't happen to be anybody living that could follow Rockne.

And while we are on football and off the gold, this Columbia that's coming here New Years, being New Yorkers they never was away from home so naturally they are not known out here.

But we have heard of Nicholas Murray Butler, so we want 'em to bring "Nicholas" with 'em. We will hear a good speech even if the game is bad.

Yours, WILL.

(Copyright, 1933, McNaught Synd., Inc.)

Dick Byrd

Admiral Byrd and his shipmates of the S. S. Jacob Ruppert, approaching the Antarctic ice fields, are heard over a CBS-WJAS network in a two-way broadcast tonight at 10.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

When all good caterpillars should be sleeping and dreaming about waking up as beautiful butterfies we get reports from Theodore Hildebrand, Spring Hill, that he found a big black and yellow one very much awake.

* * *

J. J. S., of Irwin—Catherine Variety Sheridan is the ward of the Variety Club of Pittsburgh. That's how she derives her middle name. Her first name was given by her mother in a note pinned on the child when she was found in the lobby of the Sheridan Square Theater.

John Harris of this city is the logical man to contact for information concerning her adoption into a family.

* * *

An ex-Marine comes forward to champion me after the disparaging remarks sent in my direction after I mentioned that many were glad that Notre Dame salvaged something out of a disastrous season by defeating Army. The man, who signed his letter, "American," claimed this was treason against the United States, or to be exact, "The grand old U. S. A."

Mae West Not Interested In Radio

By AIRCASTER

Like most of radio's scribbling vassals I had been looking forward for weeks to the radio debut of Mae West, anticipating the occasion as being happily provident of material for comment, spoofing and other forms of columnar exercise.

Alas, a biter disappointment materializes in the sombre news that Miss West isn't likely to come to the kilocycles at all, despite the completion of a deal between her and a face cream sponsor.

Advice

At odd intervals throughout a hectic career, a hitherto suppressed desire to conduct a department of advice to the remainder of the world's inhabitants has assailed me.

The ambition grew, perhaps out of the fact that advice is cheaper than the dollar, and is, according to the platitude, easier to give than to take.

So that I may be able to shake off the yearning for once and all, I am herewith submitting to the radio-lorn a supply of bountiful, and I hope, pithy pointers:

* * *

Kill It

Joe Penner: Kill that durned duck and have it for Christmas.

Guy Lombardo: You'll never make a commercial announcer, so save it.

Joe Morrison: You can lay off singing the "Last Round-up" now.

Ben Bernie: Change your chatter, m'lad!

Kate Smith: There must be a substitute for "folks."

John B. Kennedy: Your quips are too fast for 'em.

* * *

Keep It

Fred Waring: Keep it as it is.

Leopold Stokowski: A bit too heavy, Maestro. Can't we hear some Straus waltzes, and light operatic airs, too?

John McCormack: The old favorites and fewer squawks, Jawn, will make the girls and boys, and you, happier.

* * *

I imagine:

It'll be a "Postman On the Street" broadcast instead of mere man. And the question: "What do you think of Santa Claus?"

The time will be 'most any day now, and the place the postoffice, at the mail carriers' exit.

The station will be WCAE, KDKA, WJAS, KQV or WWSW.

* * *

Alarm

I. Leonard Aronson, of the County Real Estate and Taxpayers' League, will awaken the citizens from an after-Sunday dinner nap tomorrow at 1:30 via KQV. "Taxpayers Awake!" will be his theme.

* * *

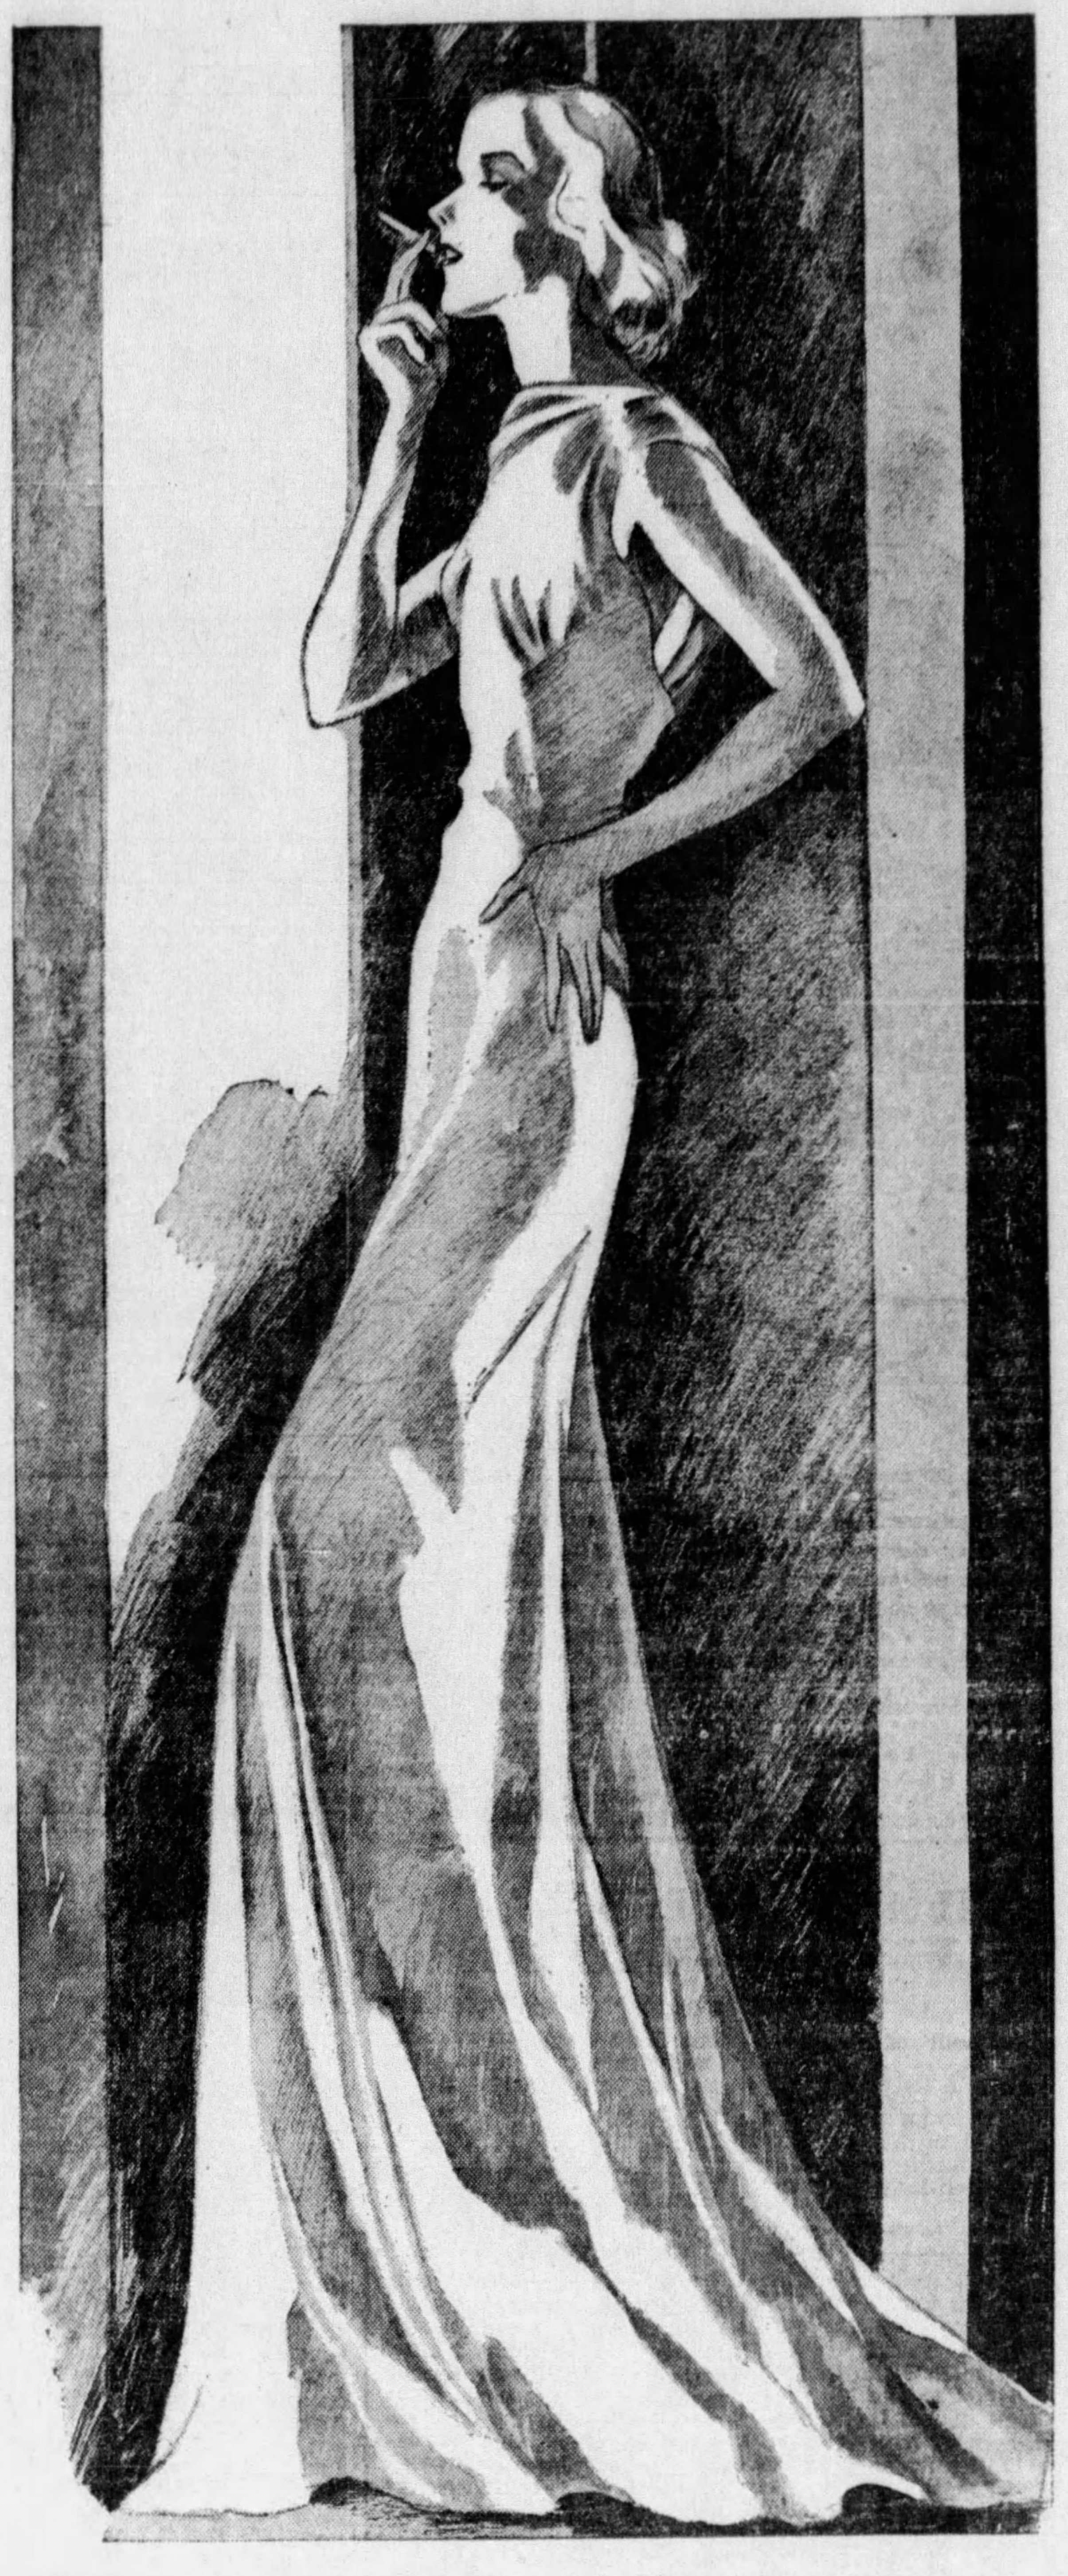
TRAINS AND TIARAS FOR FLEDGLINGS



Above is a satin formal gown of the "ice" coloring, which means that its pearly whiteness may have a blue, green or opalescent cast, according to which becomes the buyer's complexion best, if she is wise to her opportunities. Note the flattering fulness at the front of the bodice—a touch too woefully lacking in many of the high-necked formal gowns of the moment. The back, of course, is very low cut, but again soft draping is used over either shoulder alongside the decollete. Even a bride could not feel cheated by so voluminous a train, but it is just one more handsome evening gown.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

YOUNG things stepping out for the first time this winter, by which one means girls in their first season who really have been around a good deal, if the truth were known, will find that the wardrobes they need will not be the same as those of last year's buds.

Not so many quietly smart in-between evening ensembles for trips to this Tony's and that Enrico's will be the crying need. Their beaux will be taking them to restaurants and high hat supper clubs which blaze with post-prohibition candor and candle watts this season, and discreet slumming clothes for clandestine swank corners cease to be a vital consideration.

* * *

DON'T think the fashion marts are not all set for the change, what's moreover. When did any shopper ever see so much fuss about coiffure ornaments, for instance, and did the simplest frocks retailing for 20 bucks apiece ever feel the need of trains before?

Lots of girls who never expected to wear long white satin in their lives until they glided altarwards—unless they got a bid to Court—will probably be swishing around in such like before the needles have withered on the Christmas tree.

* * *

ALL this may sound like a big cut out of the budget for the girl who hasn't started after her holiday good times clothes yet, but they don't come so high, as a matter of fact. And a very good investment at the start would be a long Chesterfieldian evening coat of black velvet, warmly intcrlined, which will look swell all winter over the trained and the untrained alike, or even with a semi-formal sort of gown dear to the commuter, and the nearest model left to the speakeasy costume of recent date.

'Leggers Deserve Credit for Big Wet Business

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

First romance of repeal happened at sea when four coast guarders captured a rum runner.

The rum runners then kidnaped four of the coast guarders, but were nailed. The contest started with boats, changes to horses and came near being a six-day bike race.

It also means the hootch runners are in direct competition with the government muscle men. And even though the government will make plenty of money out of liquor, some thanks should go to the bootleggers for working up the business.

We are in favor of drinking for taxes. And also service stripes. Silver stripes for rye and gold for bourbon. When you mix 'em you are in line for a medal for valor.

It's going to be a long war. And though many patriots will be defeated not one will surrender.

Westinghouse Club Cast Giving Comedy

"Vappin' Wharf," a comedy having to do with pirates and pieces of eight, will be presented by the Westinghouse Club Players in the club rooms tonight. Dancing will follow the show.

New Building For Junior Patrol

Junior's patrol has a new club house, fellows!

A mighty nice man, Mr. Kelsey, helped the boys to build it—in fact, he did most of the work. We are kind of sorry the boys didn't do more of the work themselves, but of course Mr. Kelsey built them a better house.

It's real fun and good experience for boys to work out a problem like building a shanty. You have to measure the boards, and plan how to put in the windows, and find glass and door hinges and locks and lots of things like that. And when a bunch of fellows work together doing things they soon learn how important it is for boys to be good friends, good companions, and good teamworkers.

We have a letter from Ja Lyons, of 1414 N. Lang avenue, Pittsburgh. He sends a list of his friends who want to join the Junior Patrol, but he doesn't send any pledges for them. We can't send badges or a captain's armband for the captain of a patrol unless his members are official members, Jack. Send your pledges, or have your members make copies of the pledges and send them in. Copies are just as good.

Thomas Yenco, of Adah, Pa., Box 39, is a new member in that town. We are hoping that he will start a new Junior Patrol there.

And Elsie Jean Trager, of 584 Rosedale street, is also a new member. Do you belong to a patrol yet, Elsie?

This letter is from Ralph Sargent, of 25 Hummell street, South Brownsville, Pa. We have lots of members in South Brownsville, and we hope you join one of the Junior Patrols there, Ralph.

"I would like to have a membership card and a badge. I like your comics very much and wish there were more of them, because I would never get tired of reading them. I hope that the club is built so Butch and his dog will have a place to stay. If Snuggins had any bigger feet I don't think you could see the earth for 10 miles around."

Snuggins does have big feet, Ralph, but we are hoping that some day the rest of him will grow up to fit his feet and then he will be all right. You will notice now that the clubhouse is completed.

Goldenson Tribute Dec. 31 at Trinity

A special service in honor of Dr. S. H. Goldenson, rabbi of Rodef Shalom Temple, who leaves the first of the year for New York, will be held in Trinity Cathedral New Year's Eve. A program has been arranged by Bishop Alexander Mann, of the Episcopal Diocese of Pittsburgh, and the Very Rev. N. R. H. Moor, dean of the cathedral.

Bishop Mann will deliver a farewell address to Dr. Goldenson, who will reply briefly. Music will be under direction of Alfred Hamer, organist.

Hits Use of Novice Social Workers

A class of third generation paupers, which Jewish welfare workers so far have been able to prevent, will be the result of such depression measures as employing untrained social workers, Maurice J. Karpf, of New York, said here last night.

He spoke before 100 members and friends of the Jewish Social Workers Club of Pittsburgh. The Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson also was a speaker.

'Maccabean Spirit' Rodef Shalom Topic

"The Maccabean Spirit" will be the subject of Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson's sermon at the services of the Rodef Shalom Congregation at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

ALWAYS DEAD TIRED?

How sad! Sallow complexion, coated tongue, poor appetite, bad breath, pimply skin and always tired. What's wrong? Chances are you're poisoned by clogged bowels and inactive liver. Take this famous prescription used constantly in place of calomel by men and women for 20 years—Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. They are harmless yet very effective. A compound of vegetable ingredients. They act easily upon the bowels, help free the system of poison caused by faulty elimination and tone up liver. Rosy cheeks, clear eyes and youthful energy make a success of life. Take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets, nightly. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c. All druggists.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

It Does Not Pay to Spend Time Seeking Revenge

Do you believe that the world would be a Swell Place again, if you could just "get even" with someone who, you think, has done you dirt?

Helen does. And she wants us to tell her how to do it.

Will we? Listen:

Dear Elsie—

Will you please help me? I am so unhappy! My life is wrecked—and by a man. I used to love him, but now I hate him.

Two years ago I met him at a party. His name is Harry. I didn't really think I would like him at first, but you know how it is. He started in to rush me and take me out every place, and I found that he was fascinating.

He went with me and never looked at another girl for almost a year. He told me he loved me madly. And I fell for him, awfully hard. I had thought before that that I was in love, but I never felt about anybody as I felt about him. He was very handsome, and the way he talked I thought he would be true blue.

Then I found out that he had met somebody else, and was taking her out.

I told him I knew this, and he lied to me. But I proved to him that I did know. Then he said he didn't really care for her, but had just taken her out to amuse himself. I believed him, and we made up.

For about three months everything was just fine—and then he just simply stopped phoning me, without saying a word about anything being wrong.

WANTS REVENGE

My heart was broken. I called him up and he said he would be over, but he didn't come. All our friends looked at me queerly, and asked where he was, until it nearly drove me crazy. We had gone everywhere together.

And now lately he's been taking this other girl to the places he used to take me—and I know that everyone is talking. Some of them have twitted me about it.

I just hate him for treating me that way. And yet I can't get him out of my mind. Please help me. If I could just hurt him, as he has hurt me, I would be satisfied. Please tell me how I can do that.

I'd like to get him to come back, then throw him down—hard! I'd like to teach him how it feels to be treated so. I can't rest, for thinking of it. He has wrecked my life.

HELEN.

Wrecked your life? I wonder.

Or are you wrecking your own life, youngster, by your own jealousy and resentment?

Let's go back to the very beginning. Maybe he was fair and square. Maybe he wasn't. Maybe he loved you truly. Maybe he didn't. I can't tell. But this I do know—

THE INEVITABLE

Such exacting, jealous love as you showed—such demanding of devotion — would have driven the finest man away. No man who had an atom of self-respect could have allowed himself to be owned, as you wanted to own this man.

If he admired other pretty girls—wanted to play a little with them—was that a crime? You made it seem so. And by taking it all so seriously you made marriage seem a "life sentence." If you were like that before you were legally bound, what would you have been after?

So the inevitable happened. He broke away entirely. And now you want revenge. But what will that buy you? Nothing but more bitterness. You can't undo the old hurt. You'll simply poison the present with the misery of the past.

Would that be a good bargain? And what would his inevitable reaction be?

He'd simply be surer than ever that you are an impossible person—and that he was justified in leaving you for another girl.

So forget your hate, child! Stop longing for revenge. You've suffered enough. Don't let yourself be hurt and humiliated even more. Happiness is waiting for you. Go get it! And here's hoping "happy days will come again," little sister!

'EASILY SNARED—HARD TO HOLD' -o- -o-

Drawn by
Nell Brinkley

The Huntress fares out in the latest of lovely decorations—big sleeves, wavery skirts, sable trim, hair as clean as polished, carven metal, face all "done"—from fingertips and toes to crown an alluring, modern young lady such as you see looking at you from the pages of ads, the covers of magazines and the screens of movie palaces. It is very easy, looking the way she does, band-box and bathtub immaculateness, perfume and powder colorfulness, to snare Love in her silver net. Easy to catch him! But hard to keep him. Holding him is the test of a lady's appeal, to her ability to keep him the measure of her loveableness.

Somebody, and very nearly EVERYBODY, has said that—in an exceedingly plain and bare way of putting it—"any woman can get married if she wants to."

Let's you and I put it in another way. For we know very well that ANY woman can't; that many women with very fine things about them can't. Let's put it that any pretty woman can, but that it takes better than a pretty woman to hold a man and his love. And many a plain one has done it so successfully that her life, if written, would read like a happy-ending fairy-tale.

Just to be beautiful and perfectly turned out is not enough to keep the struggling god with the rosy body and the golden wings in the bag. Husbands adore a woman for something and things that do not come under the head of decoration—things under the surface that he knows about and finds delightful. Physical loveliness can feed Love in his first days of captivity, but later he asks for the "goodness of bread," which is kindness, amiability, justness, the delightful qualities of humor and sweetness, affection and good temper, that are all so glorifying to any woman, plain or pretty.

To be as beautiful as a cover girl is splendid, but to be a woman whom some man firmly believes to be, even when she isn't—because she is just so "darn sweet and good"—is much, much better than being beautiful, with dreams that don't come true!

NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Small Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am to be married very soon at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. I have chosen the parsonage for the ceremony. The wedding will be very informal, attended only by my immediate relatives, my mother, my aunt and two men cousins. None of my fiance's family will be present.

What I wish to know is, how should we go to the parsonage? It is just around the corner from my home. As we are having no attendants, shall my relatives arrive at the parsonage before my fiance and myself? Or should they come after us? Should I go with my mother and should my husband-to-be come by himself? Or should we all go together?

2—After the ceremony there will be a dinner in my home. Is it necessary to invite the minister and his wife? S.

1—The best way would be for you to plan to have the group meet at the parsonage. You and your mother would come together. Your fiance and his best man would come together. And your aunt and your cousins would come together.

2—Under these circumstances it will not be necessary for you to invite the minister and his wife to the dinner.

Christmas Presents

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a question that may seem a little early in the season, but it is on my mind and I would appreciate it if you will answer me soon. It is in regard to Christmas presents.

I am working for a very nice couple and take care of their little boy. We have become very intimate and they treat me as one of their own. They are constantly giving me small presents, take me on trips and are more like my family than my employers. This is my question:

Should I at Christmas time give the little boy a present? And I thought of getting a very nice card with a friendly verse and mailing it to them. Or should I give them each a present? I go home nights and will probably not be there on Christmas Eve. I am positive they will give me something nice.

They are young and wealthy and I cannot afford anything expensive. Have you suggestions? ANXIOUS.

It would be a delightful plan for you to give the boy an appropriate Christmas present, and he would love the fact that you thought of him at this time.

Then I suggest that you send a box of flowers to the hostess of his home, planned so that the flowers will arrive on Christmas morning. Although you would address the flowers to the woman-of-the-home, the card that you enclose would have a greeting for both husband and wife.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An Interesting Forced Lead

Mr. Tom Greenway, of New York, has a very high opinion of Mrs. Greenway's Bridge playing ability and in submitting the hand below paid her a compliment upon her first response to his Opening bid as evidence that she was looking ahead in the bidding to lay the groundwork to an eventual Slam contract. The play of the hand is interesting, and the manner in which Mr. Greenway solved his difficult problem of play is deserving of high praise. The bidding is not unduly optimistic. Mrs. Greenway, who sat North, in bidding two diamonds was, of course, showing a strong hand as North and South were vulnerable, and thus an Overcall of an opponent's intervening bid indicated actual strength.

East, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

♠ A 9 8
♡ J 10 8 2
◇ K Q 6 2
♣ A 4

West		East
♠ Q J 10 7 6 ♡ K 6 ◇ 9 8 3 ♣ K 9 5	North West East South	♠ K 5 4 2 ♡ 5 ◇ J 7 5 4 ♣ J 8 3 2

♠ 3
♡ A Q 9 7 4 3
◇ A 10
♣ Q 10 7 6

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♡	1 ♠	2 ◇ (1)
2 ♠	3 ♡	Pass	4 N T
Pass	5 N T	Pass	6 ♡
Pass	Pass	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

West's Double was questionable and no doubt was an important factor in Mr. Greenway's decision to play the hand the way he did.

West's Opening lead was the Queen of spades, which, of course, was won with Dummy's Ace. When Mr. Greenway studied the hand, it appeared to him that he was certain to be defeated one trick, but then he began to concentrate. He saw the opportunity for an elimination play, the success of which, of course, depended on West having the heart King and the club King and no more and no less than three diamonds.

The second trick was a spade, led from Dummy and ruffed in the closed hand. Next Mr. Greenway laid down the Ace of trumps and, as he anticipated, the King did not drop. He then followed with the diamond Ace and led the Ten to Dummy, overtaking with the King. The diamond Queen followed, upon which he discarded the club 6. Next he ruffed the last spade in Dummy and threw West in the lead with the heart King. As hoped, West did not have a diamond to return and chose instead the lead of a small club. This Mr. Greenway permitted to run to the Queen and fulfilled his contract by taking the remaining tricks.

Today's Question

The bidding has gone as follows:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	5 ♠	Pass

What should South now bid, holding:

♠ A K J 5 4 ♡ A 9 7 ◇ A 8 ♣ Q 6 2

Answer: South should now bid five notrump, requesting his partner to bid seven-odd if justified by his holding.

Boys Flee as Frightened Wails Greet Visitors

As the wail of my baby daughter, Faith, came to my ears, I took a hasty step forward, but Dicky grasped my arm just in time to save me from adding any further stimulus to my mother-in-law's captiousness.

"Katherine is there by this time," he muttered. "There isn't anything really serious the matter, or she wouldn't be yelling like that; and mother's all set to stage enough ructions without your adding anything to the gayety of nations."

"I know it, and thank you," I said, pressing his arm gratefully. "But what do you suppose has happened?"

"Those kids, I suppose," Dicky said with resignation, and I sadly echoed his theory in my heart as, with the rest, I hurried down the corridor to the nursery door.

"That's not a temper cry," Dr. Braithwaite said judiciously, as we went through the door leading from the hall to Katherine's sitting room. "Neither is it a hunger cry. Something has frightened her, I'm afraid."

"I'll skin those kids alive," Dicky said, but the contrast between the ferocity of his words and the mildness of his tone would have set me to laughing if I had not been so really perturbed.

And then we were at the nursery door, to face a calm but tense Katherine, who was holding the baby close in her arms, cradling her, rocking her tiny body slightly to and fro, and murmuring that time-honored formula, "There, there," adding the baby talk which the most poised nurse can use when the occasion demands it.

BOYS FRIGHTENED

"Was Aunt Katherine's baby scared?" she murmured, while I stood aside, not daring to touch my child, yet yearning for her with a positive physical ache of my arms. It was part of the price I was paying for my freedom to devote myself to my career as a playwright which Philip Veritzen, the greatest producer of his time, was pleased to call unusually promising.

The baby was quiet now, only a pitiful catching of her breath remaining of the shrill cries which had been coming from her lips. Katherine spoke softly in the same soothing tone she had used in quieting Faith.

"Go into the other room," she crooned. "She's all right now, but I don't want her to see anybody just yet."

Even my mother-in-law made no protest against this dictum, and we filed noiselessly into Katherine's sitting room, Dicky shutting the door noiselessly behind us.

At first we thought the room empty, then we saw Junior and Roderick flattened against the wall farthest from us, their hands against the wall as though they were holding themselves from falling. Their faces were ashen, and they had to moisten their lips with their tongues before they could speak.

"Is she going to die?" they finally croaked together.

"I guess it's no fault of yours if she doesn't," Dicky said sternly. "Now you tell me at once what you two young imps have been up to."

Usually obedient, they paid no attention to him, but fixed their eyes upon me.

"Is she going to die, Mums?" Junior asked. "Is she?"

There was such agony in his voice, and in both his eyes and Roderick's, that I broke a tacit pact to which Dicky and I have adhered since Junior's babyhood—an unspoken agreement never to interfere with the discipline either of us is imposing.

SOB HYSTERICALLY

"Wait just a second," I whispered frantically to my husband. Then I spoke slowly, clearly to my little lad and his cousin.

"No, she isn't going to die. She isn't even seriously hurt. But I'm not going to tell you anything more. You must answer your father's questions."

But with a howl the two small boys dashed across the room and flung themselves into my arms, sobbing so hysterically in their relief that, if I had not known from experience how mercurial are the spirits of children, I should have been frightened.

"They ought to be whipped," my mother-in-law said heatedly, but when she heard the frantic sobbing of her two young grandsons, which had no connection with her words—I was sure they had not heard them—she made one of her characteristic shifts of attack.

"Why do you let those children cry like that, Margaret?" she demanded. "They'll be sick."

"Don't, mother," I heard Harriet Braithwaite say softly, and as Mother Graham gives more heed to the opinion of her eldest daughter than she does to that of any other human being, she miraculously kept silent, and after a few seconds more of hysteria, I was able to turn the young culprits over to Dicky's repeated demand.

"Now, come clean! Tell me what you did to frighten that baby like that?"

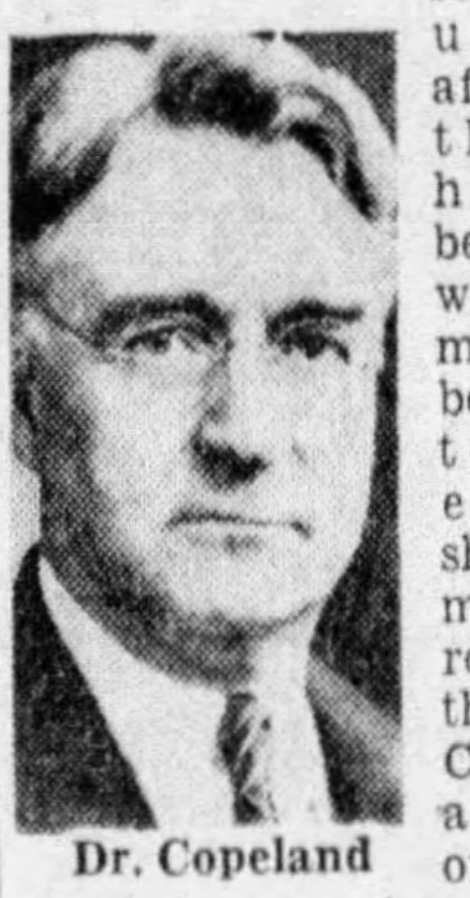
How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Boil Usually a Localized Infection

Some persons are extremely susceptible to boils. Most of us, fortunately, rarely, if ever, suffer from this uncomfortable affliction. To those who have never been troubled with boils this message will be of little interest. But everyone should be familiar with the routine care of this infection. Carelessness and disregard of a boil may lead to a serious and painful condition.



Dr. Copeland

Contrary to the popular belief, a boil is not the result of poor and poisoned blood. It is an infection localized in the skin. It is usually confined to an area that has large hair follicles, a part that is subjected to pressure and irritation. Boils are commonly found in the arm pits, the groin, or on the back and neck.

The infection can usually be traced to a germ given a big name, the "staphylococcus aureus." This germ enters the body through a crack, a laceration or an abrasion of the skin. It is rubbed into the skin by continued pressure and friction.

Redness and pain are the first signs of the infection. At first the redness is quite general in the involved region, but gradually it becomes localized at one point. The pain is increased by pressure, motion, or the weight of overlying clothes. At this stage, proper attention will shorten the duration of the infection and hasten convalescence.

The redness, pain and tenderness can be relieved by the application of wet compresses of boric acid solution. If the infection is deep-seated, it is wise to use hot applications. This is best done by placing on the infection gauze dipped in hot boric acid solution. This is kept hot by placing a hot water bag over it.

This procedure helps to bring the pus to the surface and encourages the escape of the pus from the boil. Never squeeze a boil. In squeezing it you break down the defensive wall that nature has built up around the involved spot. Destruction of this wall leads to the spread of the infection and usually to the formation of an abscess. If an abscess forms it requires immediate operation.

Another danger of squeezing a boil is that you may force the germs into a blood vessel. If this occurs the poison is spread by the blood stream and general infection, or "septicemia" results. Septicemia is a very serious complication.

Do not resort to the use of patent medicines and the so-called "boil poultices." Modern medicine does not depend upon these old-fashioned remedies for the treatment of boils. If the boil does not respond to the simple treatment I have mentioned, the safest and only method to deal with it is by means of an incision.

Many persons dread the knife and resort to ointments and salves. Bear in mind that these efforts are often dangerous and postpone recovery.

BOUDOIR DOLL PATTERN 589

Doll Makes Handsome Gift

What woman has not always had a secret longing for such a gay and charming boudoir doll as this one? And if she has no place to put it in her own home, what a lovely gift it would make! It is so much fun to dress that the pleasure of making it will repay any needlewoman. The doll can be dressed in silk, rayon or cotton, for her dress lends itself to any of these materials. The dress as illustrated can be made with the waist in a material contrasting with the skirt or in the same material; yardage requirements are given for both arrangements.

Pattern 589 comes to you with a pattern of the dress and petticoat, designed for the regulation 26-inch doll, and complete directions, yardages and color suggestions for making these.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Commend the Children

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

How many of us are ready to commend our child when he has done something of which we approve? Don't we generally just smile and say nothing? Are we as ready to praise as to say "don't"?

A young friend of mine recently told me he had been the baby of a family of three, but, far from being babied or petted, he had constantly been told to "stop making that noise," or "don't this, or that," no matter how little noise he had been making. He said all grown ups were so hard to please, particularly when he was only having a little fun. He was not trying to irritate them, he was trying desperately hard to amuse himself and keep from drawing attention to himself. As he grew older this attitude continued even when he was trying to be of real help to his parents.

Perhaps this friend's experience was extreme, perhaps most children do not feel this way when they are nearly grown up. I believe, however, that it is much more general than most people realize. Why can't we be a little kinder, a little more considerate of our children, and praise them a little more when they have done something that they are proud of? Their capabilities are small when they are little children, but this will grow as they grow.

Even we grown ups straighten up a little and try to do better the next time when someone who knows tells us "That is fine," or "You are doing better and better." We certainly should do the same for our children.

After a good day can you not tell your child that he has made you happy by his good behavior? If he is a little older and has accomplished some task that you have set him, can you not say, "well done?"

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Gleaming lights shine from many a frock this winter. One of the most useful suits we have seen this year is a restaurant ensemble in black ribbed crepe. It has an instep-length skirt, a short jacket and there is a gilet of sequins.

We are ruffled and we like it. Many of the newest evening frocks show ruffled treatments. One of black satin has shoulder straps with ruffles on the arm, of black jet sequins. This treatment makes a nice oval on the shoulder. There is also a ruffled tier just above the broad hemline flounce.

Household Hints

Don't use a stiff brush when washing linoleum. This makes it dull—and no one wants dull linoleum. Use soap and water and wash lightly—almost tenderly—if the luster is to be preserved.

Put a tiny sprig of mint in the water in each cube space of your mechanical refrigerator. The mint freezes in the little cubes and adds a cool and refreshing decorative touch to liquid refreshments.

LAYDEN'S APPOINTMENT CONFIRMED BY NOTRE DAME

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Layden's Rare Equipment. Has Everything It Takes. Gaelic Football Coming. • Year of Great Kickers. Dartmouth Choice Balks. First Fight for Movies.

ELMER SEEN AS EQUAL TO BIG IRISH JOB

Elmer Layden

Local football observers who have watched closely the work of Elmer Layden over a span of seven years, while he engineered the remarkable gridiron uplift of Duquesne University from the obscurity of the minor college ranks to the upper strata of the major division, do not harbor the slightest doubt that he will speedily prove the wisdom of the choice which elevates him to be Hunk Anderson's successor in the country's most prominent pigskin post at Notre Dame. To a job that makes him the center of national attention, Layden will take an assortment of qualities rarely found in one coach.

The new mentor of the Irish absorbed the Rockne system thoroughly as the fullback member of the famous Four Horsemen; he knows his football from A to Z, and in eight years of coaching has proved his ability to impart his knowledge to others; he has personality, inspirational powers, the knack of making players outdo themselves to win for him, and backing up that rare equipment is a wealth of character.

It isn't an easy spot into which Layden steps at Notre Dame, even though the Irish sank to the depths this year and almost any change will be an improvement. He will have harder things to do, a more difficult schedule to handle, than at Duquesne. But also he will have more material with which to do it, and who can say that putting Notre Dame back on the winning road is a greater task, from comparative angles, than was the one he accomplished here in transforming Duquesne from a Class B trailer into a real big shot that was one of the surprise teams of the country? The job at South Bend is a big one, but it isn't any bigger than Layden.

Football here won't be quite the same without Elmer. He was a powerful influence for its general good. His going means a heavy football loss to the city and the district and to Duquesne University, in particular, which will not fill his place easily. But the general regret at Layden's departure is not unmixed with a feeling of gratification that his merit has been rewarded by the highest promotion possible in football, a widely coveted appointment that is a lofty tribute to his own ability and also to the Bluff school whose spirit and support played no small part in his rise to the gridiron peak.

GAELIC FOOTBALL CHAMPS TO PLAY HERE

Pittsburgh can look forward to seeing the Gaelic football champions in action next year during their annual visit to this country from Ireland, if plans of the newly organized All Ireland Athletic Club mature. That new association, which seeks to establish a local Irish center, is to lay particular emphasis on Irish sports, and one of the first steps proposed is to bring the Gaelic football champs to this city for a game.

An Irish reunion will be held at Duquesne Council K. of C. Hall here next Wednesday night at 8:30 o'clock. One of Duquesne University's football coaches likely will be the principal speaker. John D. Holohan, Irish sports enthusiast, promoter of this district's first hurling exhibition, and graduate manager of athletics for the Dukes, also will speak. He thinks the introduction of hurling last summer made local Gaels "Irish sports conscious." The All Ireland Athletic Club is in process of organization. Attendance at the Irish reunion will largely determine the club's prosperity.

WEALTH OF STAR KICKERS FEATURES YEAR

Bob Hogan

By no means the least feature of 1933 football season was the unusual number of star kickers in various parts of the country. Pitt had one of the best distance punters in Bob Hogan, who has to his credit two drives that sailed and rolled 80 yards, and one of the leading quick kickers in Howdy O'Dell. Sil Zaninelli's great punting was a Duquesne asset. Izzy Weinstock, of Pitt, and Mose Kelsch, of the Pittsburgh pros, were right up front among the placement booters. Paul Pardonner, of Purdue, again was the surest dropkicker.

Exceptionally good punting was in evidence all through the season. Nick Lukats, of Notre Dame; Millard Howell, of Alabama; Ed Danowski, of Fordham; Lou Stark, of Syracuse; John Kabealo, of Ohio State; John Regeczi, of Michigan; Ollie Olsen, of Minnesota, and Jack Buckler, of Army, were only a few of the stars. Every section of the country had one or more punters of uncommon ability both as to distance and accuracy in placing kicks.

OBERLANDER DECLINES DARTMOUTH POST

Andrew (Swede) Oberlander, the forward-passing genius of the Dartmouth football team in 1925, who was taken from the line by Coach Jess Hawley and made into a great back, was first choice for head coach at Dartmouth when Jack Cannell resigned. But Oberlander refuses to consider it.

The reason given by the former star is the same one he gave when he quit as coach at Wesleyan recently after leading that college to the Little Three championship; He is determined to be a doctor and this is his last year as an interne.

REFEREE RECALLS FIRST MOVIE FIGHT

Jim Corbett

Many boxing followers have been under the impression that the first fight of which moving pictures were taken was the Jim Corbett-Bob Fitzsimmons battle at Carson City, Nev., on March 17, 1897, but Joe Vila puts John P. Eckhardt, old-time ring official, on the stand to prove that the original movie bout was one between the late Jim Corbett and Peter Courtney at Edison's Laboratory in New Jersey, on September 7, 1893, the first anniversary of Corbett's victory over John L. Sullivan. Eckhardt knows, because he officiated as referee.

As the veteran relates it, Corbett was offered $7,500 to knock out Courtney within six rounds in an eight-foot ring, and the action was photographed under a noon sun by a movie machine called the Kinetograph. The principals wore 10-ounce gloves and the time of each round was limited to one minute. Courtney, a Trenton truckman, didn't know a thing about boxing, but was strong and willing and consented to take a licking for $250. Trying out his big mitts, Corbett actually put the clumsy truckman to sleep in the first round, but Courtney was revived with several drinks of whisky.

Corbett pulled his punches in the next four rounds, and in the sixth found, to his dismay, that he couldn't put over the prescribed kayo until a few seconds before the minute expired, and even then it was Courtney's weak legs, more than Corbett's blows, that made the truckman take the count.

CLINIC MARKS PITT'S DEBUT ON COURT

By JESS CARVER

Attended by the fourth annual clinic, Pitt's contribution to the development of basketball in these parts, the 1933-34 intercollegiate floor compaign gets under way here tonight with an Eastern Intercollegiate Conference tussle between the Golden Panther and Georgetown's Hoyas.

The game will serve to top off a full day of intense activity in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion, which swung into being this morning at 9 o'clock and continues almost without interruption until the final whistle of tonight's varsity encounter.

MORE THAN 2,500 ATTEND

More than 2,500 high school and college coaches and players were on hand for the clinic.

Briefly, the program for the day follows:

Morning—Development of the Carlson system; ball handling exhibition by Chuck Taylor; demonstration of system by Monongahela and Zelienople High School teams.

Noon—Luncheon at Webster Hall.

Afternoon—Talks by Coaches Dr. Carlson, Max Hannum, of Tech; John Lawther, of Westminster; Chick Davies, of Duquesne; Ken Loeffler, of Geneva; John Knight, of Bethany, and Jim Miller, of Indiana State Teachers. Rules interpretation clinic, with Pitt and Duquesne varsity squads going through plays under supervision of new officials' group and Coaches Carlson and Davies.

Evening — Dinner at Webster Hall; Pitt Freshmen vs. Perry High School at 7 o'clock and Pitt-Georgetown game at 8:15.

In meeting the Hoyas, the Panthers are taking on one of the strongest Eastern intercollegiate quintets, the only Conference team able to beat the locals last year, this feat being accomplished at Washington, D. C. The team is a rangy one, seven of the 12 players of the squad standing six feet or better.

HOYAS STRONG

Georgetown will present two crack performers in Tom Carolan, veteran forward, and Eddie Hargedan, the lad whose long goal in the closing moments of play last year beat the Panthers.

The Panthers will line up tonight with young Skippy Hughes and Don McCamant, shifted from a guard position, at the forwards; the lanky Claire Cribbs at center and Russ Ochsenhirt and Charley Hughes at the guards.

The probable starting battle arrays follow:

PITT.		GEORGETOWN.
W. Hughes	F.	Hargedan
McCamant	F.	O'Connor
Cribbs	C.	Connors
C. Hughes	G.	Patrick
Ochsenhirt	G.	Crowley

with him. The Notre Dame president likewise verified the resignation of Jesse Harper, athletic director, but did not indicate a successor to that post.

Father O'Donnell added that Rev. O'Hara had visited him at Minneapolis two weeks ago and had discussed the changes.

It was reported today that Father O'Hara was to meet Layden at Indianapolis this afternoon to arrange final details of the apointment.

During his brief stopover here Father O'Donnell admitted he was disapointed over the showing of the Notre Dame football team during the past season. It was his belief, he said, that the squad could have done better. He declared he watched the Pittsburgh game, and he felt that the Pitt eleven played that day as Notre Dame teams used to play.

SPEAKS KINDLY OF HUNK

Father O'Donnell spoke kindly of Anderson, however, and declared he was pleased that Hunk was leaving Notre Dame in a "blaze of glory" following the Irish team's spectacular 13-to-12 victory over Army.

The Notre Dame president breakfasted here with Dr. Deno O'Connor, a friend, and then departed for South Bend by automobile. After a short stay at the school, during which the athletic situation will have been completely straightened out, he plans a vacation in the South. Dr. Walter McGuire, his personal physician, said that Father O'Donnell's condition was showing great improvement.

LAYDEN QUITS TEAM

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 9.—(INS.)—Elmer Layden's Notre Dame's new football coach, was not with the squad of Duquesne all-stars when they arrived here today. Layden's assistant at Duquesne, Joe Bach, headed the squad of 30 players who will meet an all-star team recruited from four Western universities here tomorrow.

Bach said Layden had stopped en route to St. Louis for a conference. It was reported he was to meet Father John F. O'Hara, vice president of Notre Dame University, at Indianapolis this afternoon to talk over his new assignment at his old alma mater, where Layden won fame as one of the famous "Four Horsemen."

The Duquesne allstar-s will meet an all-star team recruited from players of Purdue, St. Louis, Washington and Missouri universities.

GRID TITLE AT STAKE IN JOHNSTOWN CLASH

Joe Skladany Rated for 'All' Team

By CHRISTY WALSH,
Member, All-America Board of Football (Reg. U. S. Pat. Office.)

December 9 finds us at the end of the All-America trail. The following list is the last to be issued this season and includes several players not previously mentioned in the weekly ratings. The All-America team for 1933 will be announced one week from tomorrow and the 11 players whose names will be selected all have been designated in this column at least once between October 7 and today.

Ninety-one players have been been mentioned as deserving consideration for All-America honors and a supplementary list of another 100 names will be released when the team is announced.

The All-America Board of Football will issue Cards of Merit to the following players, likewise to those who will appear on the supplementary list:

1—SKLADANY, Pittsburgh (End). Winding up his college football career on Thanksgiving Day, this great end and acting-captain was deadly effective against Carnegie Tech, as he was all season. So smooth is this player's execution that his brilliance is overlooked by many observers. (Keck, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.)

2—PHILLIPS, Georgia Tech (Fullback). This 194-pound fullback played a tremendous defensive game in backing up the line against Duke. He tackled Duke's backs at the line of scrimmage and faded back into pass defensive with uncanny ability to diagnose plays. His plunging and blocking were great and he completed six out of 10 passes. (Danforth, Atlanta Georgian.)

3—LUKATS, Notre Dame (Halfback). Coming into his own in the last game of his college career, this Irish halfback was the outstanding offensive player on the field and the chief weapon that defeated a strong and confident Army team. His ball carrying was spectacular, but his great kicking was alone enough to rate him at the very top.

4—KILCULLEN, Yale (tackle). This hard-charging tackle was the most effective lineman of the afternoon in the Yale Bowl, and, although his team was badly beaten, Kilcullen was a standout player. He set the pace in the first period by ploughing through the Princeton line and turning a kick into a safety.

5 O'NEAL, St. Benedict's (Kansas) (halfback). Undiscovered by the spotlight of national publicity, this halfback on a small college team has been the sensation of the corn belt and is declared by a number of officials and writers to be the equal of any halfback in the country.

6—RANDOUR, Villanova (halfback). His team's highest scorer and declared to be the fastest halfback in the East, this hard-hitting ball carrier was a power on defense against Rutgers and his blocking was a factor in every score made by Villanova.

7—FEATHERS, Tennessee (halfback). This giant of Southern football was in every important offensive or defensive play. Almost unstoppable from the beginning of the season, Feathers has been declared by some coaches and observers to be the best Southern back in a decade.

8—ROSENBERG, Southern California, (Guard). This devastating guard, who has smashed the forward walls of California, Notre Dame, Stanford and St. Mary's, showed no mercy on the lighter, but equally heroic linemen from Georgia. No gains were made in his defensive zone but many Trojan gains followed in the wake of his deadly blocking.

9—SMITH, Washington, (End). Rated by many as the best wing man on the Pacific Coast, this great place-kicker and defensive bulwark carried the ball many times and gained many yards on end-around plays. His competitive spirit characterizes him as a fighter and leader, and his ability to smash interference won him the respect of rival signal-callers.

10—CLARY, South Carolina, (Quarterback). Two touchdowns and a safety were the highlights in his performance last Saturday, but his magnificent defensive work, his blocking and his inspiration to his teammates made this versatile back a big, single factor in the defeat of Auburn.

Tomorrow—All-East team selected by Pop Warner and Eddie Casey.

LA CROSSE TEAM HERE

The Pittsburgh team of the National Professional La Crosse League, will arrive in town today for final preparation for its opening league game at Motor Square Garden Tuesday night. A practice tilt will be staged tonight. The team held a workout in Toronto prior to leaving for this city. It was announced that the St. Louis franchise in the loop was moved to Indianapolis.

ASTO ON MOOSE CARD

Don Asto, Uniontown lightweight, has been signed to box Billy Mack, of Barberton, O., in the second preliminary to the Reds Barry-Tony Caiento bout at the Moose Temple Monday night. Kid Sterling, of Braddock, and Lloyd Pine, of Akron, are in the opener.

WINDBER MEETS HARRISBURG IN SCHOOL TILT

JOHNSTOWN, Dec. 9.—Johnstown today was the scholastic football mecca of Central Pennsylvania with a crowd of from 15,000 to 20,000 expected to witness the championship gridiron battle on the Point Field this afternoon between Windber, representative of the western division, and John Harris, or Harrisburg, champion of the Eastern section.

With 11 high school bands assembling here early this morning a colorful spectacle will precede the title battle in the local stadium. The gates open at noon and the bands will put on a two hour drill prior to the opening whistle.

JOHN HARRIS FAVORITE

More than 200 attended the annual banquet of the eastern and western sections held last night at the Fort Stanwix hotel, with the Windber team acting as hosts. Representatives were present from 65 of the high schools in the Central Pennsylvania Conference, including coaches, faculty members and principals.

Precedent and past records point to a victory for the Harrisburg eleven today. A Western team has never captured the championship since the playoff was inaugurated in 1926.

An Eastern team, Steelton, won the most decisive victory over the Western representative, Johnstown, in 1926, the score being 39 to 0. The winners during the other years of the championship playoff were Mt. Carmel in 1927, William Penn, of Harrisburg, 1928; Williamsport and Altoona, tied in 1929; Williamsport in 1930, John Harris in 1931, and William Penn in 1932.

WINDBER BOYS TRICKY

Windber will be outweighed about 15 pounds to the man in the title battle, but the Coaltown lads expect to make up for this disadvantage through their steller aerial attack and bag of tricks.

Windber has been defeated by both Jersey Shore and DuBois this season by the margin of a single touchdown, but was able to win the Western Section title by a 7-to-0 victory over the undefeated and untied Johnstown eleven on Thanksgiving Day.

DUNDEE BESTS CALLAHAN

BOSTON, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Now that he has met his obligations with the Boston Garden, which forced him to sign a two-match contract in return for his successful shot at the middleweight title, Vince Dundee today appeared well on the road to whatever riches a ring title commands in this deflated era.

This 29-year-old Baltimore Italian last night shaded Andy Callahan, stubby Lawrence fighter and first challenger for the title Dundee gained from the luckless Lou Brouillard five weeks ago.

Callahan fought himself out during the first 10 rounds. It was his first trip over the 15-round route and, in his efforts to flatten the crafty and skillfulll titlist, he wasted too much energy, with the result that Dundee, who weathered several terrific storms as he patiently waited for Callahan to shoot his bolt, came with a wild rush during the last five sessions and was rewarded with a divided decision.

Dundee, weighing 158½, was six pounds heavier than the Lawrence boy, and four inches taller.

In order to get a crack at the title Johnny Buckley, Callahan's manager, was forced to personally guarantee Dundee a flat $7,500. The gross gate receipts were $14,200 which failed to clear expenses by $900.

Callahan's only reward was the hearty cheers of the partisan crowd of 11,200.

Knockouts Feature Keystone A. C. Card

The fall and winter boxing program of the Keystone Athletic Club was inaugurated last night when nine bouts were staged. Three knockouts featured the card. The summaries:

112-pound class—Nick Galore, Harmarville, defeated Joe Sulk, Willow Club, three rounds; Howard Brown, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated Mendy Mendicino, Mon Valley A. C., three rounds.

126-pound class—Patsy Contillio, Willow Club, defeated Billy Pfeil, Northboro A. C., three rounds; Buddy Reiners, Northboro A. C., defeated Carmen Di Tato, Valley A. C., three rounds; Frankie Flavin, Willow Club, defeated Jackie Burke, Northboro A. C. (technical knockout), second round. Time—1:36.

136-pound class — Ray Eberle, South Heights A. C., defeated Tony Tortortice, Mon Valley A. C., three rounds; Eddie Katkish, Willow Club, defeated George Charles, Northboro A. C., three rounds; Frankie Herp, Pittsburgh Lyceum, knocked out Jackie Walls, Frawley A. C., second round. Time—1:04.

160-pound class—Ted Lindsey, Frawley A. C., defeated Jimmy (Red) Auth (technical knockout), second round. Time—2:40.

FINAL RATINGS

Today's are the final weekly ratings of the All-America Board of Football for the 1933 football season. See tomorrow's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph for complete list of players named during the season from whom the All-America team will be selected for publication one week from tomorrow.

Meanwhile the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's All-America team contest will get under way with the publication of this complete list. It will be short and snappy, winding up at midnight Wednesday. Ten beautiful All-America football blankets will be given as prizes to the winners. See tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph for complete details.

JOHN J. CROWLEY, 6-FOOT GUARD OF GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY FIVE

The collegiate basketball season opens in Pittsburgh today when the University of Pittsburgh stages its annual all-day clinic, followed by its first game, against Georgetown, in the evening. Crowley is one of the stars of the Hoyas. He is a powerful defensive player.

LAYDEN NAMED OFFICIALLY

HUNK MAY GO TO N. Y. U.

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Dec. 9.—(INS.)—Heartley (Hunk) Anderson and Jesse Harper were winding up their affairs as head football coach and athletic director, respectively, today to make way for Elmer Layden and the new athletic deal at Notre Dame University.

Anderson, it was disclosed, is angling for another job in the football coaching world, perhaps New York University, while Harper was preparing to go back to the Kansas ranch and the retirement he left after an airplane crash whisked Knute Rockne away in 1931.

Harper and Anderson admitted having turned in their resignations, but neither would go into details on future plans.

HARPER TO GO TO RANCH

Harper, the man who taught Knute Rockne his football here at this same institution, had this to say:

"My relations with Notre Dame have been most friendly. In many respects this has been my second home. 'Way back in the early days of football all my interests were centered here, and that's just about the way it has been lately.

"As soon as things can be arranged I will return to my ranch in Kansas. You know I'm a pretty good farmer."

Anderson admitted that he had carried on negotiations for another job, but refused to divulge just where he might locate. There was reason to believe, however, that he probably would become head coach at New York University, since that school is said to be in the market for a major league coach.

When the Notre Dame eleven returned from its victory over Army last Monday, Anderson remained behind in New York "on business" and did not return until Thursday.

BOOST FROM TEAMMATES

VILLANOVA, Pa., Dec. 9—(AP.)—As an expression of the confidence one of the "Four Horsemen" has in another of that famous football backfield, Harry Stuhldreher believes Elmer Layden "will do a good job" as coach at Notre Dame. Stuhldreher said:

"I was sorry to hear Hunk Anderson had to go, but with the vacancy there, I think they have selected a good man. It did not surprise much."

Stuhldreher, now coach at Villanova College, thinks the idea of Layden's assuming both the athletic directorship and coaching duties "will work out all right" because Layden "is a man of good contacts and will be able to handle the double assignment."

T. Monarchy fought his way out of the cellar in the City Pocket Billiard League by defeating W. Wilson, 100-69, last night at the Roosevelt parlors. Wilson dropped to last place by his setback. Monarchy had a high run of 24 to Wilson's 16 in 20 innings.

Fight Results

At Boston—Vince Dundee, middleweight champion, defeated Andy Callahan, 15 rounds; Honey Melody defeated Frankie Carlton, 7 rounds; Red Affinito defeated Charley Longo, 6 rounds; Leo Curley defeated Carl Hude, 4 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Johnny Jadick defeated Tony Falco, 10 rounds.

At San Francisco—Billy Donohue knocked out Tom Patrick, 7 rounds; Pietro Georgi defeated Max Maxwell, 4 rounds.

At Laredo, Tex.—Kid Laredo defeated Frenchy Le Fevre, 10 rounds; Kid Torreon knocked out Bat Ancira, 2 rounds.

At Baltimore—Joey Ferrando defeated Charley Gomer, 10 rounds; Jimmy Jones knocked out Pete Bevens, 5 rounds.

At Salt Lake City—Bill Longson won on a foul from Jack Fox, 3 rounds.

At Hollywood, Cal.—Georgie Hansford defeated Tommy Paul, 10 rounds.

DUQUESNE JOB STILL OPEN

Father M. J. Brannigan, vice president of Duquesne University, when informed this morning that Notre Dame officially had announced the appointment of Elmer Layden as head football coach for 1934, stated that no definite steps have been taken to replace Layden on the Bluff.

Father J. J. Callahan, president of the university, is confined in the Mercy Hospital and will not be able to return to his desk until next week.

No action will be taken on the appointment of a successor until the athletic council meets. Father Brannigan indicated that this meeting will be held sometime next week.

BACH NOT NAMED

The failure of Notre Dame authorities to include the name of Joe Bach, present assistant coach to Layden on the Bluff, among the new group of assistants at South Bend, leads many to believe that Bach has the inside track on the job at Duquesne.

Layden, who left with his squad of all-stars for St. Louis last night, where tomorrow the Dukes' seniors meet an all-star college [illegible] of St. Louis players, turned [illegible] squad over to Bach and [illegible] for South Bend. Bach said:

"There is nothing I [illegible] better than a chance [illegible] on for the Dukes in Elmer's place. My stay on the Bluff has been extremely pleasant and I could think of no job in football coaching which would afford me more desirabe conditions and opportunities. Of course, if another coach is selected I woud not care to stay here. My second choice would be to stick with Layden and go back to Notre Dame, provided such an opportunity arises."

STAR LINEMAN

Bach was a star lineman on the Notre Dame club some years back. A rumor of the past few days mentioned Joe's name in connection with the Syracuse University coaching job, but Layden's assistant said he had heard nothing definite from Syracuse. Vic Hansen is the head coach there, but it has been reported that he will leave. Bach spent four years as assistant coach at Syracuse after graduating from Notre Dame.

Others mentioned as possible successors to Layden are Harry Stuhldreher and Don Miller, the former is the head mentor of the clever Villanova team, while Miller, former backfield coach at Ohio State, is practising law in Cleveland.

SNAVELY TO STAY

LEWISBURG, Dec. 9.—Dr. B. W. Griffith, graduate manager of athletics at Bucknell University, said tonight that Carl Snavely, football coach for the past seven years, probably will be offered another long-term contract. The Bucknellian, university newspaper, asked that Snavely, whose three-year contract expires this year, be continued in the position. The athletic council meets tomorrow.

MACFARLANE LEADS GOLFERS

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Dec. 9.—(A.P.)—Wee Willie MacFarlane, 42-year-old Scot, who came to this country years ago as a plasterer, carded a sparkling 33-34—67, four under par, to establish a new course record and lead the field at the end of the first day of play yesterday in the $10,000 Biltmore open tournament here.

MacFarlane's great card on the 6,640-yard, par-71 course, blasted the hope of lanky Denny Shute, Philadelphia, the defending champion, and three other topnotch golfers of holding the lead with 71s.

Included in that quartet with Shute, who also holds the British open championship, were Johnny Goodman, Omaho amateur, the wearer of the American open crown; Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., and Ralph Guldahl, of St. Louis.

BOXING BOARD AIDS AMATEURS

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Officials of the Amateur Athletic Union, who guide the destinies of amateur boxing in this district, and the State Athletic Commission yesterday pledged closer harmony at a joint meeting.

Harry T. Farrell, commission chairman, presided over the session, at which difficulties concerning sanctions for bouts in upstate districts were ironed out.

Heretofore, amateur boxing officials have granted permission for meets to be held within 30 days after the authority is given. In many places the arrangement has not been to the advantage of performer or promoter because financial conditions and working hours interfered, it was stated.

Farrell said this condition was detrimental to the sport. His discretion will be used in future boxing shows, and amateur officials said they will agree with any decision he makes.

Five-round bouts, a new feature in amateur boxing, can be substituted for the usual three-round contests, but the periods must be limited to two minutes.

CONNIE QUIET ON COCHRANE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, said last night he had no comment to make on the hope expressed by Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit club, that Mickey Cochrane will manage the Tigers in 1934. Mack said:

"I've nothing to give out about Cochrane or any of my players. "I'll be in Chicago Tuesday when the meetings open. Then I might have something to say."

However, fans expressed the opinion that Cochrane has caught his last game for the A's and will soon take up new duties with Detroit. Friends of Cochrane said he has made plans for a hurried trip to Lakeland, Fla., as soon as his appointment is announced, to make arrangements for the Tigers' training camp.

SCHOOL HEADS MEET

The class AA members of the W. P. I. A. L. are holding a meeting in Webster Hall today to arrange plans for the 1934 football race.

DUKES ON EDGE FOR STRUGGLE IN ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 9.—Joe Bach and the Duquesne varsity-alumni all-star gridiron contingent moved in on the Mound City early today and this afternoon will invade Walsh Field for final workout prior to their appearance against the combined senior delegations of the University of Missouri, St. Louis University tnd Washington University in Father Maxwell's annual Boys' Club charity contest here on the morrow. The more or less hastily recruited Bluffite squad, 25 strong—at least 'tis hoped it's strong—upon arrival went directly into quarters at the Hotel Melbourne to rest up before the post-luncheon practice session.

When Coach Bach counted noses of his followers prior to leaving the Hill-top last evening he found no less than 14 old-timers aligned to supplement his 11 Red and Blue seniors for the jaunt. The following Dukes of other years are on deck for the fray: Buff Donnelli, Lou Skender, Paul Abele, Ted Todd, Larry Sullivan, Al Venneri, Jack Donahue, Kass Kovalcheck, Ganzy Benedict, Benny Barrett, Moon Clark, Mike Ferrare, Bud Devinney and Ben Pawlina. Present seniors include Capt. Al Krankota, Silvio Zaninelli, Al DeLuca, Steve Sinko, Armand Niccolai, Frank DeCoster, Ed Powell, Gerald Baker, Henry Weinberg, Benny Ciccone, and Dick Nussbaum. Graduate Managet John Holahan, Student Managers Ed Gallagher and Kenneth Escher, and Medical Assistant Frank Stanish round out the party.

Virtually nothing is known of the fashion in which the Hillmen's opponents will line up tomorrow. As a matter of fact, never even in the gloomiest of their evening battles have the Night Riders been more in the dark than they stand today in regard to the rivals whom they will be called upon to face in the Boys' Club classic. Who will handle the Missourians' reins, what system of attack will be trotted forth by the home combine, and just about how highly the enemy is to be esteemed are points still to be determined by the visiting athletes and their bosses.

OLD RIVALS MEET

Rivals of many years' standing will clash when the Braddock Merchants, led by Johnny Brown, former Pitt center, invades the Homestead High School floor to play the Cup Jenkins club. The lineup of the Jenkins team will be strengthened by the addition of Brud Stephens, former Duquesne University captain.

Carbon Copy of Rockne, That's Elmer Layden

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

Knute Rockne in the spirit will coach Notre Dame's football teams beginning next fall, with Elmer Layden named to succeed Heartly (Hunk) Anderson as head tutor of the Irish.

Layden is a chip off the old block, or Rock, if you will, and no mistake.

He has all of the mannerisms of the famous coach who handled the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame when Layden was the fullback of that immortal quartet of gridiron gallopers, back in 1924.

HAS KNUTE'S MANNERISMS

He doesn't resemble his old boss in build, being tall and slender, but he has the same control over his men, the same decisive gestures, the same incisive manner of speech. He tells a story as Rockne told stories, he commands a situation and respect as Rockne commanded them.

Perhaps it is because Layden loved his old mentor so well that he has emulated him so much. Undoubtedly the effect was a bit studied and affected in the beginning, but it has grown upon the young coach and today he is the walking image of the beloved Knute in everything but build.

Will Layden succeed in the hot spot which proved too tough for Hunk Anderson, his friend, a man whom he admires as a coach?

SHOULD MAKE GOOD

From observation of his progress during the seven years Elmer has been coaching at Duquesne University, it is my guess that he will—and in a big way. His coaching ability is unquestioned; he has turned out consistently good teams, with his product of this year his masterpiece.

This 1933 team was such that it lost only to Pitt by a 7-0 score in a great game which drew 60,000 persons. It was a team which functioned so smoothly that it drew the warmest praise from scouts, who pronounced it the slickest eleven they had seen in action all season. It was the only team to defeat Detroit University, which trounced Holy Cross, which won over Harvard. It defeated Bucknell, a strong team, and West Virginia, Wash-Jeff and others. It was a team which could have held its own against any of the better teams in the land. As a result of its fine record, it has been selected to play the University of Miami in the post-season Tournament of the Palms at Coral Gables, Fla., on New Year's Day, when Stanford and Columbia will battle in the Tournament of Roses classic at Pasadena, Cal.

POSSESSES REAL TACT

When Layden first came to Duquesne football there was at a low ebb. He had to depend a good deal in his first important games on forward passing. Gradually he devolped a strong running attack. His kickers always have been good. His lines have been strong and have possessed a fine charge. They were coached in rcent years by Joe Bach, another former Notre Dame star.

One of Rockne's greatest assets as a coach [illegible] his ability to handle men. [illegible] was his tact or diplomacy [illegible] any emergency. Anderson's main fault was said to be a lack of tact in handling his players; stories of internal dissension would appear to bear out this point.

Layden has proved himself a diplomat. He is the master of his team. When he commands, the players jump. There is that Rockne touch, that ringing Rockne manner of speaking, that confidence-inspiring bearing.

'ANOTHER ROCKNE'

Notre Dame will come back under the happy choice of Layden as coach and athletic director. He is an organizer and a director. The Irish began their rebound in the final quarter of the Army game which finished their most disastrous season. They found themselves again, and Layden may be depended upon to capitalize the psychological effect of that game-winning rally from the abyss of defeat.

Pittsburgh loses a great young coach in the passing of Elmer Layden from its ranks, but what is Pittsburgh's loss is Notre Dame's gain. The carbon copy of Rockne, for he is all of that in an embryonic sort of a way, should lead the Irish back to the heights. He appears to be the correct answer to the momentous question:

"Where will Notre Dame get another Rockne?"

CELTIC STARS TO PLAY HERE

By TOM BIRKS

The Rochester Celtics, of Rochester, N. Y., will meet the winner of the Morgan-Cecil game scheduled for Morgan tomorrow, in the first round proper of the National open soccer championship at Greenlee Field one week from tomorrow.

This will be the first big soccer attraction in the Pittsburgh district this season, and it shows that the National open challenge cup committee has much faith in the drawing ability of our teams as they bring the game here.

National soccer men always admitted that Western Pennsylvania was the best soccer drawing territory in the country, but the blue laws would not allow teams from this district to get the benefit of the draw. This is the first big game to be awarded here on a Sunday date.

In the Central District League this afternoon, Dunwicks go to Swissvale to meet the Union Switch, Old Carnegie clashes with the Rovers at Leslie Park, Ambridge comes to the Arsenal Park, and Clan Douglas goes to Aliquippa.

In the Panhandle League, the Morgan Juniors travel to Houston to meet the Merchants.

HOYAS BEAT BUCKNELL

LEWISBURG, Dec. 8.—(AP.)—Georgetown University's basketball team handed the Bucknell University five a 49-to-24 trouncing tonight in their first Eastern intercollegiate conference game.

SQUASH SEASON GETS UNDERWAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The center of the local inter-club sport stage this afternoon goes to athletes of the Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association League, the class A sector of which inaugurates festivities of the 1933-34 campaign today. Jousts are billed at the Keystone A. C. and the Allegheny Country Club, the two Keystone crews tangling on their home courts as P. A. A. invades Sewickley and the titled, but depleted, Pittsburgh Golf Club loafs. The class B group gets under way next Saturday.

Meanwhile, in the new K. A. C. gallery arena, Ben Pope, giant home ace, resumes hostilities at 1:15 p. m. with National Champion Johnny Skillman, Apawamis "pro," the stars being slated for third and fourth installments of a three-day, six-session exhibition that began yesterday noon and currently stands at four games apiece. The remainder of the club card calls for City Handball League contests wherein all outfits of the bi-divisional circuit, save Y. M. C. A. Seconds, are slated to perform.

The Keystoners, boasting wealth of material that has permitted the splitting of their talent into two squads, look for bitter civil strife. McCook Reed, city premier, heads the No. 1 group and is followed by Ed Seifert, Princeton ace; Charley Fagan, Chip Kennedy and Del Kennedy. The No. 2 quintet is topped by H. V. Blaxter, scintillant Harvard product, who is backed in turn by Bill Bickel, Jean Caspar, Larry Semans and A. W. Schmidt. Dr. Dave O'Loughlin leads the P. A. A. contingent and his cohorts include Frank McClintock, Dr. "Whitey" Stegeman and Paul Sullivan. The Allegheny delegation will probably feature Dave Gilmore, Frank White, former national titleholder, and the Robinsons, Bill and Alex.

Pope and Skillman divided honors with utmost evenness in their twin seances yesterday, the results reading—with the Pittsburgher's scores listed first—13-15, 15-12, 12-15, 15-9 for the noon affair and 18-17, 15-7, 11-15, 15-18 for the dinner time frolic. The competition attained spectacular heights on frequent occasions.

RANDOUR TO PLAY

VILLANOVA, Pa., Dec. 9.—(AP.)—George (Whitey) Randour, of McDonald, Pa., captain and star halfback of the Villanova College football team, yesterday received an invitation to play on the "All North" eleven in the annual North-South football game in New York December 24.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Grand Guy by Jim Tully

"DEAR WALTER," writes Jim Tully from Tall Timber, North Hollywood, California, "our grand comrade; Frank Wilstach, has found the last simile. He was fond of you, Walter, and of the turbulent mick who writes you this note. So I want you to let me pass a glimmer of Greatheart on to your readers. I haven't space, and the words crash upon me—but there is something in all magnificent friends that is akin, though they may be further apart in many ways than a sucker and his money a day after pay-day.

"A man who has friends must pay his own price when at last they slide into the last oblivion. In the last year, Mike Donlin strikes out, then Bill Mizner hears the drone of the eternal bee, and now, Frank Wilstach. These three men were supreme individuals, and yet they were akin. There was in them the same delicacy, the charm, that one finds in Henry Mencken, George Nathan and Jack Dempsey—and the mightily lamented Paul Bern. By not using friendship as a crutch upon which to lean, they made of it an oak that only the lightning of death could shatter.

"Frank was the world's greatest book collector. I borrowed reams of books from him—and returned none. Books were everywhere in his New York apartment. Mrs. Wilstach, the best cook in the East, would find them in the oven. He took a pride in my library and would look about it and say, 'Ah, ye Irish thief.' Frank would have forgiven Bluebeard had that rascal loved books. He could no more pass a second hand book store without stopping than an actor could pass a mirror without looking at himself.

"He had a passion for the beauty of words. He loved Keats and Wild Bill Hickok. So diligent was he in his search for similes that he actually found a good one in a popular novel. He once found where Alfred Henry Lewis lived near Amsterdam avenue and spent hours taking pictures of the place. He even hauled me there. He told me the story of the little girl who's buried back of Grant's Tomb. I don't know how old Frank was . . . Like W. H. Hudson, he hated the passing of years. So I treated him always as if he were 21. I have never known a cleaner heart, in that he was devoid of envy, and malice, and all the little corrosions.

"When Will Hays, his boss, heard that he was ill, the maligned man of the movies hurried specialists to him. No man ever made of life a more delightful and dignified preamble. Give him a line, Walter. For our pal has gone in search of a simile for death. Let the vagabond—whom he loved—fold his hands in your column—Jim."

Observations

The comedy, "She Loves Me Not," which is one of the top-notch amusements in town, failed to excite some of the potential backers when the sponsors were desperately seeking an angel to have it presented. Mr. Wiman, one of the producers, talked to Jock Whitney about putting up some money. Mr. Whitney read the manuscript and then said: "I think it is all right, and if my sister will take half I'll put up the other half."

Another fortnight was wasted waiting for Jock's sister to decide about financing one-half of the cost. Mr. Wiman was getting impatient. He called Mr. Whitney and asked for a verdict. "She's only read the first act so far," said Jock. The producer replied: "Well, never mind, then. I've found someone who is putting up the money. Thanks, anyway."

The premiere performance is now on. Seated down front are Jock Whitney and his sister. The walls are cracking from the bombardment of howls. The aisles are impregnable with spectators who laughed so lustily they fell into them. Even the critics choke from excessive laughter, straining muscles that haven't been used in years.

Only two of the audience are glum.

The column's favorite shadow, Master Isadore Elinson, is in a breezy mood today. Have a chuckle:

Max Baer may give up the ring for the movies, eh? Well, it's pleasanter to have your face on a screen than on a canvas.

The Invisible Man idea in the movies would be even better if they worked on that guy who sits in front of me!

And it's about time a lotta motorists recognized the red, too.

Am I busy? Say, I'm busier than the fellow who runs the elevator up to Mae West's apartment!

That recent Hollywood earthquake was even more tragic than reported. Hundreds of scenarios were not destroyed!

What an age! Now there's a car on the market with knees. I get it. After running a pedestrian down—it now can kick him, too.

For the Craft

Within 10 days New York will have a new morning gazette—"The Express"—devoted to sports and theatricals. Arthur James will edit . . . It begins with a million and a half dollars backing and will sell for a nickel . . . A syndicate of five men will boss it . . . It's a girl at the Philip Barrys . . . King Features is dickering to syndicate Stanley Walker's "Night Club Era" . . . Frances Williams, who recently married Miquel de Sousa, is flying home to mother already.

Novelette

THE EXCITING moving picture "Forgotten Men" is really a series of authentic war movies—taken of actual fighting during the World War. Recently it appeared at an Indianapolis theater and a chap named Herman C. Higgs, one of that city's unemployed, was hired for the engagement to help advertise the movie in the ballyhoo outside. Higgs was one of the group carrying a sign about the attraction. How aptly named is that movie! "Forgotten Men," indeed.

Four days after it began its run Higgs got a chance to go in and see it. One of the scenes made him cry. It revealed Gen. Pershing pinning the Distinguished Service Cross—on Higgs!

The Art Society brought us a most joyous Christmas party last night when it presented the Vienna Choir Boys in Carnegie Music Hall. It was one of the really popular concerts of the season and for good reasons.

Mr. Lissfelt

We had been led to expect a little more serious program. Instead we had a taste of old Vienna, the seriously musical Vienna, indeed, but also the Vienna which alone could give us the waltzes of Lanner and Strauss and the comic operas which are the light-hearted spirit of her denizens.

Even in the music of these children was the devotion one finds at St. Steven's Cathedral, and at the other extreme, the gaiety of the Prater and the Wienerwald.

As to the program, it is regrettable that we did not hear more of the short church cantatas, but the charm of these boys atoned for any shortcomings in the music.

In their school church music is their discipline, music like the Offenbach operetta, their recreation. And what fun they had singing and playing it, for the Viennese is generous in good humor and the acting worthy of grownups.

The quality of the choir, as we heard it last night, is not comparable to other great European choirs. Its tone has an edge which, though not disagreeable in the least, must wear a while. As to the musical discipline among these singers, it goes without saying that they are worthy of their excellent reputation. Hans Urbanek is the director.

There were many encores, "Silent Night, Holy Night," a Mozart "Slumber Song," several waltzes of Strauss, including the "Blue Danube," and a smart rendition of "Dixie."

I haven't seen the Art Society in so good a humor since Stephen Leacock lectured here, and that cordiality was assured from the prelude, when the choir sang "The Star Spangled Banner" in English and in the broadest of Viennese accents.

Two Baby Carts Taken From Porch

Two baby carriages were stolen from the porch of I. Blackstone, of 5417 Coral street, according to a police report.

Young Doug's Stay to Be Short

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 9.—Penalties of $5,000 a day must be paid by RKO if the studio doesn't finish with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., within three weeks of the time he was scheduled to step off the plane here at noon.

The young actor plans a rush trip back to England to make another picture.

En route to Hollywood, he wired, however, that he has no intention of remaining abroad indefinitely. Young Doug admits to friends that he likes English club and London night life better than that in this country, but he shrugs off all that talk about giving up his citizenship.

The actor's first American picture since "Morning Glory" will be opposite Colleen Moore in "Success Story."

Judged by his wires to his manager, M. C. Levee, Doug is more excited, though, at the prospect of seeing the football game today between the University of Southern California and Washington.

* * *

Maybe I shouldn't spoil the surprise, but Andy Devine will send Christmas cards this year reading:

"A happy Yuletide to you, and if it isn't a happy Yuletide for me, maybe Yuletide me over next year."

* * *

The blonde Veree Teasdale and dapper Adolphe Menjou probably will honeymoon in sunny Spain. The actor has engaged Eumenio Blanco, former opera singer, to double in the duties of dresser and Spanish instructor, and he tells friends of plans to visit Madrid in the summer.

Katherine Carver will get her final decree from Menjou on August 14.

* * *

The most embarrassed guest at a recent Mayfair party was June Knight. A marvelous ballroom dancer, June went flat on the floor when she was gliding in the arms of Edgar Selwyn. What actually happened, June says, was that a waiter slipped and upset the pair.

* * *

One of the odd things brought out by the Lee Tracy incident was the interpretation of Mexican law that what a man says when he is liquored up is true.

In other words, the lawmakers of the southern republic hold to the old contention, "in vino veritas."

So, when Lee shouted insults, the law ruled he must be saying what he really thought of Mexico, and not just indulging in exuberance.

* * *

However crazy Rudy Vallee may be about Alice Faye, the two are not coming out on the same train. She will arrive here today and the crooner will follow later . . . The record long-distance fight talk to a football player will take place today when the director, Irving Cummings, speaks to 16-year-old Irving, Jr., just before the Black-Foxe Military Academy team goes on the gridiron to battle the champion Hawaiian prep team

Did you know: That, back in the days when Claudette Colbert was ambitious to be a dress designer, she used to work in a New York gown shop?

Automobile Dealers Sponsor Film

"These Thirty Years," a talking picture produced by the Ford Motor Company, is to be shown in the Davis for an entire week, beginning today. It is a comedy drama. Complimentary tickets are being distributed by Ford dealers of Allegheny County under whose auspices the local showings are being held. Players in "These Thirty Years" include David Morris, K. Elmo Lowe, Donald McDonald, Frederick Forrester and Alice John.

Varied Acts in Bill Of Sunday Benefit

Among the acts of "Pittsburgh on Parade," benefit to be held at the Stanley Sunday night, will be Frances Faye, comedienne pianist, Bernie Armstrong, Jeanne Brideson, violinist, the Jubilee Singers, Dave Jeffries, master of ceremonies, Mike Sandretto, singing accordion player, and many other acts. The screen feature will be "Rafter Romance," with Ginger Rogers and Norman Foster.

Burlesque

Mae Belle, singer and dancer, is featured in "Satan's Daughters," burlesque to open in the Variety with a Sunday midnight show.

Acts and Film In Pitt

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

A little bit of everything—dancing, singing, stunting, gagging make up this week's vaudeville offering in the Pitt.

Doc Baker, in the featured act, bears out his reputation as a quick-change artist by appearing in enough outfits to stock a costume shop. With him, likewise attired in a multitudinous array of dancing clothes, are Frank and Madeline Dumont and their Fast Steppers who add to the speed of the skit.

"Two Pints of Comedy," Melino and Davis, wisecrack, and Coogan and Casey give a rather rough and tumble doctor-patient situation. Musical nonsense, a la "Yes, We Are Collegiate," is the delivery of the Vanderbilt Boys in harum-scarum style.

Abbott and Bisland fool the customers by departing from their pal line to present popular song numbers.

For a straight dance act there are Miller, Malvey and Reba, with the ever-moving feet, and closing the show is an exhibition of acrobatics by the Four Dobas, who do their stuff on high.

Mystery, employing the accepted comedy aids of the fresh reporter and dumb detective, is the keynote of "The Sphinx," on the screen, in which Lionel Atwill and Sheila Terry are assigned the chief roles in a plot of five unsolved murders.

'From Headquarters' Film in Sheridan

"From Headquarters," a gangster picture the theme of which concentrates on the police angle in crme solution, is the new photoplay feature in the Sheridan Square, with George Brent and Margaret Lindsay in the leading roles. It is a first-run film in which the focal point of interest is the murder of a man, with suspicion pointing at first one and then another of several enemies. The technical side of police work in such cases is gone into pretty much in detail, as they are worked into the main thread of the action.

Love Triangle In Film at Warner

By MARGARET RUSSELL

"If I were free . . ." That is what the man has said to the "other woman" in a human triangle, since the world began. Some men mean it. Others do not. But Clive Brook means it when he says it to Irene Dunne in "If I Were Free" in the Warner this week.

Not a story of action or of deeds. Rather, of words, of emotion, of a situation which has its counterpart in everyday life as well as being a favorite theme on stage and screen—the eternal triangle of two women and a man.

If Irene Dunne is trying to duplicate her unforgetable role in "Back Street," she falls short, perhaps because John Van Druten's play, "Behold We Live," from which the picture was made, does not provide the depth of pathos, the life-long thwarted quality of Fannie Hurst's story.

Clive Brook is colder than John Boles in his ardent "Back Street" role, but no one can doubt the sincerity of his excellently restrained fervor for the woman just beyond his legal reach.

There's no sense in elaborating on the exact difficulties these two experience in "If I Were Free." These difficulties provide the only variation to the age-old theme and not a vary startling variation at that. Until the last two moments, it looks like a thorough-going tragedy of frustration, with the hero expiring on his death bed and the lady dissolving into tears. But the hand of the all-kind author of screen versions of human life, sees to it at the very last moment, that the patient hero has a chance to realize his dream of what it would be like "if he were free . . ."

Mae West appears briefly in flashes of famous first-nighters in a "Hollywood on Parade" subject. Janet Reade does a terrible aping of her in "The Mild West," a silly burlesque of the days of the Golden West. Fox Movietone News and a John Hix feature, "Strange As It Seems," completes the program.

Liquor Gala On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

New York City's effort to quench thirsty throats after a parching of 14 years resulted in lively scenes among wholesale and retail liquor stores as well as in the restaurants and hotels. These pictures are contained in the curent issue of Hearst Metrotone News. In Washington, Acting Secretary of State Phillips is seen and heard as he reads the official proclamation adding the Twenty-first Amendment to the Constitution and then signs it.

The climax of the 19,000-mile survey trip by Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh who completed their 1870-mile hop from Africa to Brazil is graphically portrayed. There are explanatory remarks by the Globe Trotter.

Spectacular scenes of the bombing raid on a village stronghold of Chinese rebels come from Nanking.

Mauna Loa, Hawaii's highest and most notorious volcano, is in eruption again and thrilling pictures show the havoc wrought.

Boy and girl Health Champions for 1933 are chosen in Chicago. Winners are Shirley Drew, Missouri; Glen Sherwood, Kansas, and Clista Millspaugh, Iowa.

A sensational finish marks the running of the Australian Derby at Melbourne with 90,000 fans in attendance.

Cars pile up in a huge mass of wreckage when an express train smashes into a derailed freight car near Quantico, Va.

Cowboys and their bucking broncos give an exciting rodeo show at Los Angeles.

Note—Because of the necessity upon theater managers to arrange programs in time schedules, it is possible that some of the subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

All in a Day

Passing of An Era

FUNNY THE way things happen. Some 13 years ago I marched along Broadway with the crowds that were celebrating prohibition. The other night I marched along the same thoroughfare with the crowds that were celebrating repeal. The two events had one thing in common, in both cases the merry-making was synthetic.

It dawns upon me now, however, that I am a rather lucky human. For I have survived an era—and one of the most disastrous experiments in all history. My stomach may not be what it once was, and the old ear may not hear the rustle of a skirt when it's more than a mile away. But I'm still alive. And that, after 13 years of Prohibition, is decidedly something.

What a period we have just gone through, my friends! What a stupid, idiotic, incomprehensible, futile period!

Consider just a few of the events that we have countenanced in the last 13 years:

We saw policemen, officials, judges—and even a President—fall prey to the racketeer.

We saw the passage of the Jones law and, under it, a mother sentenced to five years in jail for selling a pint of gin.

We saw innocent people shot to death by prohibition agents, who were, from top to bottom, the very scum of the earth.

We saw as many as 20 men at a clip fall dead from poisoned alcohol. And we saw a government continuing to poison its alcohol, although it knew full well that some of that alcohol would eventually find its way into somebody's glass.

We saw—and laughed at—the young boy who drank from his flask; the young girl who had to be carried home from the high school dance, and the mother who drank her whisky straight.

We saw homes raided without search warrants; violators sentenced without juries; clubs wrecked without warnings; liquors confiscated without reasons, and arrests made without evidences.

We saw—well, what's the use of going on? You know as well as I that, for a leading nation in an advanced state of civilization, we saw such a continuation of hideous stupidities as I pray to God we will never see again? . . .

When I think back over some of my experiences, I must smile to myself. I often wonder what became of that prohibition agent who raided a club when he was so drunk that he was barely able to stand—and who told me later in very thick fashion that "the conshitooshun mush be upheld."

I wonder, too, what became of Doc Winton, down at Vanderbilt University, who demanded that the Nashville Tennessean stop publishing my column because I advocated repeal. Men like Dr. Winton really meant well. They just didn't know the great harm that was being done.

I wonder what became of the overcoats of the two judges who ran into the night when the old Hotsy-Totsy Club was raided? Or of the speakeasy where the proprietor had to take down the curtains around his booths because "it was against the law?" Or of the bootlegger who told me he owned America's finest car because "it held 24 cases?"

Memories, all of them. So many memories that it will take me several volumes to set them all down. Memories of a dread era. . . .

And what's going to be? Well, that's rather difficult to say. It took us two or three years to accustom ourselves to a laughable Prohibition, and it's going to take us almost that long to accustom ourselves to Repeal. I'm afraid there is going to be plenty of bootlegging for a long time.

Then, too, current liquor prices are far too high. The Government taxes are both exorbitant and absurd. Unless the distillers are profiteering themselves into ultimate ruin, there is no earthly reason why a drink of American rye whisky should run as high as 75 cents. And why a decent drink of Scotch should hit 50 cents is beyond my comprehension.

On Repeal night Broadway was in pretty tough shape. There wasn't a speakeasy or restaurant owner on the street who wasn't anxious to obey every provision of the new law. But the powers-that-be didn't give them much of a chance.

Nobody knew any thing about new liquor, or about licenses, or about the manner in which the police would act. This was a big chance; an early New Year's Eve to help make a dollar. But the Government—and the State—botched everything by ignoring the situation until the last second.

New York with the highly efficient Edward P. Mulrooney at the helm of its alcoholic control, will eventually struggle into the clear. We'll have bars—and we'll drink as we please; standing up, sitting down or flattened out.

But it's going to take a little time. And far more co-operation than we've had up to now.

Yes, I marched along with the crowds that were celebrating Repeal. There wasn't' much to it, for the situation was more of a newspaper build-up than anything else. There wasn't a man or woman in the entire gathering who couldn't have purchased any desired amount of liquor ever since Prohibition got under way. And it's' difficult to raise a great deal of enthusiasm over a complete mockery.

Maybe the government has learned a lesson through the fall of the Prohibition Act. I fervently hope so—but I doubt it. For Congress will always have its quota of jackasses who are not content to leave well enough alone.

Baron Pearl Convinces Sharlie

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Transplanted from the air to Hollywood, Jack Pearl's amusing Baron Munchausen appeared on the screen at the Penn Theater yesterday. In "Meet the Baron" he is surrounded by an elephant, a hippopotamus, a lion, a donkey, Schnozzle Durante, Zasu Pitts, Edna May Oliver, Ted Healy and his stooges, to say nothing of some very pretty girls in and out of various kinds of clothes.

Mr. Seibel

The scenario opens in Africa, where the real Baron is lost in the jungle, accompanied by the expresser of pants and the vociferous Schnozzle. The real Baron absconds with the water supplies, and the other pair are saved and brought to civilization in triumph.

So Baron Pearl has to tell lies about his adventures, and is expected to lecture at Cuddle College on the Hudson, where the aforesaid pretty girls give lessons in anatomy, while Healy and his stooges are plumbers.

Aside from the Baron's imaginative flights, this is mostly old revue stuff and time-honored slapstick. The Baron courts Zasu in mildly amusing fashion which at one point becomes mildly offensive.

Aside from a scene in which Pearl rides the cantankerous donkey and a scene in which a cannon salute stampedes the elephant, "Meet the Baron" is conventionally hilarious but lavishly produced.

Laurel and Hardy, on the other hand, have a very wildly laughable series of adventures as chimney-sweeps who fall into the experiments of a scientist looking for the elixir of youth. If Bryan were living, he'd call this monkey business Darwinian propaganda.

AMUSEMENTS.

STOCKS FIRMER AFTER INITIAL HESITATION

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Stocks firmed after initial hesitation today. Activity held in moderate bounds but numerous advances approximated a point. Alcohols and metals recuperated moderately from yesterday's selling. A number of specialties stepped higher.

Auburn Motors scampered up 4 points. Issues advancing major fractions to more than a point included Western Union, J. C. Penney, United States Pipe & Foundry, American Commercial Alcohol, Du Pont, Cerro de Pasco, Johns-Manville, Santa Fe, National Distillers, Case, New York Central and Allied Chemical. American Telephone, United States Steel and Union Pacific showed lesser improvement.

Leading European currencies were only slightly changed before the announcement that the domestic gold price, for the eighth consecutive day, was being held at $34.01 an ounce. At the opening, sterling eased ⅛ cent at $5.15⅜, and French francs were up .01 of a cent ta 6.16 cents.

Followers of the oil shares expressed much interest in the new proposals put forward by the petroleum industry as substitutes for price-fixing. These proposals, made public by Secretary of the Interior Ickes as oil administrator, provide for removing excess stocks of gasoline from the market and guaranteeing profit margins to distributors. Leading refiners have consistently voiced opposition to the price-fixing plan on the ground that it would not solve the problems confronting the industry.

GRAINS RALLY AFTER DIP

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Despite an early downward trend in grain prices today, the markets quickly rallied. All the cereal pits had a sold out appearance, with indications of a natural recovery. Opening at ¼ off to ¼ up, wheat sagged all around, and later scored gains. Corn started unchanged to ½ lower, and subsequently showed a general setback, with upturns following.

Buying by Railroads Bolster Steel Mill Schedules

Railroad buying in the past four weeks has been one of the sustaining influences in the steel industry. It is probable that as a result of the mills starting rolling of some of the rail already ordered, the output of steel will make a comparatively favorable showing in the remainder of the current month, a normal period for downward tendencies in the rate of production. In the past four weeks 171,500 tons of steel rail have been contracted for. In addition, the steel companies are figuring on what they term "certain" inquiries for 151,200 tons, which include 65,000 tons from the Chicago and North Western; 35,000 tons from the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; 25,000 tons from the Missouri Pacific; 12,000 tons from the D. L. & W.; 5,000 tons from the Reading; 4,700 tons from the Katy, and 4,500 tons from the Chicago and Eastern Illinois.

Those who are bullish on steel shares say they are "all set" for a substantial advance based on expectations of increased operations and business. Incidentally, the improvement in operations at the moment is contrary to usual trend of the last four years, as the up-trend in the industry, from a seasonal standpoint, does not begin as a rule until February.

Those who are following the fortunes of the carrier securities say that while it is interesting market-wise that the railroad shares "went through," the action of the second-grade railroad bonds was a great deal more important and that the rise as well as growing demand for these bonds is one of the most encouraging factors in the railroad security situation in a long while.

B. E. Hutchinson, chairman of Plymouth Motor Corporation, states: "There have been numerous statements regarding higher motor car prices. Frankly, we feel that people who are buying motor cars today are making a splendid investment in view of the fact that all indications point to an upward revision in automobile prices. Our Plymouth factory production this year has exceeded all estimates. Each quarter of the year thus far has shown substantial gain over the same period of 1932."

Pickup in activity on the side of the rise this week has not yet had the effect of quickening public interest in the proceedings to any important degree. On the contrary, commission house interest remains at a minimum and board-room attendance, though a little better than of late, is not indicative of any broad quickening of the pulse in that direction. Observers ascribe this lack of outside interest to the evident inability of the market thus far to push ahead for two successive days. They point out that the list is still inclined to perform along the lines of a "one-day" wonder, that is advance rather sharply for a day on occasion and then go dull for a period.

Interests which keep in close contact with Washington developments find a dearth of news from that direction just now. Sources which they contact, however, are of the opinion that the process of lifting the RFC gold price will be resumed once the current fiscal operations of the Treasury have been cleaned up.

Britain Halts Decline In Wholesale Prices

By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Editor, The Econostat.

This chart shows the experience of John Bull with his own bond market. It is of interest for a number of reasons. In the first place, it shows the response, if any, of bond prices to the purchasing power of sterling. Second, it marks rather clearly the depressing influence of England's return to gold in April, 1925. In the third place, there is the response to the turn in the business tide during 1929, and, finally, the sharp relapse in 1931, and the rise since that time.

The course of wholesale prices in England since the end of 1924 has been steadily downward. This declining trend has been arrested, it is true, during the past two years. However, insofar as the average of 87 bond prices in London is concerned, fairly wide changes in the purchasing power of sterling apparently have had no effect whatsoever upon the price of senior securities.

Insofar as the aforementioned changes are concerned, business prospects and confidence in the English government apparently are far more vital factors in their effect upon prices than any changes in the purchasing power of sterling. The recovery which England as well as the world experienced in 1922 and 1923 definitely lifted bond prices to an early post-war peak.

We can see reflected also the fear that stabilization of the pound in terms of gold would have an unhappy effect upon British industry—a fact, incidentally, which was correctly anticipated. The very modest recovery which England experienced during 1927 and 1928 was followed by a sharp decline during the greater part of 1929.

The outstanding post-war developments in the British bond market took place after the abandonment of gold in September, 1931. This accounted for a decline of approximately 10 per cent in the price of British securities, due largely to fear for the soundness of English money. Since that time bonds have risen in price and this may be considered a reflection of British domestic price stabilization as well as the improvement in the entire English economic outlook.

DOLLAR WEAK IN EUROPE

LONDON, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—In a foreign exchange market affected by a more than usual Saturday dullness, the American dollar barely moved on small business today.

The dollar closed at $5.15½ to the pound, unchanged from the opening. At one time it was quoted at $5.15¼ to the pound.

The French franc, subjected to some selling, weakened slightly and closed at 83.71 to the pound. It opened at 83.62, but improved quickly to 73.40.

PARIS, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—The United States dollar opened at 16.20 francs (6.16 cents to the franc) and steadied at 16.22 francs (6.13 cents to the franc) in an inactive foreign exchange market today. The dollar closed yesterday at 16.27 francs (6.146 cents).

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—The American dollar sold today at 2.66 marks (37.51 cents to the mark) on the foreign exchange market, compared with yesterday's figure of 2.68 marks (37.31 cents to the mark).

SILK IMPORTS DROP

Raw silk imports into the United States during November totaled 32,319 bales, a decrease of 15,105 bales from the same month last year, the Silk Association of America reports. Deliveries to American mills during the month amounted to 34,822 bales, or 9,133 under the same month in 1932.

TEXTILE TRADE CURTAILS

The 25 per cent reduction in cotton textile machine hours, voluntarily agreed upon by the majority of the industry, has been favorably received in the primary market. It is thought that the move will prevent prices from slipping further.

BUSINESS STILL GETTING LITTLE FROM BANKS

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—It is well, occasionally, to glance at the bank statements, so as to keep in touch with what is going on in the field of bank credit.

Perhaps the most obvious thing to be seen is that bank credit for business purposes remains very small in volume.

For example, last week the New York member banks reported a decrease in "commercial loans" of $53,000,000, and the figure was $111,000,000 below a year ago.

The total of all loans for all member banks of the country is about $4,000,000,000 smaller than one year ago. It has changed very little since the bank crash last March.

RESERVE LOANS DROP

We also note that the number banks are borrowing very little from reserve banks. Last week their borrowings (bills discounted) declined and were $183,000,000 below a year ago. The figure is close to the lowest point since 1917.

This means that commercial banks require very little help from the Reserve System, and the Reserve banks therefore, have little influence over them.

But almost as notable—perhaps more so—is the fact the total credit being extended by the Reserve banks is very large. This we judge by the "bills and securities" item, and that item increased last week and was more than half a billion larger than last year.

Why is this?

We have seen that it is not due to loans to member banks. It is not due to open market purchases of commercial paper or bills, for while these have increased recently they are abnormally low. It is entirely due to purchases of government securities.

INCREASE IN NOTES

The reserve banks now carry nearly $600,000,000 more government securities than they did a year ago. The increase has been almost entirely in government "notes."

The total reserve bank credit in use is about six billions, which is about a billion above the 1929 peak, of this 2.4 billions is "government securities" bought. Of this, over one billion is "treasury notes" and only $400,000,000 is long term "bonds."

Thus we see that the government debt is the chief user of bank credit. Government debt now takes up 93 per cent of reserve bank credit and 31 per cent of member bank credit.

We also see that the government debt carried by the banks as "investment" consists largely short term obligations. Government bills, notes and certificates are 82 per cent of the "securities" held by the reserve banks.

SHARE INCREASES

The Federal Reserve system is carrying an increasing part of this load of government short-term debt. During the past 12 months, it increased its holdings by 581,000,000, while the reporting member banks increased theirs only 141,000,000.

It begins to look as if the Federal Reserve's chief function at present is to serve as the "fiscal agent" of the government.

How do the reserve banks pay for all this government paper?

Well, they hold the reserve deposits of the member banks and they open "deposit credits" for the government. Both accounts have increased somewhat. But the big increase in Reserve Bank liabilities has been in the notes issued, and we may say broadly that these are the chief means of paying. That is swapping bank debt for government debt.

Federal reserve notes continue to increase irregularly and are $320,000,000 above a year ago. The emergency issues of "Federal Reserve Bank notes" increase steadily, and are $208,000,000 larger than last year (when there was none).

GOLD PUZZLE

But the strange fact is that the reserve banks hold much more gold than last year and the ratio of their gold reserves to their notes and deposits is normal. And they can't lose gold, because we can't have any.

Is gold still really the standard for reserve bank credit? If it is, the notes paid for government securities are as good as gold. If it isn't, then they are no better than the government credit for which they are swapped, and that is up to the taxpayer of the future.

FARM PRICES BEHIND AAA DISPUTE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

Mr. Rukeyser

NEW York, Dec. 9.—Beyond the row between George N. Peek, agricultural adjustment administrator, and the so-called radical group in the Department of Agriculture, including Jerome Frank, Mordecai Ezekiel, and Rexford Tugwell, was a difference of opinion as to who should bear the burden of giving farmers a higher price for their products.

The reform bloc which held up commodity agreements, leaned to the view that business could absorb the higher price to a large extent. Technically, Peek took the view that under the Agricultural Adjustment Act he was charged merely with getting better prices for farmers, without going into the question of who should bear the burden. However, going behind technicalities, Peek, an experienced business executive, knew that business organizations could not absorb all the price differences, and that, if they attempted to do so, they would last only until their capital and surplus had been exhausted.

In shifting the burden of code making except for first processors to the NRA, President Roosevelt did a suggestive thing. This particular shift was satisfactory to Peek. In fact, he suggested it some weeks ago. He has taken the view that the A. A. A. should have contact only with those who deal directly with the farmers—not with business once removed like restaurants. As a matter of fact, such codes were not contemplated when the agricultural adjustment administration was drawn up. Later, when the National Recovery Act was passed, the President obtained the right to assign such trades to the jurisdiction of the Secretry of Agriculture. Peek took the position that the A. A. A. had no interest in the retail business.

Though the immediate aim of administration policy is to raise farm prices to a parity with those of industry and the services, the ultimate objective should be to maintain a balance among all three. Accordingly, as long as the government is seeking deliberately to achieve balance, it is appropriate to concentrate such supervisory power in one office.

Although there have been reports of wide differences between Gen. Hugh S. Johnson and Peek, who were former business partners, the two have in the last few weeks come closer together. As between the radical bloc in the Department of Agriculture and Gen. Johnson, Peek would readily side with the latter.

The rift between Peek and the left wing among his associates, which at this writing has not yet been finally settled, is of immense importance because it dramatizes the conflict between efforts at recovery and utopian efforts for social reform.

ART EXHIBITION ENDING HERE

The Thirty-first Carnegie International Exhibition of Paintings will close tomorrow at 6 p. m., officials announced today, estimating attendance to date at more than 120,000.

European paintings in the exhibit will be shipped to Cleveland for showing in the Cleveland Museum of Art from January 1 to February 12. From March 4 to April 16 they will be exhibited at the Toledo Museum of Art. American paintings will be returned immediately to their owners.

Thirteen of the paintings exhibited have been sold.

Dr. Snyder to Fill Old Pulpit Here

The Rev. Dr. Charles E. Snyder, former pastor of the North Side Unitarian Church, Resaca place, member of the board of directors of the American Unitarian Association and at present located in Davenport, Ia., will preach in his old pulpit at 11 a. m. tomorrow on "Heavy Liabilities."

He was in Pittsburgh from 1911 to 1917.

STEEL TRADE MIRRORS GAIN IN ORDERS

By B. E. V. LUTY.

In the fourth successive week the steel trade takes a more favorable view of its condition and prospects.

Upward revisions in appraisals are based upon contracts with customers who find themselves with a more promising outlook, and upon a slight increase in actual order receipts.

Steel ingot production this week was officially forecast at 28.3 per cent of capacity, against 26.8 per cent last week and 25.2 per cent for the week ended November 11, the low since late April, when the upward movement was in progress.

The report of actual production in November shows an average rate of 27.26 per cent and is authoritative. The weekly forecasts had indicated an average of 26.42 per cent and thus the mills averaged an operation about four-fifths of a point more than they expected.

TOPS YEAR AGO

Assuming December to average the rate forecast for this week, the year will total about 22,800,000 tons of all classes of ingots, or about 70 per cent gain over 1932 despite the fact that there are two less working days this year. The more useful comparison is to take production from the time early last April when the producing rate passed above that of a year previous. From then to the end of the year, 226 working days, production would be fully 125 per cent more than production in the same working period of last year.

Production in the last few weeks has been supported almost exclusively by miscellaneous demand, outside of building, railroad, automobile and oil and gas field demand. Ultimate consumption has been in excess of production as there are still some stocks of steel and manufactures of steel laid in during the recent bulge. Liquidation should be substantially complete by the end of the year except for stocks of tin plate and cans now accumulating and perhaps a little carryover by the automobile industry, which is unable for mechanical reasons to operate at as high a rate as desired.

RAIL LINES BETTER

Part of the latest increase in steel production, however, is due to heavier buying by the automobile industry as the stocks are far from uniformly distributed and parts makers did not stock up at all. The real activity of the automobile industry expected for next year is scarcely being felt at all, and requirements in January should add a half dozen points or so to the present steel producing rate.

Ingot production this week is at about 19,000,000 tons a year and only a few million tons in this figure is assignable to the four usually big outlets, leaving the great bulk of the production to miscellaneous, whereas in the very active seven-year period through 1929, when total ingot production averaged 45,760,000 tons a year, miscellaneous accounted for only about 16,000,000 tons a year, so that what is called small consumption is doing almost as well as before the depression. Some relatively new lines are doing better.

The Pennsylvania Railroad's orders for 100,000 tons of rails compare with a rate in the active period of roughly 200,000 tons a year, making a better proportion than is expected of other roads, while prospects are 19,000 tons more will be ordered, the present tonnage being for delivery by June 30. Rolling will probably begin early next year.

With many roads there have been delays in carrying out Coordinator Eastman's program involving purchases of about 850,000 tons of rails, partly on account of question as to what securities should be used as collateral. Spread over a period of six months the rail tonnage would raise the general ingot producing rate by more than three points, while there is also a large tonnage in track material, the Pennsylvania ordering 40,000 tons against the 100,000 tons of rails. The 44,000 tons of Pennsylvania Railroad rails allocated to Edgar Thomson would employ the mill at full capacity for more than three weeks, but rolling will be spread out.

With improvement in prospect in various directions apart from the seasonal improvement after January 1 which has not failed in 12 years, there is an increased prepondenance of chances that steel production will reach a 40 per cent rate by early March. Tonnage would be just 50 per cent of production in the record year, 1929.

Average prices received for finished steel products shipped after this month will represent a substantial rise. Prices are fairly satisfactory to mills except in a few lines, which may be marked up for second quarter.

20 SLAIN, SPAIN FIGHTS REVOLT

MADRID, Dec. 9.—(AP.)—Premier Diego Martinez Barrios declared a "state of alarm" throughout Spain today following the death of at least 20 persons and the wounding of hundreds in extremist revolutionary disorders in the Northeast.

"A state of alarm" is the next thing to martial law and supersedes the "state of prevention" declared Sunday, which placed assault guards and other national police forces on the alert in preparation for the convening of Parliament yesterday.

Daylight brought comparative quiet following a night of terrorism in the Northeast. Authorities immediately moved to check on casualties and the extent of property damage, which was believed to be large.

The survey of how far the disorders had spread was slow and difficult because terrorists had destroyed most of the telephone lines in the areas where they operated.

HOLIDAY TRADE SPEEDS UP

The continuance of mild weather has interfered to some extent with the movement of seasonal wearing apparel, according to the weekly review of Dun & Bradstreet's.

Sales of holiday merchandise, however, are increasing steadily and have been stimulated this week by the release of $1,600,000 in Christmas savings funds. There has been an increase particularly in sales of toys, electrical goods and jewelry.

Production of bituminous coal is holding quite steady, but the mild weather is cutting down consumption for heating purposes to a considerable extent, and the demand from industrial users is slightly less active.

LONDON CUTS GOLD PRICE

International News Service.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The international gold price was lowered three-pence (about six cents) today, to 126 shillings, six-pence per ounce, with a premium of 8½ pence over the French rate.

This was equal to about $32.55 in American currency at today's opening exchange rate of $5.15½ to the pound sterling.

The sale of 154 gold bars, valued at 385,000 pounds sterling (approximately $1,984,675) was announced at the new rate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(INS.)—For the eighth successive business day, the price of newly-mined domestic gold remained unchanged at $34.01 an ounce today.

Pecora Runs Into Snag In Pressed Steel Car Plan

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

THE OPPOSITION committee for the protection of preferred stockholders of the Pressed Steel Car Company has run into legal difficulties. The committee lists Ferdinand Pecora as counsel.

The committee, headed by John F. Gilchrist, chairman of the Consolidated Indemnity and Insurance Company, on November 22 called for preferred stockholders to deposit their shares. This action followed the formation of another committee to protect the preferred holders. The earlier committee, headed by Hunter S. Marsten, did not ask for deposits but requested stockholders to send their names and addresses so that action might be taken in the future.

* * *

Did Not Provide Sufficient Time

PECORA IS SPECIAL counsel for the Senate Committee on Banking and Finance in its investigation into stock market practices. The stockholders' committee, for which he also is counsel, filed the necessary statement with the Federal Trade Commission in conformity with the new Securities Act but it failed to wait 20 days before issuing certificates of deposit for the stock.

This has made it necessary for the committee to suspend its call and to wait until the application with the commission becomes effective. Stock which has been forwarded will be held by the committee and certificates of deposit will be issued after the proper time has passed.

In a statement it was declared that the committee will continue to conduct its investigation of the Pressed Steel Car Company's affairs. Edmund Wright, secretary, said that the committee was not aware of the 20-day requirement and that Pecora had not been consulted.

Legal Contests Mark Receivership

THE COMPANY'S financial difficulties have been marked by a long series of legal battles. Independent attempts were made to force the company into receivership early this year. These were defeated but a friendly receivership finally was arranged by interests close to the management last May. Since that time five separate committees representing different classes of securities have been formed.

A committee for the bondholders has been opposing attempts of the receivers to sell $350,000 of certificates now and to sell $650,000 in certificates later. The bondholders insisted that their claims can be met by sale of the properties without creating new indebtedness which would have a prior claim.

The new preferred stockholders' committee stated that the company is solvent and that the receivership should be terminated, but has made no suggestion for meeting the claims of holders of defaulted bonds.

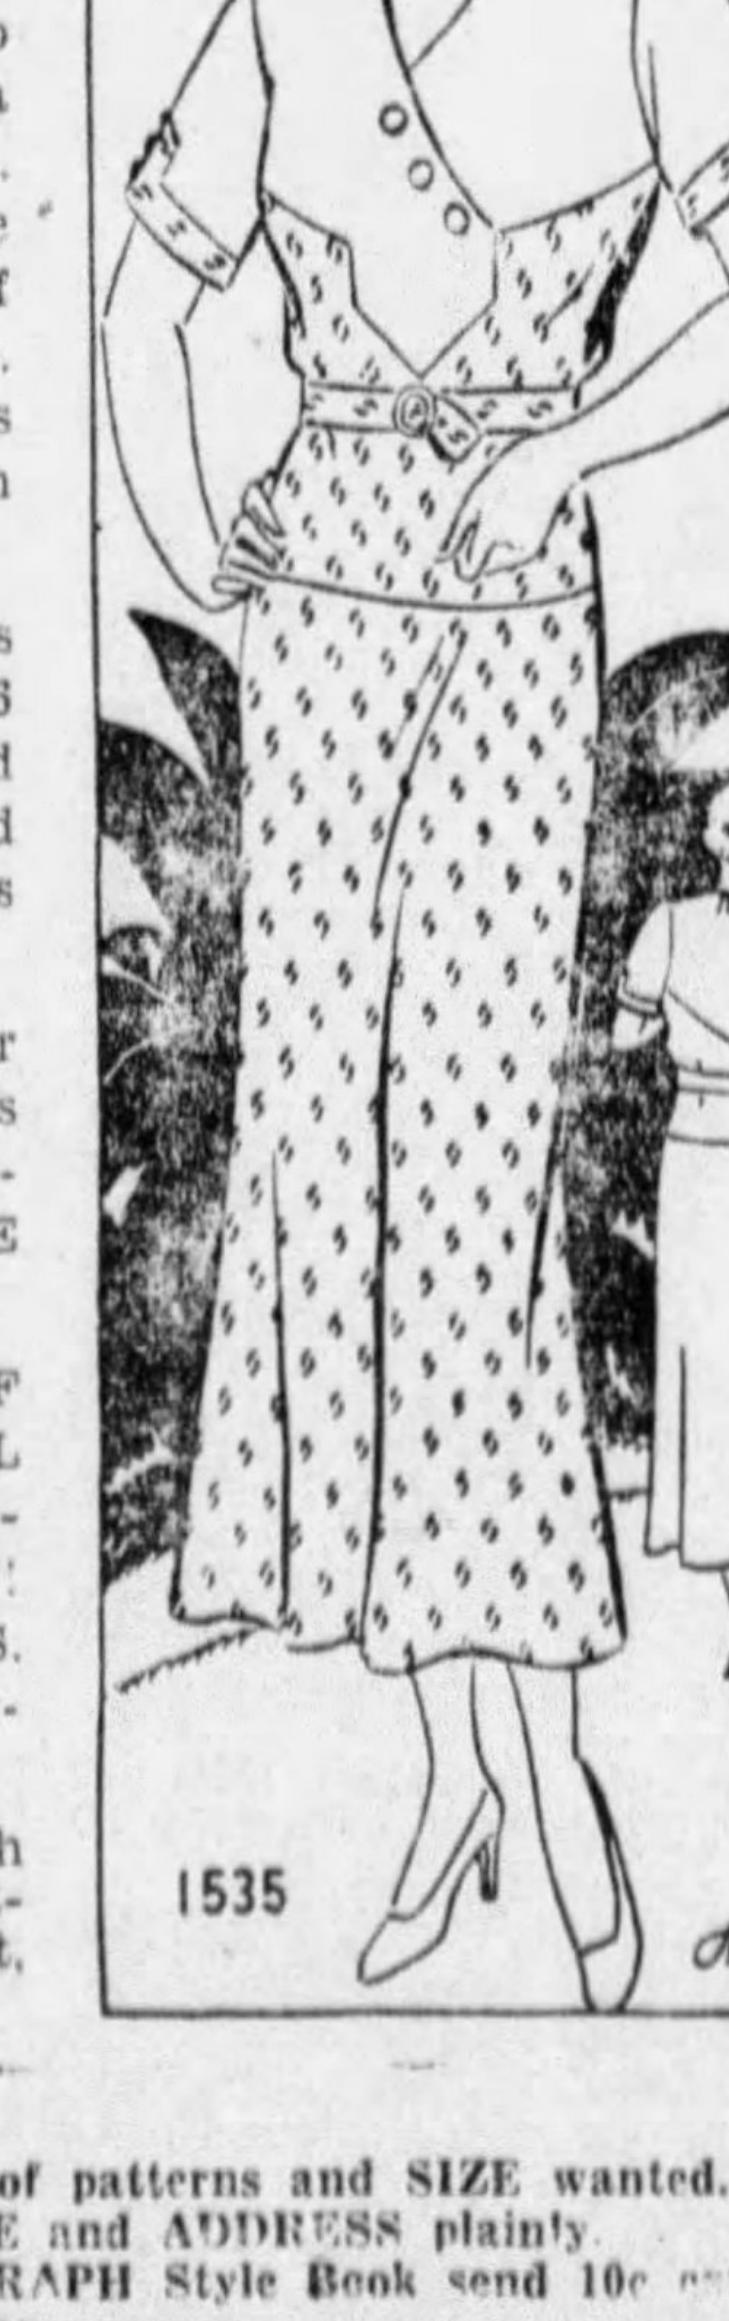
Smartness "at Home"
Pattern 1535
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern



When your figure is heavier than you'd like to have people know, your frocks must be chosen with care—this applies to the simple models worn about the home, too. The model sketched—really nice enough to wear for afternoons—has been designed to give perfect proportion and a straighter, more slender silhouette. This is achieved by the clever use of contrast, the surplice line of the bodice and the snug hip yoke. You might choose tubbable prints with monotone contrast, or fashion the frock entirely of one color.

Pattern 1535 is available in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 2½ yards 36-inch fabric and 1⅛ yards contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

THE CURRENT EDITION OF THE PATTERN BOOK WILL HELP YOU SAVE MONEY. ORDER YOUR COPY TODAY! PRICE OF CATALOG, 15 CENTS. CATALOG AND PATTERN TOGETHER, 25 CENTS.

NO. 284.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing an increase of the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh in the sum of one million four hundred thousand ($1,400,000.00) dollars, and providing for the issue and sale of bonds of said City in said amount to provide funds for the following purposes, viz: Providing supplies, materials, equipment, labor and supervision (including engineering expenses) for the improvement of streets, parks, playgrounds, wharves, sewers, water lines, bridges and other public properties of the City of Pittsburgh, the labor to be provided from among the unemployed, and providing for the redemption of said bonds and the payment of interest thereon.

WHEREAS, The corporate authorities of the City of Pittsburgh, by ordinance duly enacted by the Council thereof and approved by the Mayor thereof on March 15, 1932, and duly recorded and published as required by law, signified their desire that the indebtedness of said City be increased in the sum of . . . . . two million . . . . . ($2,000,000.00) dollars, for the purposes described in Section 1 hereof, and provided that the question of increasing the indebtedness in said amount for said purposes be submitted to a vote of the electors of said City at a special election held on April 26, 1932; and

WHEREAS, After due legal notice said election was held and conducted as required by law and a majority of the electors who voted at said election voted in favor of said increase of indebtedness, and the vote was duly counted by the Court of Quarter Sessions Court as required by law, and the Clerk of Quarter Sessions Court made a record thereof and a certified copy of such record under seal, showing the result, was furnished as required by law, to the corporate authorities of the City of Pittsburgh and the same has been placed of record upon the minutes thereof; Now, Therefore

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh be increased by the amount of one million four hundred thousand ($1,400,000.00) dollars to provide funds for the following purposes, viz: Providing supplies, materials, equipment, labor and supervision (including engineering expenses) for the improvement of streets, parks, playgrounds, wharves, sewers, water lines, bridges and other public properties of the City of Pittsburgh, the labor to be provided from among the unemployed.

SECTION 2. That bonds of the City of Pittsburgh in the aggregate amount of one million four hundred thousand ($1,400,000.00) dollars be issued for the purpose aforesaid. Said bonds shall be in denominations of one hundred dollars ($100.00) or multiples thereof; shall be dated as of the first day of December, 1933, and shall be payable in twenty (20) equal annual installments of seventy thousand ($70,000.00) dollars each, one of which shall mature on the first day of December in each of the years 1934 to 1953, inclusive.

Said bonds shall bear interest at the rate of four and one-half (4½%) per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of June and December in each year, without deduction for any taxes which may be levied thereon by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania pursuant to any persent or future law, the payment of which is hereby assumed by the City of Pittsburgh. The principal and interest of said bonds shall be payable in lawful money of the United States of America at the office of the City Treasurer of said City. Said bonds shall be coupon bonds, exchangeable at the option of the holder for a registered bond or bonds of the same maturity and of the denomination of one hundred ($100.00) dollars or multiple thereof, not exceeding the aggregate principal amount of the coupon bond or bonds surrendered in exchange therefor, by surrendering such coupon bond or bonds, with all coupons not then due, at the office of the City Controller, and the City Controller is hereby authorized and directed to cause such coupon and registered bonds to be engraved and to issue the same in the name of the City of Pittsburgh, the expenses thereof to be charged to Appropriations No. 42, oCntingent Fund.

Registered bonds shal' be registered with the City Treasurer and shall be transferable only on the books of the said City Treasurer. Said bonds shall be signed by the Mayor, countersigned by the City Controller and sealed with the corporate seal of the City of Pittsburgh and the coupons attached thereto shall be authenticated with facsimile signature of the City Controller.

In case of the absence or disability of any of such officials, the bonds shall be signed by the city official authorized by law or by resolution of Council to act in his place.

Each of said bonds shall be known and designated as PUBLIC WORK RELIEF BOND, 1933, Series "C".

SECTION 3. That until said bonds, issued as herein provided, shall be fully paid, there is hereby levied and assessed annually upon all subjects now by law liable, or hereafter to be made liable, to assessment for taxation for City purposes, an annual tax, commencing the first year after said debt shall have been increased or incurred, namely the year 1934, sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds as the same shall accrue and become payable, and any tax on said interest which by the terms of said bonds is assumed by the City and also an annual tax commencing in said year equal to five (5%) per centum of the total amount of said bonds hereby authorized, to be set apart as a Sinking Fund for the payment of the principal and redemption of said bonds as they become due and payable according to their terms, and the same is hereby appropriated out of the revenue of said City for the payment and redemption aforesaid.

SECTION 4. That all bonds issued by the authority of this ordinance and the Acts of Assembly authorizing the same shall be and become part of the funded debt of the City of Pittsburgh, and shall be entitled to all the right, privileges and immunities thereof, and shall be free from taxation, as aforesaid, and for the payment of the principal of said bonds and the interest thereon semi-annually as the same shall become payable, the faith, honor, credit and property of said City are hereby pledged.

SECTION 5. That the form of bond issued in pursuance of this ordinance shall be substantially as follows:

Have You the Room I Want?

I am a stranger in Pittsburgh. I just arrived, Many are coming "in" NOW. I want to be near my work, but in a pleasant location, I want a homelike room with nice people. I am only one of hundreds of young men that want the same.

I do not know your street names so I shop up and down the Sun-Telegraph "To Rent—Rooms" advertisements — not up and down the street for signs. You probably have just the room I am looking for. Won't you help me to find your room by advertising it in the "To Rent—Room" want ads of the Sun-Telegraph? Phone GRant 5400.

Here Are the Simple Rules

Every day we will publish an unfinished rhyme. Read these Christmas Shopping Hint ads and select an article from these ads to use in making your own last line. Then clip this square, fill in your line, or write the whole rhyme on a piece of paper and mail to the Want Ad Contest Editor, Sun-Telegraph, giving, at the same time, the name of the dealer from whose ad you made the selection.

The best rhyme on each day's contest, judged from the points of originality, neatness and accuracy, will win a $5.00 merchandise order on any advertiser in the Christmas Shopping Hints which the winner may select. The second best $2.00 and the next three best $1.00 each. Two prizes of $5.00 each will be given on each of the last two days of the contest.

Answers to today's contest must be in our hands by 4 P. M. Wednesday, December 13.

In case of a tie duplicate awards will be made. You need not buy anything to compete and all persons are eligible except Sun-Telegraph employes and their families.

OPERATOR 13

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

In the throng of people filling the station policemen were numerous, busily watching the arriving and departing crowds. In fact, the whole place swarmed with metropolitan police and municipal and federal detectives. Soldiers, too, were standing with fixed bayonets beside all entrances and exits to train platforms.

The girl had secured a porter to carry her lover's valise and her own. She had 10 minutes to wait before the gates to the Montreal Express were opened, and she took up a position where she could see all arriving passengers.

Near the gate she noticed Operators Dodd and Cammock chatting with two soldiers on guard; and when she caught Cammock's eye, she summoned him with a slight movement of her pretty head.

"Any news, ma'am?" he asked respectfully, touching his hat as he came up.

"Yes; I'm going to Montreal with a Secret Service operator whom you don't know. He'll be here in a few moments. You are not to notice him or me when we go through the gates. Tell that to Mr. Dodd. And see that those soldiers on guard don't stop us."

"Very well, ma'am. I hope to God you catch that fellow Gailliard short of the Canada line!"

"I shall try to put an end to Capt. Gailliard's mischievous activities," she said smilingly.

Pass Unquestioned

A moment later she caught sight of her lover in the crowd, and made her way to him and gayly took his arm.

"The gates are just opening," she said. "Don't notice those soldiers when we show our tickets. Here, take mine, too, and let us look as married as we can!"

"You shouldn't have done this, Gail," he said to her under his breath.

"You'll be safer with me on your arm. Try to look like a husband, darling."

She was laughing as they reached the gates. He displayed the two tickets with amiable carelessness; their ragged Negro porter followed them, whistling as he shuffled along at their heels.

Their sleeping car already glimmered feebly with oil lamps.

As they climbed aboard, followed by the musical porter, Gailliard noticed the two valises; and when they were seated together, he asked the girl why she had brought them.

"In mine," she said, "are sandwiches and cake and a bottle of champagne." And, she continued, "I took your valise from your room and packed your things into it, and put on an alpaca cover so your shirts and collars wouldn't spill out. Who slit your valise open, darling?" she inquired innocently.

"I don't know . . . You are a very wonderful girl; do you know it?"

"I don't know whether I am . . . I'm tired; I know that much." She lay back in her seat and closed her eyes; and remained so even after the train started.

Gail Determined

After a while, however, she opened her eyes and looked at her fellow travelers. There were not many of them. His hand sought hers and her own nestled into it.

"Spuyten Duyvil is not very far away," he said.

"I know . . . Suppose I go on to Montreal with you?"

He forced a smile at that—a troubled one.

"Besides our food, my valise is fully packed," she remarked.

His smile faded and he looked at her uneasily; and she looked back at him out of level eyes.

"You couldn't venture to do that."

"Why? Wouldn't you marry me?" she inquired naively.

"Darling, what are you talking about—"

"Marriage. Don't you want to?"

He said grimly: "If ever I get out of this I'll want to, and you know it."

"Are you afraid you'll be arrested on this train?"

"I haven't any means of knowing. You saw my valise, yonder. Papers were taken from it today that makes my situation very serious. And that is why I don't want you to come. And that is why I shall be relieved when you get off at Spuyten Duyvil."

"I'm not going to get off at Spuyten Duyvil," she said.

For 10 minutes he talked to her very plainly, explaining that she could be of no further use to him if he were arrested, and begging her to leave him at the next stop.

"After all," said the girl lightly, "love is love. I am capable of two kinds. You are one kind." She smiled at him. "The other," she added, "is love of country."

"Yes," he said, "our country first and last."

Their train whistled for Spuyten Duyvil.

"You must go, darling," he whispered.

"If I do you'll never reach Canada. And never live to marry me. Perhaps you won't wish to in another minute."

"What do you mean?"

The train came to a stop and the girl leaned toward him, her hand crushing his convulsively.

"You can't get through unless I take you," she whispered. "If anybody comes aboard and speaks to me, keep silent!"

Reveals Secret

At the same instant, two men walked into the car, scanning the people seated. One of them caught the girl's eye and recognizing her, made a slight motion with his left hand.

She nodded; and as they passed they paused beside her, glancing sharply at her companion.

"Anything for us, ma'am?" inquired one of the men politely.

"Nothing."

They glanced again at John Gailliard, nodded slightly, and passed on.

It was only when the train moved out to Spuyten Duyvil on its long journey northward that the girl dared look at her lover. His face was white.

"You see," she said, "I can get you through. Once," she went on in a low voice, "you gave me your parole. I would have had to shoot you if you hadn't."

He gave her a bewildered look; then he sat upright with a stiff jerk, his boyish visage surging in color.

She said: "I am letting you go once more, on your parole of honor. And that ends your mischief for all time. Ends it as utterly as the gallows would end it. I am in love with you and you know it. But you cannot count on that. I could survive your death. I could love again, in time. You see, I know myself. Life is all before me; and my art; and you—if you will let me love you. Will you?"

His face was aflame now scarlet with chagrin, with angry shame.

"Yes," she said, "I am that nigger laundress, too, and the ragged boy in the hayloft. And I am the girl whose heart you won at Blythedale. And I am in love with you. But I was in love with you when I left that scar on your face in Martinsburg. There is no treachery in me, John Gailliard."

Asks His Parole

He moistened his dry lips. "No," he said; "I understand that."

"There is no chance for you unless I vouch for you," she went on. "Darling," she whispered, "I shall not let you leave this car or this seat unless you give me your parole. And if you hope to jump from the train—and unless you give me your word of honor that you will attempt no further mischief against the United States — I shall not lift a finger to prevent your arrest when detectives board our train at Albany."

He remained silent for a long while.

Reaction from the tense strain left her deathly tired; she knew no better way to sleep than to lay her cheek against his shoulder. She wound her arm so tightly around his and took so firm a hold of his hand that she knew he could not move without awakening her.

For two hours she slumbered on his shoulder, unstirring, until some movement he made awoke her.

"Where are we, darling?" she inquired.

"I think we are passing West Point."

She lifted her head from his shoulder and pressed her nose against the dark window. And saw the lights of the old fortress glimmering across the river.

"I wish," she murmured, "you'd give me your parole and let us both go to sleep. You would if you loved me."

"If you loved me," he said in a low voice, "you'd let me go."

"Go where, darling?"

"Back to my own people."

"How?"

"The first time the train slows down I could drop off."

"Is that what is in your mind, darling?"

"You know it, don't you?"

She sat up and bent forward to peer at him closely. Only one smoky lamp remained burning in the car, and the expiring flame gave scarcely any light. She could barely distinguish his shadowy features in the swaying obscurity of the rushing train. Suddenly she felt afraid.

"If I let you go," she whispered, "you will forget me."

Still in Love

"Operator 13," he whispered, "are you still a little in love with me?"

"Yes, so far I am," she said in a sleepy voice.

The locomotive, thundering on through darkness, whistled derisively.

"When the train slows down will you let me take my chances?"

On the girl's lips there was a ghost of a smile. It faded to a tremor. "Do you think that love—that love pardons everything, darling?" she faltered.

"Everything."

She moved her head on his shoulder and looked up at him, beginning to whimper a little and reached into the pocket of her gown for her handkerchief.

He could see the glimmer of tears in her eyes; feel the convulsive tightening of her fingers on his. She lifted the handkerchief to her face, but he was already kissing the tears from her eyes.

"Dearest — dearest," she breathed, "I want you to wear this b-bracelet in m-memory of our pledge."

There came a muffled click, followed by another; and his lips recoiled from hers as though she had stung him. He started to rise, but dropped back into his seat beside her, his right wrist limp and relaxed, handcuffed to her left one.

PRESIDENT HARRISON'S ADMINISTRATION

President Harrison and his Cabinet, from a drawing by Bernard Gillam in Judge, March 9, 1889

LEFT TO RIGHT, Seated: William H. H. Miller, Attorney-General; President Harrison; John Wanamaker, Postmaster-General; James G. Blaine, Secretary of State. Standing: John W. Noble, Secretary of the Interior; William Windom, Secretary of the Treasury; Jeremiah M. Rusk, Secretary of Agriculture; Redfield Proctor, Secretary of War; Benjamin F. Tracy, Secretary of the Navy

President Cleveland's attempt to reduce tariffs resulted in his defeat in the election of 1888. Benjamin Harrison, Republican, became President (1889-1893). Important events of his administration: Pensions to veterans and repayment of $15,000,000 to states (levied in Civil War) from Treasury surplus; U. S. Navy increased; Sherman Anti-Trust Act passed (but not enforced); McKinley Tariff Bill (highly protective, including farm products) enacted with reciprocation clauses for Latin America; North and South Dakota, Montana and Washington admitted as states; Sherman Silver Act passed (doubling the monthly purchase of silver by government as in Bland Allison Act). The Samoan affair (blocking the annexation of the island by Germany), the quarrel with Britain about the Bering Sea fisheries, diplomatic difficulties with Chile and Italy were the delicate international problems peacefully settled. MOTHER, WIFE, SOFTEN CORIOLANUS

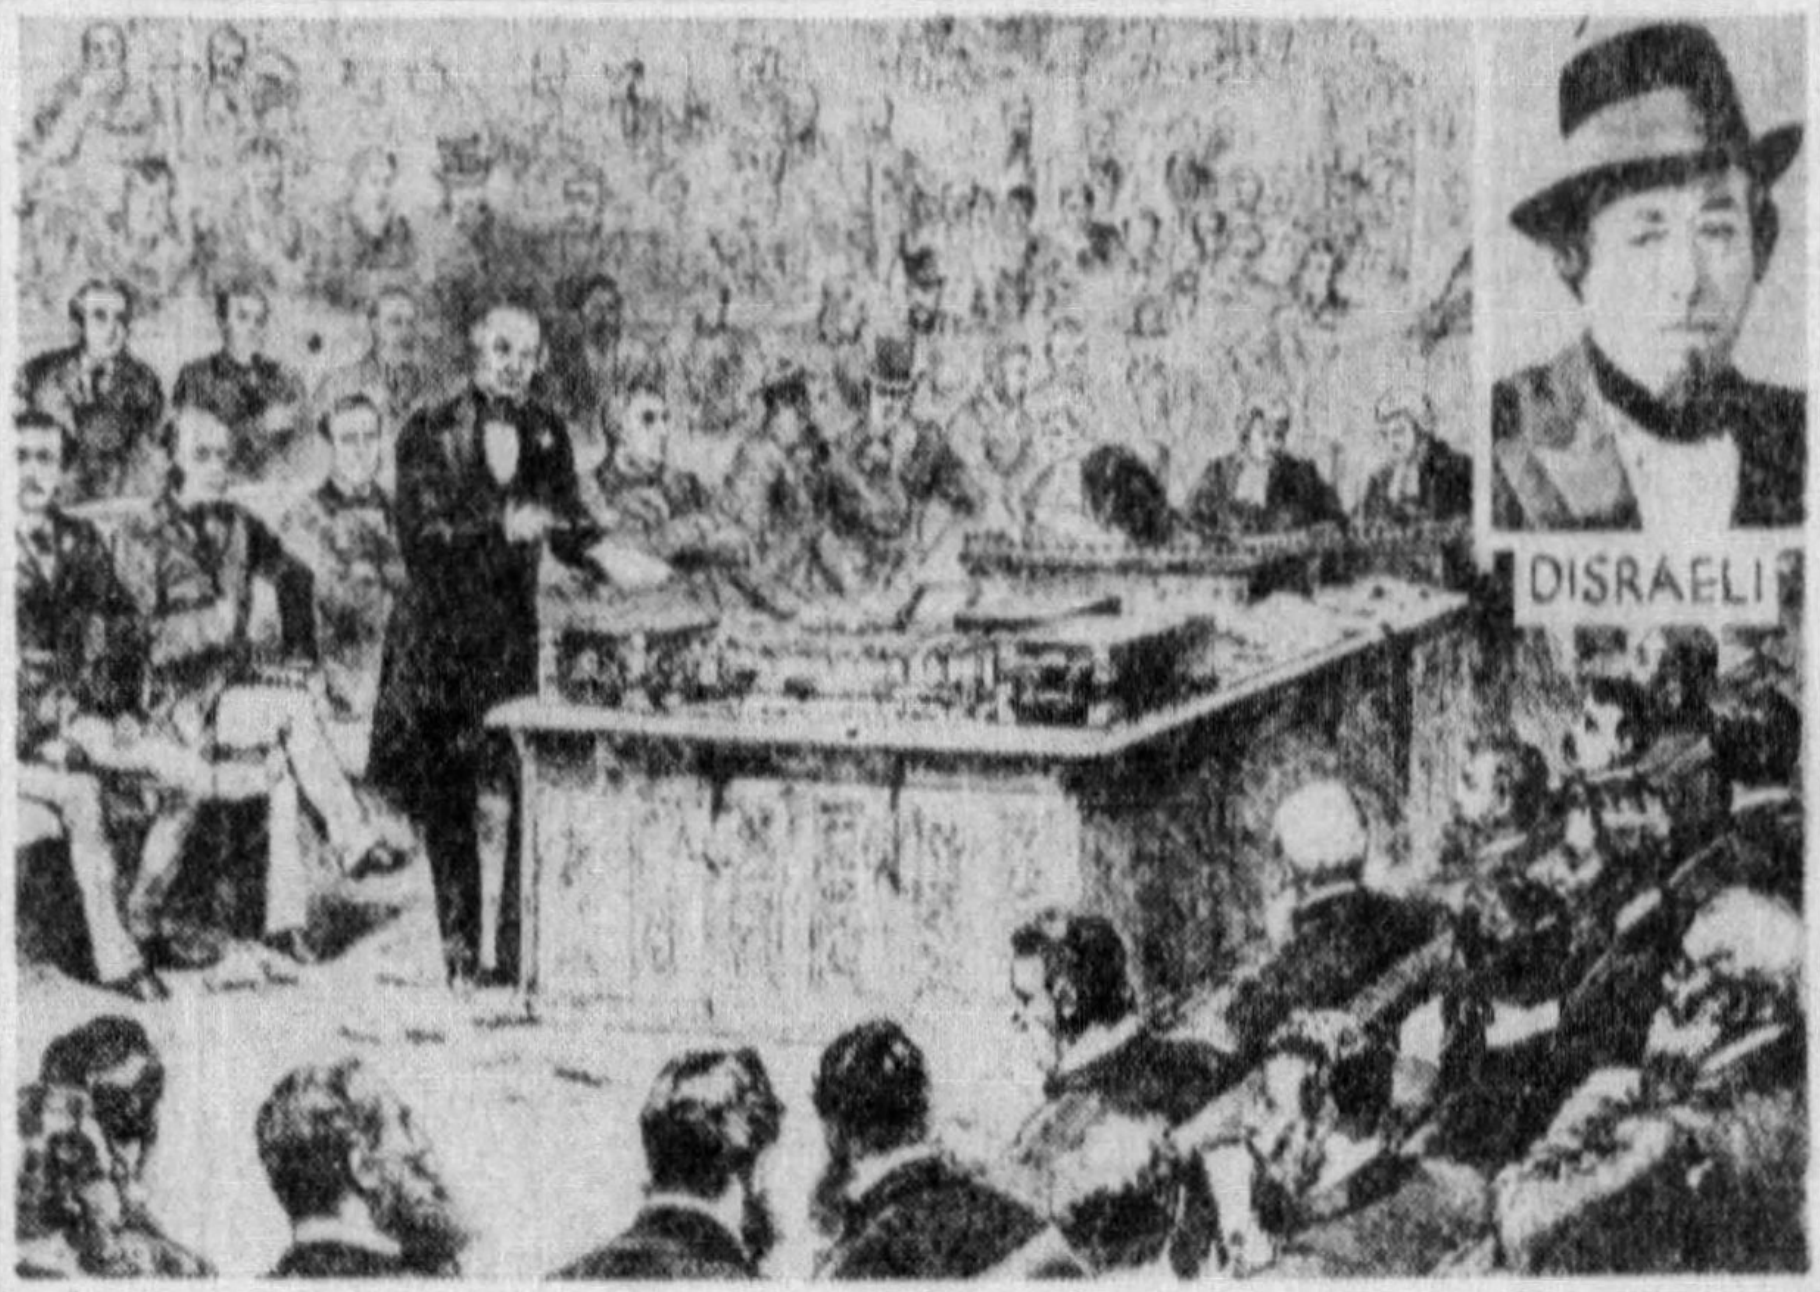
After a Painting by H. A. Bone

Shakespeare forcefully dramatizes Coriolanus, victim of his own willful spirit. Coriolanus denies the right of the plebes to a grain-distribution in time of scarcity. Returning wounded from victorious battles, he is banished. Offering his services to the enemy Volscians, he returns in command of an army to destroy Rome. Entreated by his mother, Volumnia, and his wife, he withdraws with his army, only to be killed by the Volscians. (English Literature)

VICTORIAN STATESMEN: DISRAELI, GLADSTONE



The most outstanding statesmen of the Victorian age were Disraeli and Gladstone, prime ministers of England several times.

Benjamin Disraeli (1804-1881) extended suffrage (1867), secured British control over the Suez Canal, the main artery of Indian trade; made Queen Victoria "Empress of India," participated in the Congress of Berlin (1878), disposing of the problems of the Russo-Turkish War.

William E. Gladstone (1809-1898), the "Home Ruler," has to his credit the Education Act, Civil Reform Bill (1870), secret (Australian) ballot, the third Reform Act with almost universal manhood suffrage. In 1886 he introduced the first Home-Rule Bill (above) for Ireland, governed by English and Scots majority; he was defeated. So in 1893 a second time. Later developments in Ireland proved his wisdom. REFINING STEEL IN ELECTRIC FURNACE

Machine parts (shafts, axles, gears, etc.) subject to severe stresses must be of very strong steel, uniform in composition and free of flaws. Such steel is obtained by refining Bessemer—or Open Hearth steel in the electric furnace, a large crucible heated by electric arc or by electro-magnetic induction. The process of electro-chemical refining consists in holding the molten steel in contact with a slag able to reduce impurity. First slag consists of lime, iron oxide and silica (oxidizing, black slag), which is removed, and a second, the reducing, white slag is produced by adding carbon, silicon or calcium carbide to remove more completely the sulphur and also oxygen.

Advantages of electro-chemical steel refining: Rapidity of heating, accurate control of temperature, freedom of contamination by combustion gases, higher degree of refining, smaller quantity of ferro alloys needed.

VAPOR-VACUUM HEATING

In steam heating, air first has to be expelled by steam through the air vents on the radiators, requiring time and higher steam pressure. In the vapor-vacuum heating system (above) the air is expelled by steam through a valve or by a pump in the basement. Vacuum sucks steam at low pressure. This system is economical, utilizes 50-70% of heat value of fuel, gives quick, clean heat. Disadvantages: High cost of installation, space for radiators, greater care, airtight joints and no ventilation.

SPIDERS—A CLASS OF JOINTED-LEGGED ANIMALS

Spiders (Arachnida, about 16,000 species) is a class of the twelfth phylum, jointed-legged animals (Arthropoda). They include scorpions, usually parasitic mites, chiggers, ticks. Spiders are largely land inhabitants and beneficial, since they feed on insects. The body is in two sections: Cephalothorax and abdomen, the former having six pairs of appendages. The first pair are the poisonous mandibles, the second the pedipalps, the remaining four pairs are the walking legs. Spiders have no antennae; they breathe by air tubes and book-lungs (sacks with tiny plates). They have spinning organs at the abdomen, issuing threads of glutinous material, hardening in air, wound together to form the spider line, the strongest cable of its size.

Loosening the Purse Strings

With the substitution of the non-aggression pact for the fragile peace treaty comes the universal desire of nations to recognize one another.

We finally realize that debts are not important if we cannot collect them.

After all, why should a few paltry billions keep pals apart? Lend a dollar and you lose a friend. Try to collect it and you lose two. America is wealthy enough to scatter its largess abroad like the pelican that got hiccups and lost all its fish.

From now on, we ain't going to lend any money at all. We are going to give it away. Any nation that ain't satisfied can make two trips.

All you have to do is go to Washington, state your desires and grab a coal shovel. We give it freely, without strings, forever and to hoard.

Our bankers have financed every nation in the world. We couldn't pick a debt war with any country that wouldn't fight us with our own money. And every poker player knows what it means to bet against his own chips. Therefore, by giving our gravy freely we preserve the entente cordiale, make no enemies and discourage competition in this peculiar line of industry.

SO THE PLAN IS THIS — DON'T LEND ANY MONEY — WE'LL GIVE IT AWAY!
GREAT!
AT'S A BOY!

What is money to us, anyway? The statisticians have figured we spent 36,000,000,000 on bootleg in 10 years. We saved that since 1776. Easy come, easy go.

The wealth of the universe lies on the North American continent. Gold, oil, wheat, corn and other articles too important to mention or to market. The certified spigots have been running into the non-guaranteed gutters for years. Shall we turn off the golden gravy and let others suffer when we can monopolize that sensation ourselves?

That's why we advocate gorgeous distribution of American cash to the wobbly potentates of Africa, Asia and Europe. Hand it over and forget it. Anything to stop this irritating bookkeeping that makes a man wear thick spectacles ahead of his time.

We shall paint the soap box with gold leaf and stump the fallow farms. Our slogan shall be generosity and its byproducts of good-will and backslapping. What better epitaph can be written for a man, nation or beast than that he was a good guy when he had it? Now that they have it they must agree with that statement. And when the Prodigal Sam returns home they will slaughter the fatted veal and the populace shall leap gaily from postponement to cancellation.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Girls between the ages of 12 and 18 need plenty of groceries; if they have considerable outdoor life they need as many as 3,000 calories a day. When growth is going on the human furnace must have sufficient fuel. The idle woman who doesn't move around much can get along on 2,000 calories; the housewife needs 2,500 or more, depending upon how much energy she expends. Everyone needs eggs, milk, meat, vegetables, cereals and fruit, unless there is some digestive trouble which requires a special diet.

Hair dressers have gone back to mid-Victorian days, along with dress designers, and they offer funny little combs to hold stray locks in place. They're smart as smart; party trappings are not complete without them. Brilliant ornaments come in the shape of hearts, stars and arrow heads. Cunning clips keep wavelets from curtaining pearly ears, which are out in the open, now that coiffures are upping and hats are slapped down over the intriguing right eye.

High heels can be worn with no bad results if some time during the day low heels are worn. To have heels lifted from morn till bedtime is to take a chance of acquiring spinal trouble, flat chest, sagging abdominal fibers or a sour disposition. The smartest street shoes this season have Cuban heels.

Superfluous Jobholders

Pennsylvanians Support Too Many Public Officials—
Brief Comment On Local News Items,

Leon D. Metzger, State Secretary of Revenue, placed his finger on a sore spot in Pennsylvania's system of government when he declared in his address before the Education Congress that there are too many political sub-divisions in the state, dating back to an era when our civilization was rural. We have failed to make the changes that our present urban civilization demands.

The depression is not alone to blame for delinquency in tax payments and the financial difficulties of the state, county, city and other administrative units. We have long been threatened with trouble because of our failure to modernize the government, because we have been carrying a bigger tax burden in superfluous officials, than we could support.

Notwithstanding that railroads, telephones and automobiles make it no longer necessary that every little community shall be self-contained, with its own independent set of public officials, we continue to maintain in Pennsylvania thousands of separate administrative units created in oxcart days. Under this system a vast army of political parasites have fastened themselves on the taxpayers.

Mr. Metzger pointed out in his address that Pennsylvania has about 2,600 counties, cities, townships and boroughs, 2,586 school districts and 423 poor districts—in all, 5,624 separate tax-levying authorities. The mere mention of the fact suggests, as he said, its own remedy—the elimination of superfluous counties, cities, boroughs, townships, school districts and poor districts by means of consolidations.

Mr. Metzger went on to say that to ask the Legislature to consolidate counties or other political subdivisions was about like asking a man to fire himself, but that we would have to come to it sooner or later. It cannot be too much emphasized that this will mean not only less expensive government, but better government. The only ones who will suffer from the change will be the political parasites and loafers now fattening on the taxpayers.

Delinquent real estate taxes have mounted to such staggering figures that bills have been introduced in the Legislature abating the penalties if the taxes are paid before a certain date. That is unfair to persons who paid their taxes promptly, and might encourage people hereafter to delay paying their taxes in the hope that penalties would again be abated.

Representative Max J. Spann has a good proposal in that section of his bill relating to delinquent taxes which would permit them to be paid in installments. It must be admitted that many persons will pay off obligations if permitted to do so in installments who would find it next to impossible to save the entire amount.

Mayor-elect W. N. McNair talks of taking possession of slum property on which the taxes are delinquent, of clearing the land, and converting it into a little park or breathing place. There apparently are many such tracts in the city. But the McNair proposal is not one to be indorsed without careful study.

John D. Pennington, the prohibition administrator, is now mentioned as not unlikely to be appointed Director of Public Safety in the McNair administration. He would be a good man for the place. It appears that the fact that he is no longer a resident of Pittsburgh would not make him ineligible. The charter specifies that cabinet members shall have been citizens of Pennsylvania for five years, but says nothing about residence in the city.

If McNair wants a man who would run the police department without regard to partisan political considerations, who would wage vigorous warfare on crime and corruption, and who would stamp out the speakeasies and dives that the police for many years seem to have been unable to reach, Pennington is his man. The clergymen who have recommended him for the place made a wise choice.

Since he has gone to the preachers for advice as to whom he should appoint as Director of Public Safety, McNair, to be consistent, should get the advice of the doctors as to whom he should appoint as Director of Public Health. The Allegheny County Medical Society, the Allegheny County Homeopathic Medical Society and other physicians' organizations are calling in no uncertain terms for the retention of the able and experienced incumbent, Dr. W. W. McFarland.

A bulletin from the Department of Agriculture lists Allegheny County as one of "the 50 greatest sweet corn growing counties in the country," and also among "the first 50 in the United States in the production of mixed vegetables." How it ranks among the 50 is not stated, but it would be impressive even if it should prove to be last on the list.

That this industrial county, which makes little pretension to eminence in agriculture, should have made so favorable a showing in comparison with the thousands of purely farming counties in the nation is a remarkable tribute to the skill and knowledge of our local truck farmers, and suggests that agriculture may be worth more of our attention.

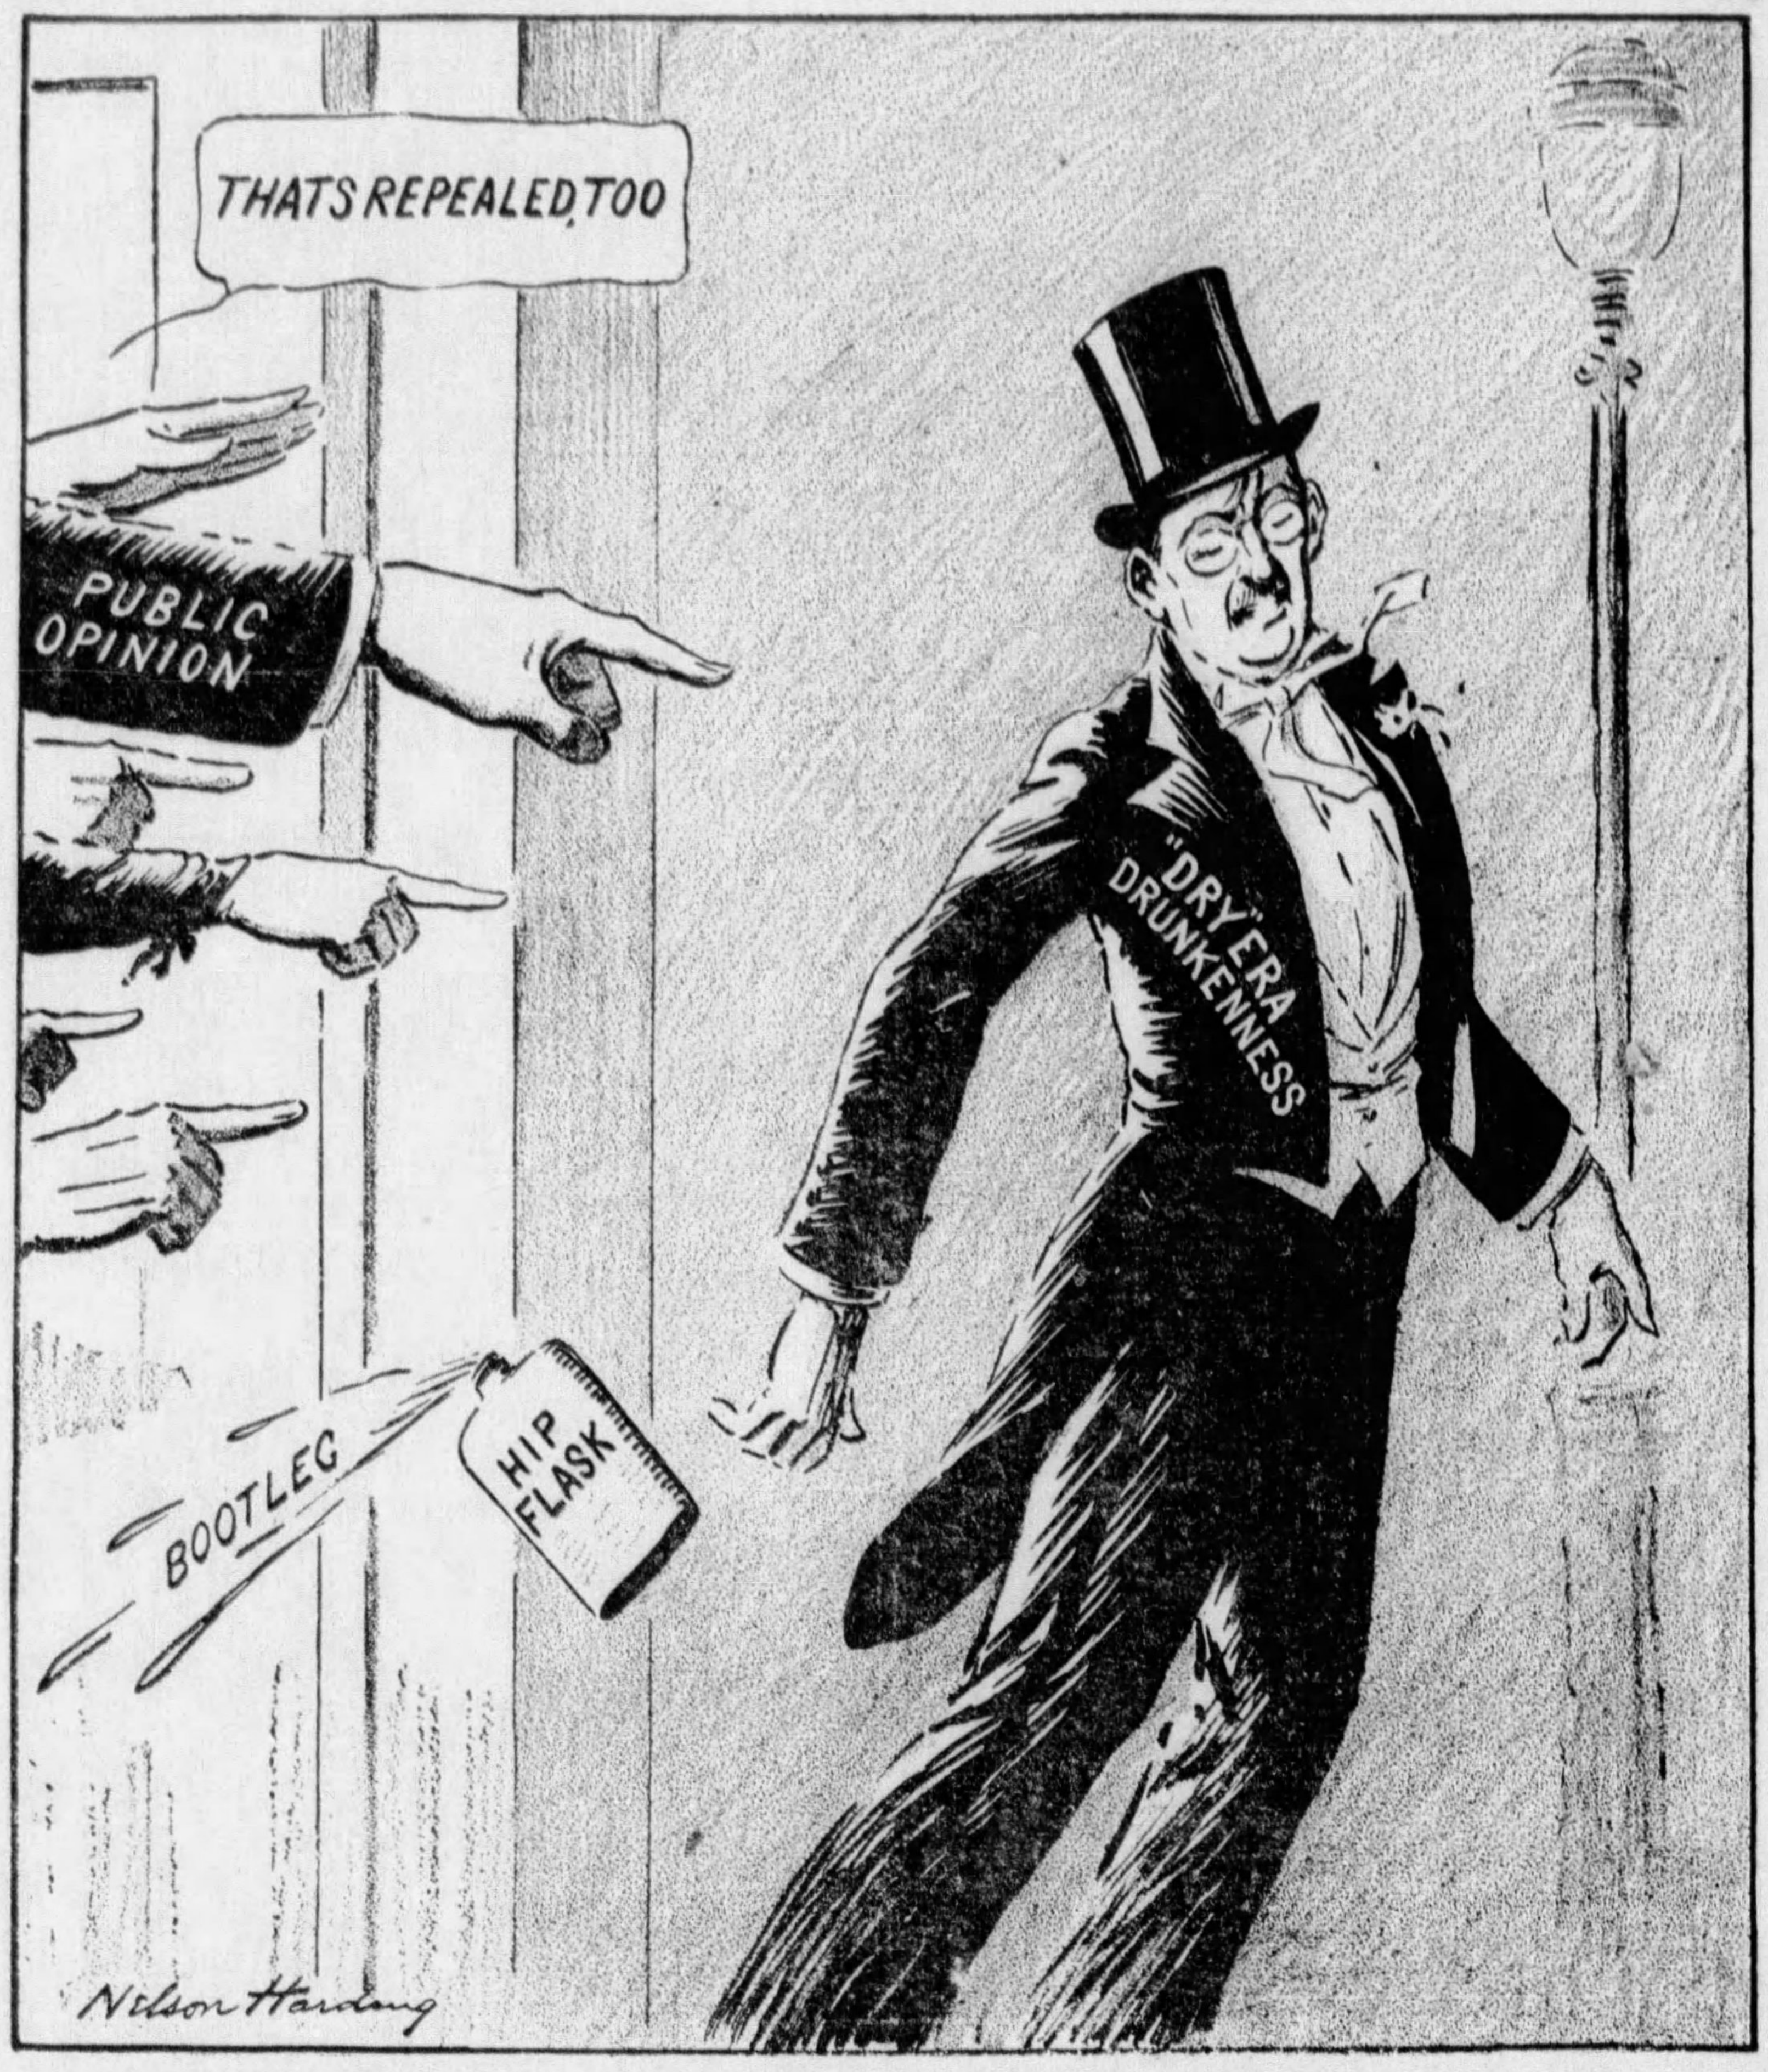
The international exhibition of paintings at Carnegie Institute will close at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening. The galleries will be open Sunday from 2 until 6 p. m. If you have not yet seen the exhibition, or have not seen it thoroughly, do not overlook this last chance to gain an insight into the tendencies in modern art. Besides having educational value, the exhibition is entertaining.

Apropos of pictures, there is one by Percy Crosby, the distinguished creator of "Skippy," in tomorrow's issue of the American Weekly that will furnish food for thought. It is a somber full-page picture in colors of a waif waiting for the lighting up of the Christmas tree in the park. The American Weekly is distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

"Skippy" will be found in Puck, the Comic Weekly section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. In tomorrow's issue he invites suggestions for the improvement of the Oriole A. C. clubhouse. A prospective member, to whom the invitation is put, becomes "inebriated with the exuberance of his own verbosity." It makes a very hilarious "funny," and there are numerous others, besides.

'All Out of Style'

By Nelson Harding



The Repeal of Prohibition,
Bringing freedom from the hated
And repudiated Dry laws,
Means that the excessive drinking
Done in the so-called "Dry Era,"
In a spirit of defiance,
Will be "out of style" in future
And no longer tolerated.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Vagaries: We were breakfasting late—three of us—in a sunny window of a club lounge. Once we had rimmed the semi-circle of a copy desk. Fixing comas, torpedoing cub ebbulliences, drafting headlines and burning up endless cigarets, chain fashion. H. was glum over a returned novel.

Coffee cup conversation had dwindled to monosyllables while a faithful old percheron waited hopefully to present the check. H. again groused he was going to quit writing. Outside, the sidewalk flow swelled to lunch-time proportions. It was time to disband and go our several ways.

Yet each waited for some spicey garniture that might prolong a deferred reunion. Then, like a startler in one of H's opening chapters—a scream! Traffic congealed into phantom stillness in the middle of the street. A blurry press of the curious and a clanging ambulance.

A young girl had been felled lightning-like by a cruising taxi and her life crushed out. Already another generation of copy readers were dashing off: "Girl Dies Under Taxi!" So, as the street gathering drifted wonderingly away, we sat transfixed. H. broke the silence. "Even life is only a Rejection Slip," he sighed.

Fred Detwiller lives aloof from settled byways and when not painting makes a hobby of astronomy. Immensities of space tingle more of a thrill than the grandest symphony to a music lover. Tuesday I induced him while our wives were away to remain with me over night, dine at No. 21, see "As Thousands Cheer" and hear Ernest Charles sing at Charlie Journal's. Before retiring at 2 a. m I looked in on him. The room was dark but he was faintly silhouetted at a window wistfully watching the stars.

Charlie Towne, despite his man-about-townishness, clings to his Connecticut alcove of simplicity, "Single Blessedness," whilst others have fled back to cities. He loves that turn of the season when chill winds are chivvying the last curled leaf into the Nowhere and sad, gray skies broodingly proclaim winter. Then he rounds out his best sonnets. Bright, sparkling, sunny hayfield things that would make Maud Muller herself toss her rake in the air and go into a rhumba.

There are not many honest folk who would not confess to sudden seizures to rush from the house in a slashing rain. Once in a remote fastness of Ohio hills with a camping party I did. There was about it a cleansing mental and physical purge I never experienced before or since. Next day, instead of joining a loathsome penny-ante session, I sat beside a moss-covered oak by a serene waterfall contemplating in florid rhapsody the various courses offered by a correspondence school. My sole yearning for Higher Things.

My grandfather and two uncles were able tinsmiths—a calling almost vanished save in sparsely settled areas. They made spouts, gutters, stove pipes, roofed dwellings, turned out tin cups, wash boilers, coffee pots and sundry shiney trinkets. I could manipulate the heavy shears, do a little soldering and other slight tinkering, but I think the proudest moment of apprenticeship was mastering the combination of the store counter till, a certain fingering of gadgets underneath that slid the drawer open without tinkling the warning bell.

Every writing man, one imagines, when Time hop-skips him to placid back-waters, hopes to become an assistant at-home book reviewer. This for the literary minded is most agreeable of all occupational tag ends. One goes to the editorial shop at intervals, trudges home with a selection of brightly-jacketed books, reads them and turns out a brief, unsigned synopsis. Pay ranges from 50 cents to $5 a volume, not extravagant compensation, but review copies peddled at second-hand stores will keep one in tobacco and pin money. When one has become an at-home reviewer his requirements are seldom more.

For two nights I have been singularly engrossed in my friend Robert Cortes Holliday's "Unmentionables." It's a vast and pithy record from fig-leaves and scanties to other modern gloveydovies a sparkle of genial intimacies. Somehow it strikes off the inhibitive shackles that made so many feel guilty discussing things "closest to them." Indeed my most embarrassing hark-back was at 19 when a lady clerk waited on me at a Huntington, W. Va., haberdashery whither I had gone for a pair of garters.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

There Are No More Private Lives

You are in a revolution—and I don't mean maybe.

America is undergoing a revolution as real, as widespread and as drastic as the French or Russian revolutions. Not only America but all the world is involved. You are caught in this revolt. Things are going to happen to you. Your life will be changed as surely, as completely, as though your head rolled into a basket.

These are terrible times. You agree that they are terrible. You read the exciting headlines. You talk about them down in the office. You say, "mark my words, we're going to see some rough stuff!" But actually you're not excited or worried. You don't really believe that the world has changed—that life will never be the same again.

Secretly, you're quite sure that things will presently go on as usual. There'll be a little fuss here and there, and maybe some more hard times. But nothing can harm our Good Old American Institutions. Our Business — Banking — Schools—Courts — Social Services —Political Parties—these things will endure forever. No matter how scarey the headlines or the broadcast, that's what you really believe. And so you don't worry.

"It doesn't really concern me," you say to yourself. "All that fuss over in Germany and Austria—those rows between Japan, China and Russia—they're not my business. They're all too far away. They won't affect my private life."

That's what you think. That's what the common citizens of France thought 150 years ago. They, too, believed that things couldn't touch their private lives because they were "too far away."

And there was a reason why they thought that. Things were far away. Time and space, in that day, raised almost unpassable barriers between peoples. Those simple French peasants were justified in thinking that "private life" would go on for them as it had for all their grandfathers.

But you aren't justified in thinking that. And if you value your health you'd better snap out of it. For—

THERE ARE NO LONGER ANY PRIVATE LIVES.

Private lives went out when automobiles, aeroplanes, telephone and telegraph wires came in. And, with them, Big Business. Now time has rolled up. Space has crumbled. Barriers between peoples and nations have been swept away.

TODAY IT IS NO LONGER POSSIBLE FOR ANYONE, ANYWHERE, TO LEAD A PRIVATE, PERSONAL LIFE, OR ADHERE TO A PRIVATE, PERSONAL PLAN—OR, IN THE OLD SENSE, CLAIM PURELY PRIVATE PROPERTY.

Anyone's business is everyone's business. Everyone's business is your business.

So stop yawning over the headlines, and complaining because the news-broadcasts are a nuisance. Those head-lines and broadcasts are the most important thing in your day. They are far more important — they will have a much deeper and more lasting effect on your own life—than the doings, or even the death, of your own nearest and dearest.

THERE ARE NO MORE PRIVATE INTERESTS.

You are no longer a citizen of America. You are a citizen of the world—and the world is turning somersaults. After a while things will settle down. But they will settle down to a new world—to a world as different from your grandfather's as the moon is different from Mars.

And a new breed of men and women will run that new world—hold its big jobs — enjoy its rewards. Who and what will they be like? No one knows. But you can bet your last nickel on this—

THEY WON'T BE SELECTED FROM THE FANNIES AND FREDDIES WHO ARE YAWNING OVER THE HEADLINES TODAY!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

We Moderns

A woman doesn't seem to think it's a party, these days, unless she can manage to get everybody talking about something vitally interesting—and then turn on the radio loud enough to drown them out.

—AND I NEED A FUR COAT—IT'LL KEEP ME WARM
OH I'LL GET Y' TH' COAT—TO KEEP YOU QUIET—NOT WARM

A man doesn't give his wife a new fur coat for Christmas in order to keep her warm, dear heart—he gives it to her in order to keep her QUIET.

In these days, a bigamist is merely a man who attempts to save time by trying out two wives concurrently, instead of trying them out consecutively.

All the world's beautiful DREAMS seem to be going blah, at once! The dream that the small speculator could clean up a fortune in Wall Street; that prohibition would produce a new generation that would "not know the taste of alcohol;" and that feminism would make women too sensible ever to go back to corsets!

Human Side of the News

Hugo Eckener, Celebrated Airship Navigator—Alfred G. Vanderbilt Comes of Age

By Edwin C. Hill

HUGO ECKENER, that bearded master mariner of cloudland, is one who "came to scoff and remained to pray." He was a metaphysician, an authority on art, a student of political economy and a journalist, in the days when he ridiculed the possibility of flying liners.

He was past 40, this German scholar and scientist, when Count Zeppelin began building the great, cigar-shaped gas bags that have come to bear his name. Eckener poked fun at them and at the enthusiastic count. He laughed at "the air count's aircastles." But Count Zeppelin good-naturedly endured the jokes and jibes and one day inveigled Dr. Eckener into a chess game. Between moves he made such an ardent convert of the scoffer that today Dr. Hugo Eckener is the most celebrated skipper of the air.

Once more he has completed a round-trip of the Atlantic with sure efficiency. This was about his fifth crossing of the Atlantic at the wheel of his silvery ship, which carried 40 passengers and a crew of 48 at 80 miles an hour across oceans and continents.

Eckener, of the stolid German physique and cold, keen blue eyes, has steered the ship he mocked around the world and into the Arctic wastes. More than any one of our modern adventurers he has demonstrated that lighter-than-air ships are practical for trans-oceanic passenger and freight traffic. He's a curious combination of daring and cautious, scientific performance. Is it safe? Well, you might put that question to Dr. Eckener.

Not long ago the man who drives the gigantic Zeppelin through storms and fog and soars serenely across lightning-tortured skies was amusing himself by driving his motor car. His thoughts might have been in the clouds, for he drove the car into a tree and escaped death in the crash by the thinnest kind of a miracle.

Young Vanderbilt Inherits Fortune

ALFRED GWYNNE VANDERbilt, having come to the age of 21, receives one-half of the $17,000,000 left by his father of the same name, who went to his death when the Lusitania was torpedoed. His younger brother, George, gets the other half, and they will share, too, in the immense fortune of the late Capt. Isaac Emerson, the bromo-seltzer king, who was their mother's father.

Young Alfred Vanderbilt, who now takes his place among the wealthiest youngsters of the land, is not much addicted to society life. He has made movies of big game in Africa and is much interested in horse racing. This may be traced back to the old Commodore, founder of the Vanderbilt dynasty. Gruff, bluff old Commodore Vanderbilt found time, while building the New York Central and pulling the eye-teeth of Jim Fiske, and Jay Gould and Dan Drew, to hold the reins of his sleek, two-forty trotters, whirling a light wagon down Fifth avenue to Wall street.

A Bitter Enemy Of Huey Long

THAT lively lady, Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond, of New Orleans, La., maintains her offensive against Senator Huey P. Long. It is a dramatic struggle, diverting as well as dramatic, for Mrs. Hammond is frankly out to spear the Kingfish. She is going after him exactly as if he were a boll weevil or a Florida fruit fly. In the mind of Hilda Phelps Hammond, people like Huey Long just ought not to be allowed to exist, so she leads a fairly strong movement to exterminate him.

She is a small, dark lady, with a vivacious manner and a very good head on her pretty shoulders. Her brother is Esmond Phelps, publisher of the New Orleans Times-Picayune. Mrs. Hammond now says that if the United States Senate doesn't do its duty and throw Huey out through the nearest window, she is going to go to Washington and do something to the United States Senate. Not a threat to be taken lightly, either.

Surgical Operations On the Heart

THAT mysterious muscular bag we call the human heart is a much tougher affair than the doctors used to consider it. It was just about 20 years ago that surgeons began doing amazing things with the living, beating human heart. Take for example the case of Virgil Bennett, a young man of 21, out in Kansas.

For three years Virgil Bennett has been walking around with a chunk of lead in his heart. Three years ago a rifle was accidentally discharged in the Bennett farmhouse. The bullet passed through young Bennett's head behind the left ear, ranged downward through his neck and wound up in the pericardium, the covering of the heart. There it stays, and the surgeons are content to let it stay, as long as it does not get restless and begin to move around. His doctor has just made a periodic examination, finding the young man in excellent health after a summer spent in hard work on the farm.

The oldtime melodramatic phrases, "shot in the heart," "stabbed to the heart," will lose their lethal significance if the surgeons, who are just about the most admirable of all professional workers, keep on passing their special miracles.

Out in Chicago the heart of a 16-year-old boy stopped beating because of a deep stab wound and loss of blood, but the surgeon's flying fingers had just the necessary 30 seconds to sew up the wound and massage the heart back to functioning. An Indian in British Columbia was stabbed in the heart, and again the surgeon sewed up the slashed heart and kept it ticking away.

Tennessee's Government A Warning to U. S.

By James T. Williams, Jr.

UNLESS the Roosevelt administration has lost its sense of humor—and there is no evidence that it has—it will get a good deal of amusement out of the impassioned public defense which it has just received from Senator McKellar, of Tennessee.

The Senator says that "the puppets of financial Wall street cannot stop the President" because "Mr. Roosevelt has set his hand to the plow to redeem our country from the ruin brought on it by that same financial crowd and he will not turn back."

The truth of the statement would be, of course, cheerfully admitted by the administration, and it is doubtless glad to have the Tennessee Senator put the case so emphatically.

But the administration is also attempting to "redeem our country from the ruin brought on it" by a horde of politicians who are holders of county and local offices that have been handed down from "the days of the oxcart" and have become, in the days of the automobile, utterly unnecessary and increasingly wasteful and expensive.

* * *

Tennessee's Political Parasites

ON this battlefront the fight of the administration to redeem the country does not yet appear to have fired the enthusiasm of Senator McKellar, who will be a candidate for re-election next year. On the contrary, he is said to have been one of the severest critics of those federal agencies which are steadfastly resisting the greedy demands of county and local politicians for a dictatorial say-so regarding the expenditure of federal funds under the National Recovery program.

The report is current that some of the communications addressed by Senator McKellar to the officials of the Public Works Administration and to the officials of the Tennessee Valley Authority, concerning patronage, and projects have been so bitterly and sweepingly condemnatory in tone and terms that they are no longer even acknowledged, much less answered.

Senator McKellar's state of Tennessee is one of the most backward of all the states of the Union in the administration of state, county and local government. Its 95 counties and its hundreds of other local governmental units are eating up the taxes of the people. As a result, in Tennessee, public education is suffering, the administration of justice is suffering and the overburdened taxpayers in city, town and country are suffering most of all.

* * *

Obsolete System Still in Force

THE report of a survey of a group of counties in that state which was made not a great while ago by a Tennessee educator contains this observation:

"All the evils of county government in the last quarter of a century seem to have centered in Tennessee. Here one finds an obsolete system inherited from colonial North Carolina which in turn received it from England. The Tennessee county resembles in many respects the English county of the time of Columbus."

A survey of the public schools of Nashville, Tennessee, by a distinguished group of Tennessee educators reveals:

"The apparent failure, over a long period of years, of those responsible to educate the people of Nashville in general regarding their public schools, an antiquated and elsewhere long since abandoned conception of philosophy of education, a system of organization, administration and control shot through and through with personal favoritism and subject to the 'higher interests of city politics."

In opposing the efforts of Senators and Representatives in Congress to obtain favors from the Public Works Administration and the Tennessee Valley Authority and Civil Works Administration and similar federal agencies for distribution to the county and local political rings of Tennessee and other backward states, the Roosevelt administration is not merely protecting the federal treasury. It is making a gallant fight to emancipate free education and other vital state and local services from the grip of the greedy politicians who are the sole beneficiaries of an obsolete system of state and local governments that dates back to the days of the oxcart.

Isn't It So?

Much of the money that was saved a few years ago for a rainy day is frozen.

The boys who watch the clock when they are 21 generally become watchmen when they are 60.

A necessity is something we must have, but most of us have trained ourselves to think anything we want is a necessity.
